PEACE DEMONSTRATION — Flower-carrying demonstrators clog the hallway outside the Selective Service office in San Rafael. Shortly before 37 demonstrators were arrested yesterday, including a number of Vietnam war veterans, many of the youths began filling out identification and information slips to help keep track of those taken into custody. The building at Third and D Streets was filled with a continual song of "all we are saying, is give peace a chance."

Police Arrest 37 Draft Protesters

San Rafael Office Is Disrupted By Sit-In

Thirty-seven peace demonstrators were arrested yesterday for unlawful assembly after they refused to disperse from a sit-in at the San Rafael office of the U.S. Selective Service.

According to San Rafael police, the protesters — including four juveniles — were arrested at about 2:45 p.m. after ignoring warnings they disband their body blockage of a corridor at the federal building at 910 D Street.

As the group chorused "Give Peace a Chance," a dozen helmeted police officers moved in to arrest the demonstrators one by one.

"Will you disperse?" the officers calmly asked each protester. "Disperse or you will be arrested."

The demonstrators, most of whom appeared to be college students, merely shook their heads and continued singing. As each protester was placed under arrest, he rose to his feet and moved quietly with hands behind head POW fashion to an awaiting bus.

Among those arrested were two San Rafael men who ran unsuccessfully last month for public office. They are James Kimo Campbell, 20, of 50 Fremont Road, who ran for the Marin Junior College District board and Richard Allan Raznikov, 24, of 12 Chateau Place, who lost in his bid to become mayor of San Rafael.

The sit-in, the first major protest action at the Marin draft board, according to police chief Joseph J. Brusatori, was the culmination of a morning-long demonstration which began at the College of Marin.

Earlier about 300 persons gathered at the college to lower the school's American flag to half staff in tribute to Marin's war dead and four students slain last year by Ohio National Guardsmen at Kent State University.

At about 10 a.m., a splinter group of about 100 marched from the Kentfield campus along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, over Wolf Grade and into San Rafael.

Swarming into the draft board office, they presented employees there a letter claiming: "Our government would rather risk social decay and revolution at home than admit a colossal mistake (the war)."

The letter, signed by most of the demonstrators, asked draft board employees to resign their positions and "help restore the conscience of America."

The demonstrators — some of whom wore military fatigues and said they were former GIs — then moved out of the office and began the corridor sit-in.

At one point about 50 persons participated in the hand-holding blockade as another 30 or so stood by voicing support.

San Rafael police, who announced they would not take action until a complaint was received, stationed two officers inside the building to control the crowd.

As the 11:30 a.m. sit-in lengthened past noon, the officers talked and joked goodnaturedly with the protesters.

At one point, a conservatively-dressed youth attempted to pick his way through the sprawled bodies to the selective service office.

"Stop him," someone said as the demonstrators clustered tightly at the office entrance.

"Let's hear it for the people," one youth shouted and the group applauded.

A formal complaint was made at 2:10 by Col. Richard E. Davis of the selective service's Bay Area headquarters in San Francisco after the protesters refused to allow the local board's executive secretary, Joy Kinzer, to enter the office.

Boston Takes Spotlight In Nationwide Protests

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Focus of the antiwar movement's "spring offensive" shifted from the nation's capital to Boston today where 4,000 demonstrators tried in vain to shut down the John F. Kennedy Federal Building before police charged to disperse them.

Fewer than 75 protesters turned out at the appointed time for a demonstration at the South Vietnamese embassy this morning in Washington, where more than 12,000 persons have been arrested in the past three days.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., told the Women's National Democratic Club in Washington the antiwar militants had hurt the cause of peace through "foolish and useless" acts on the streets of the capital.

Other demonstrations and sit-ins were staged yesterday in San Francisco, Madison, Wisc., Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, College Park, Md., and elsewhere.

Climax of the 18 days of antiwar protests across the country came in Washington, where an estimated 1,500 demonstrators invaded the Capital grounds, and in Boston where 25,000 persons held a day of mostly peaceful protests.

Boston police shoved some protesters out of the way to clear a path for government workers as the demonstrators ringed the federal building this morning.

Inside, workers — some of whom had arrived an hour or more early — went about their routine duties. Some watched the scene briefly from windows. Warren Blair, deputy police superintendent, said the antiwar element had been denied its prime goal.

"They said they wanted to shutdown the building, while our intention was to keep it open. The building is open," Blair said at mid-morning.

There were several arrests, police reported.

The demonstrators on hand an hour and a half after the announced time of the rally were greatly outnumbered by rather relaxed police.

Troops and police were withdrawn earlier from bridges, traffic circles and other posts they had guarded in force since Monday.

About 1,200 protesters were arrested Wednesday when they crowded onto the steps of the U.S. Capitol for a rally promoting their peace treaty and to air other demands.

As the Washington protests diminished, a controversy heightened over the tactics police used in mass arrests totaling some 12,800 from Monday through Wednesday.

Police were accused of holding many of those arrested for up to 18 hours without being

Pollution Control Statistics Hit

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — An annual report, again claiming air pollution controls in the Bay Area are doing a great job, was shot down yesterday.

The report by the staff of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District glowingly cited a 17 per cent reduction in total emissions from all sources in the six-county district from 1969 to 1970. (Another pollution control district story, page 16.)

But a majority of district directors, in an unprecedented challenge to the annual report, declared they did not believe the claim.

The annual inventory of all significant air contamination sources in the past has been used by the staff and board to promote their claims that district regulations were working well. But the composition of the 12-member board has changed radically with the addition of new members who have shown a tendency to question the staff on virtually everything.

The strongest criticism was by director Nevin K. Hiester, Portola Valley city councilman and an expert on air pollution. "I don't really believe the 1970 results — I don't really believe things in 1970 were better than in 1969," he said.

Any measurable drop in air pollution, Dr. Hiester suggested, "must have been due to some other fortunate set of circumstances," and not to the effectiveness of district regulations or air pollution control equipment.

"I guess you'd have to say that I am an unbeliever," he said. "I know that air pollution equipment just doesn't work that well."

Dr. Hiester, a member of the board for the past year, is a chemical engineer and head of air and water pollution work at the Stanford Research Institute. His first work with the institute 22 years ago was on the smog problem in Los Angeles.

Director Wyman Hicks, a Sausalito city councilman, noted that the annual report dealt only in tons of five major pollutants but ignored the relative health effects of some of the more poisonous ones.

He urged that an independent expert judge the district's performance and evaluate the data in the report. Since the district's staff both enforces the regulations and evaluates their effectivesness, Hicks said, "there's a tendency to say how well we're doing."

Chief Administrative Officer D. J. Callaghan reluctantly agreed to consider Hicks's proposal, but said he did not know "who else has the capability" to evaluate the data.

Thuy Links Nixon To Dollar Flap

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy told the Paris peace talks today that President Nixon's refusal to set a date for withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam was the cause of the dollar troubles in Europe and the antiwar protests in Washington.

Thuy also complained that Nixon, in recent statements, "reiterated the absurd demand of mutual withdrawal" of both U.S. and North Vietnamese troops and said this put "on the same footing the American aggressor and the Vietnamese people fighting against aggression."

Thuy's statements appeared to block efforts by U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce to draw from the North Vietnamese a sign they were willing to pull their troops out of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Hanoi refuses to acknowledge the presence of its troops there.

"Last week a spokesman for your side indicated that if discussions on certain questions could arrive at positive results, then all military personnel participating in the war can go home," Bruce said.

Thuy said last week that af-

MARK VS. DOLLAR

Visiting Yanks In Money Quandary

LONDON (UPI) —Not long ago, all an American tourist in Europe needed to buy a meal or a hotel room was a big enough roll of greenbacks. Today, he was lucky if his traveler's check was accepted— at up to 16 per cent less than its official dollar value.

The dollar always has been "as good as gold," in theory, because for every dollar the United States issued it put aside a quantity of gold to back it up. Technically, any country could cash in its dollars for their value in gold at $35 an ounce.

But, for the past 20 years, the United States has been spending more money abroad for its imports and tourism than it has been getting back for its own exports—an unfavorable balance of trade. It also has not been putting aside enough gold to back up its currency.

Financial experts have estimated the amount of dollars circulating abroad—called "Eurodollars" and beyond the U.S. Government's direct control—at between $35 billion and $50 billion. The U.S. monetary gold stock, however, is less than $11 billion.

As the American balance of payments deficit continued and the Eurodollars piled up, foreign countries found themselves stuck with a currency they were unable to convert or absorb any longer in the face or increasing inflation.

Bankers, businessmen and speculators in Europe began betting against the dollar and for the West German Deutschemark. They have confidence in West Germany's booming economy and the country's high reserves of gold and currencies.

There had been strong rumors for the past six months that the mark and possibly several other strong European currencies would be revalued upwards. In effect, this would mean devaluing the dollar in terms of those currencies. So, the bankers, businessmen and speculators have sought to cash in by selling dollars and buying marks.

After it purchased an estimated $2.2 billion this week

Dollar Crisis Spreads To Japan

BONN (UPI) —The West German government said today it was postponing its decision on the monetary crisis involving marks and dollars until it could seek joint action with France and the other four members of the European Common Market.

The money crisis spread to Japan where banks suspended trading in the German mark because of its strength against the dollar. Between $300 and $350 million flooded in to buy Japanese yen and the Bank of Japan intervened with massive purchases to keep the dollar within one per cent of the official exchange of 360 yen to the dollar. Tokyo's foreign exchange banks awaited government guidance on whether to resume dollar exchanges Friday.

Government sources expressed pessimism on chances of Paris joining in a common move to stem the flood of dollars inundating Germany and other West European nations. France under Charles de Gaulle attacked the dollar but in recent months has tried to support it.

Official money markets in Germany remained closed for the second day. Unofficial trading in dollars was sparse and nervous, commercial banks reported. At noon a dollar was bringing only 3.57 marks compared with the official exchange rate of 3.66 marks. This meant a mark was worth 28.2 cents instead of 27.3 cents.

Initially Chancellor Willy Brandt's government planned to make and announce a decision after Friday's cabinet meeting. But spokesman said the cabinet would meet instead on Saturday or Sunday after the crisis is discussed by the Common Market ministers of economics and finance in Brussels on Saturday.

The government was inclined towards ending the mark's fixed exchange rate and letting it float to its natural level as at least a temporary way out of the crisis, parliamentary sources said.

Government sources said either an upward revaluation of the mark to a new fixed parity, or some form of exchange controls was not excluded.

TORNADO RAKES JOPLIN, MO.

The nemesis of the Midwestern states, the spring tornado, cut through 39 blocks of downtown Joplin, Mo., yesterday, causing several million dollars damage. Missouri National Guardsmen were called in to patrol the debris-littered business section of town. One person, a 23-year-old man living in a trailer court, was killed and 40 others were injured. Other tornadoes struck Marceline, Mo., Conway, Iowa, Broken Bow, Neb., and areas near the Oklahoma cities of Okay, Porter, Coweta, Salina and Haskell.

Tax Reform Cry In Reagan Flap

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democrats and Republicans alike today blamed California's tax structure and not Gov. Ronald Reagan for the fact he paid no state income tax despite being a millionaire with a $44,100 salary.

New cries were heard for tax reform —from Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston and California legislators of both parties.

"It's not the governor's fault he doesn't have any tax liability," said Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland. The governor is doing what is perfectly legal and proper under the law. Our problem is that the law is bad."

But the liberal Democrat did observe that Reagan was like the welfare recipients he deplores who take advantage of legal loopholes to gain higher relief checks.

"It's exactly the same thing," Petris said, "except the governor's situation applies to people at the top of the income level and welfare applies to those at the bottom."

The California Welfare Rights Organization designated Reagan "the highest paid welfare recipient in the state" and facetiously termed him "one of the 'truly needy.' " Meanwhile, Reagan—who disclosed Tuesday he paid no state income tax for 1970 because of investment losses —refused to say whether he also paid no federal tax. A state tax official said he "probably" didn't.

The governor scolded inquiring newsmen for an "invasion of privacy" and admonished one persistent reporter, "aren't you ashamed enough?"

Cranston joined many of his Democratic colleagues in blaming the system and not the governor.

"I do not suggest he evaded the law," the Senator told a Sacramento news conference at which he called for closing both state and federal tax loopholes.

The franchise tax board reported that in 1969 there were 71,500 taxpayers in the $40,000 to $50,000 income bracket who paid some tax. Only 176 did not.

Reagan's salary recently rose to $49,100 and under normal circumstances his state income tax for the current year would be $2,794.

Assembly Democratic leader Walter A. Karabian of Monterey Park recalled that Reagan in 1969 told the legislature, "the burden of taxation should fall equally on all taxpayers in proportion to their income."

Reagan was first asked about his tax status during his weekly news conference after a student radio station at Sacramento State College broadcast a rumor he had paid no income tax.

"I was confident of the information because it came from a personal observation," said the student broadcaster, journalism major Rosemarie King. She would not elaborate.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Border Sealed

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Radio Pakistan said today federal army troops have sealed off East Pakistan's southeastern border with India and were "mopping up" rebel Bengali forces in the interior of the region.

The official radio also announced that a planeload of food was dropped Wednesday to two offshore islands that were among the hardest hit in last November's cyclone and tidal wave and that have been without emergency food supplies since the start of the civil war March 25.

India and Pakistan appeared to remain stalemated in negotiations to exchange their diplomats from closed down posts in Calcutta and the East Pakistani capital of Dacca.

Kent Protesters

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—About 75 diehard student demonstrators camped for the second straight night outside a Kent State University building after a recruiting march on the campus lost support for the sit-in.

Fifty of the protesters huddled together early today under the portico of Rockwell Hall, a building which houses the ROTC offices. Twenty-five others camped in a large green tent pitched on the lawn. A light chilly rain was falling.

Earlier in the evening about 175 attended a meeting in the campus auditorium with several administrators to discuss the ROTC program. As the meeting broke up about 100 marched together from dormitory to dormitory urging others to join them in the demonstration at Rockwell Hall.

Saving Wildlife

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—The British Columbia provincial government has introduced legislation to protect rare or endangered species of wildlife. The bill prohibits hunting or chasing game with snowmobiles and regulates the carrying of firearms.

Big Forest Fire

RESERVE, N.M. (UPI)— Expert Indian crews battled a roaring, wind-fanned fire in the Gila National Forest today while firefighters from four states worked to control blazes which blackened 24,000 acres in two other national forests. The "man-caused" fire in the Gila National Forest in southwestern New Mexico has burned 1,300 acres of pine and grassland and continued to burn uncontrolled today.

"It's in very isolated and rugged country," said Jack Foster, fire control officer. "There are a lot of canyons which make it difficult to send in men."

Foster said 120 men, most of the Indians, tried to establish firelines around the blaze which was whipped by winds of 50 miles an hour.

New York Unrest

A policeman, Stephen Luisa, 31, was wounded in the shoulder by a high powered rifle slug while riding in his patrol car about 30 blocks from the heart of the disturbance in Brooklyn's Brownsville district.

A relative calm returned to the predominantly Negro neighborhood early today, partially due to the heavy police concentration on the streets and a light rain which began falling shortly after midnight.

The fire department reported 120 fires were set between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 1 a.m. today. Officials said 13 policemen and 15 firemen were injured during the day and 26 persons were arrested, most of them on larceny and felonious assault charges.

Auto Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government told automakers today it would fully enforce strict antipollution standards even if it meant the Americans would have to pay more for cars that may run less efficient.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, made the statement at the start of EPA hearings on progress by the industry toward reaching standards calling for virtual elimination of auto exhaust pollutants by the time 1975 and 1976 cars are made.

The standards, enacted by Congress last year, require a 90 percent reduction in pollutants compared with emission levels from 1970 and 1971 models.

Ford and Volkswagen expressed pessimism about their ability to meet the standards and said even a successful system might raise gasoline costs by 30 per cent to motorists.

St. Mary's Is Dedicated

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Roman Catholic Church dedicated its newest cathedral Wednesday with police restraining pickets outside and 3,000 persons of all faith inside attending a modern English mass.

The $7 million St. Mary's of the Assumption—which church leaders now call "The People's Cathedral"-has been controversial throughout its construction.

It was criticized by some for its striking untraditional architecture and by others on the basis that cathedral building itself is an outdated enterprise.

The prayers of papal delegate Archibishop Luigi Ramondi at the doors of the cathedral were drowned out by shouts of "power to the people" from a band of about 100 demonstrators.

But once inside the huge domed church, hundreds of priests, nuns and lay people of all faiths peacefully attended the simple mass of dedication.

Most of them were objecting that the money spent on the cathedral should have gone to the poor.

San Francisco Archbishop Joseph McGucken has frequently defended building the cathedral on grounds that he had "a mandate" from the people who contributed the money for it. He said the same people contribute more than $2 million a year for charity in the archdiocese.

TORNADO RAKES JOPLIN, MO.

The nemesis of the Midwestern states, the spring tornado, cut through 39 blocks of downtown Joplin, Mo., yesterday, causing several million dollars damage. Missouri National Guardsmen were called in to patrol the debris-littered business section of town. One person, a 23-year-old man living in a trailer court, was killed and 40 others were injured. Other tornadoes struck Marceline, Mo., Conway, Iowa, Broken Bow, Neb., and areas near the Oklahoma cities of Okay, Porter, Coweta, Salina and Haskell.

Tax Reform Cry In Reagan Flap

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democrats and Republicans alike today blamed California's tax structure and not Gov. Ronald Reagan for the fact he paid no state income tax despite being a millionaire with a $44,100 salary.

New cries were heard for tax reform —from Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston and California legislators of both parties.

"It's not the governor's fault he doesn't have any tax liability," said Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland. The governor is doing what is perfectly legal and proper under the law. Our problem is that the law is bad."

But the liberal Democrat did observe that Reagan was like the welfare recipients he deplores who take advantage of legal loopholes to gain higher relief checks.

"It's exactly the same thing," Petris said, "except the governor's situation applies to people at the top of the income level and welfare applies to those at the bottom."

The California Welfare Rights Organization designated Reagan "the highest paid welfare recipient in the state" and facetiously termed him "one of the 'truly needy.' " Meanwhile, Reagan—who disclosed Tuesday he paid no state income tax for 1970 because of investment losses —refused to say whether he also paid no federal tax. A state tax official said he "probably" didn't.

The governor scolded inquiring newsmen for an "invasion of privacy" and admonished one persistent reporter, "aren't you ashamed enough?"

Cranston joined many of his Democratic colleagues in blaming the system and not the governor.

"I do not suggest he evaded the law," the Senator told a Sacramento news conference at which he called for closing both state and federal tax loopholes.

The franchise tax board reported that in 1969 there were 71,500 taxpayers in the $40,000 to $50,000 income bracket who paid some tax. Only 176 did not.

Otto Hoefler Named To Larkspur Planning Seat

Otto Hoefler, 53, of 220 Eliseo Drive was appointed to the Larkspur Planning Commission last night, to fill a vacancy created by the resignation last month of Joseph P. Picetti.

The Larkspur City Council voted the appointment after spending an hour and 10 minutes in closed session, interviewing candidates. Hoefler's term will run through 1974.

The appointee is an assistant to the president of Chevron Oil Co. of San Francisco, an affiliate of Standard Oil Co. He is a licensed civil engineer.

Councilmen said they had considered both the abilities of the prospective commissioners and preservation of the overall geographic representation on the commission, in deciding the appointment.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

MOVIES — Granted Charles Kessler and Seth D. Morgan of San Francisco a permit, good through Dec. 31, to operate a movie house, showing family rated films, in a remodeled store at 1127 Magnolia Avenue weekdays from 6 to 11:30 p.m.

SIGNS — Approved a 32-square-foot sign marking the site of the future Bank of America branch at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road, in place of the 160-square-foot sign originally requested; tentatively settled the problem of the controversial Minorca Co. billboards on Highway 101 by agreeing with developer Niels J. Schultz Jr. that the signs should be made smaller, painted to resemble state highway signs, and should simply point the way for traffic to Greenbrae, Larkspur and Bon Air.

ABATEMENT — After discovering that through staff error the city was trying to abate the home of Helen Martin Sharp at 2 Nightingale Court instead of her rental property at 302 Madrone Avenue, halted proceedings and ordered John W. Appleton, city building-planning superintendent to give Mrs. Sharp a list of building code violations found in the old dwelling. Abatement action first began against the building in the mid-1960s.

BUDGET — After learning from City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst that the first draft of the 1971-72 city budget will be ready by May 14, set adjourned meetings for 7:30 p.m. June 1 and 2 to review the budget. The council asked Bathurst to invite the Larkspur Library Board to the June 1 session.

FERRY TERMINAL — Adopted a resolution pledging continued city support to Golden Gate Bridge District proposals to use the Hutchinson Quarry property as a Central Marin terminal.

PLANNING COUNCIL — After rejecting pleas in March by the Larkspur Town Meeting to join the City-County Planning Council, voted to join the organization on a year's trial basis.

SAN QUENTIN — Postponed to June 3 action on City of Novato resolution seeking state funds to offset Marin County tax burden of court cases involving San Quentin Prison inmates.

BUSINESS LICENSE — Received from Harlan Barry, Bathurst's assistant, proposed revisions to the city's business license and closeout sale ordinances. Councilmen agreed that the proposals needed further revision, and said they would send written suggestions to Barry before a draft is turned over to City Atty. Robert W. Elliott or presented to the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce.

OVERCROSSING — Adopted a resolution urging rebuilding the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's narrow old span over Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East, a 14-foot-wide bottleneck on the road to San Quentin Prison and the possible future ferryboat terminal at the Hutchison quarry site. Bathurst said some $50,000 in state funds is available for the work.

TOWN MEETING — Heard a request from Joan Sestak, chairman of the Larkspur Town Meeting held Saturday, for a session with the council on the gathering's recommendations. Mayor Earl J. Grady Jr. said the talk might be put on the agenda of any special May meetings, or a nonbudget meeting in June.

FENCE — Postponed to June 3 action on the planning commission recommendations concerning the Candrian Fence controversy and appeal.

CLOSED SESSION — Discussed in closed session with Elliott the status of the city's suit against the Marin County Flood Control District over an old force main break and a property owner's suit against the city in the same break, but took no action.

STOP SIGNS — Approved four-way stop sign installations at Dartmouth Drive and Tulane Avenue, Hillview Gardens.

All council members were present.

Someone stole his motorcycle, valued at $180 sometime between noon and 6:15 p.m. yesterday from the San Rafael Car Wash at Francisco Boulevard and Castro Street, Steven A. Hall of 2153 Fifth Street, San Rafael, reported to police.

Postmaster At San Geronimo Bids Goodbye After 23 Years

By M. STREET BROOKS

The weathered look wears well in the rustic setting. A llama grazes with the mares just across an unnamed creek on Creamery Road, and a bulletin board in front of the shingle covered one-room post office advertises a young Alpine milking goat for $70 and a "reasonably priced'' used western saddle.

The back door of the post office was just a 10-second walk from Mrs. Giambastiani's kitchen, but last weekend she left the post office and home behind to retire to a new home near a daughter and son-in-law in Aumsville, Ore.

"I feel sad about leaving," she said last week while sorting letters. "The post office has become a part of my life. I'm going to miss my friends."

She isn't planning on sitting home. "I have five acres up there so I'll have plenty to keep me busy. I'll do a little gardening and sewing. I also plan to visit a sister in Boston, a son in Alaska and a brother in Texas."

When she moved to San Geronimo from San Francisco with her husband and six children in 1948, Mrs. Giambastiani hoped to work some day in the little post office next door. A few months later she got her chance when Postmaster Elaine Stockdale moved with her family to Sebastapol.

There wasn't as much work then. The post office was classified as fourth class service, but stamp sales increased and several years ago the office was reclassified for third class service.

Still, the 64-year-old postmaster said, "it was a peaceful job except at Christmas time when I got rushed a bit."

The shingle covered little building — only nine feet wide and about 20 feet deep — is heated by the old wood burning stove that was there in 1948 and packages are still weighed on a big steel Fairbanks scale.

She worked behind the rows of glass fronted boxes with letter combination locks.

The community changed during Mrs. Giambastiani's tenure.

"It used to be mostly retired people," she recalled. "Now they're mostly young people. Quite a few hippies — they're friendly."

In 1954 Mrs. Giambastiani was ordered to close the post office and lower the flag, but residents wrote letters to congressmen asking them to keep the San Geronimo Post Office open.

"Just the day before it was scheduled to close I received a telegram from Hubert Scudder (late congressman) telling me to keep it open," Mrs. Giambastiani said.

Firebombing At Birch Bookstore

CHICO (UPI) —A firebomb was thrown Wednesday night at the American Opinion bookshop operated by the John Birch Society, causing minor damage.

The front of the building was scorched but no other damage was reported and there were no injuries.

Two suspects were seen leaving the scene in an old pickup truck but they were not apprehended, officers said.

By M. STREET BROOKS

The weathered look wears well in the rustic setting. A llama grazes with the mares just across an unnamed creek on Creamery Road, and a bulletin board in front of the shingle covered one-room post office advertises a young Alpine milking goat for $70 and a "reasonably priced" used western saddle.

The back door of the post office was just a 10-second walk from Mrs. Giambastiani's kitchen, but last weekend she left the post office and home behind to retire to a new home near a daughter and son-in-law in Aumsville, Ore.

"I feel sad about leaving," she said last week while sorting letters. "The post office has become a part of my life. I'm going to miss my friends."

She isn't planning on sitting home. "I have five acres up there so I'll have plenty to keep me busy. I'll do a little gardening and sewing. I also plan to visit a sister in Boston, a son in Alaska and a brother in Texas."

When she moved to San Geronimo from San Francisco with her husband and six children in 1948, Mrs. Giambastiani hoped to work some day in the little post office next door. A few months later she got her chance when Postmaster Elaine Stockdale moved with her family to Sebastapol.

There wasn't as much work then. The post office was classified as fourth class service, but stamp sales increased and several years ago the office was reclassified for third class service.

Still, the 64-year-old postmaster said, "it was a peaceful job except at Christmas time when I got rushed a bit."

The shingle covered little building — only nine feet wide and about 20 feet deep — is heated by the old wood burning stove that was there in 1948 and packages are still weighed on a big steel Fairbanks scale.

She worked behind the rows of glass fronted boxes with letter combination locks.

The community changed during Mrs. Giambastiani's tenure.

"It used to be mostly retired people," she recalled. "Now they're mostly young people. Quite a few hippies — they're friendly."

In 1954 Mrs. Giambastiani was ordered to close the post office and lower the flag, but residents wrote letters to congressmen asking them to keep the San Geronimo Post Office open.

"Just the day before it was scheduled to close I received a telegram from Hubert Scudder (late congressman) telling me to keep it open," Mrs. Giambastiani said.

Firebombing At Birch Bookstore

CHICO (UPI) —A firebomb was thrown Wednesday night at the American Opinion bookshop operated by the John Birch Society, causing minor damage.

The front of the building was scorched but no other damage was reported and there were no injuries.

Two suspects were seen leaving the scene in an old pickup truck but they were not apprehended, officers said.

Otto Hoefler Named To Larkspur Planning Seat

Otto Hoefler, 53, of 220 Eliseo Drive was appointed to the Larkspur Planning Commission last night, to fill a vacancy created by the resignation last month of Joseph P. Picetti.

The Larkspur City Council voted the appointment after spending an hour and 10 minutes in closed session, interviewing candidates. Hoefler's term will run through 1974.

The appointee is an assistant to the president of Chevron Oil Co. of San Francisco, an affiliate of Standard Oil Co. He is a licensed civil engineer.

Councilmen said they had considered both the abilities of the prospective commissioners and preservation of the overall geographic representation on the commission, in deciding the appointment.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

MOVIES — Granted Charles Kessler and Seth D. Morgan of San Francisco a permit, good through Dec. 31, to operate a movie house, showing family rated films, in a remodeled store at 1127 Magnolia Avenue weekdays from 6 to 11:30 p.m.

SIGNS — Approved a 32-square-foot sign marking the site of the future Bank of America branch at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road, in place of the 160-square-foot sign originally requested; tentatively settled the problem of the controversial Minorca Co. billboards on Highway 101 by agreeing with developer Niels J. Schultz Jr. that the signs should be made smaller, painted to resemble state highway signs, and should simply point the way for traffic to Greenbrae, Larkspur and Bon Air.

ABATEMENT — After discovering that through staff error the city was trying to abate the home of Helen Martin Sharp at 2 Nightingale Court instead of her rental property at 302 Madrone Avenue, halted proceedings and ordered John W. Appleton, city building-planning superintendent to give Mrs. Sharp a list of building code violations found in the old dwelling. Abatement action first began against the building in the mid-1960s.

BUDGET — After learning from City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst that the first draft of the 1971-72 city budget will be ready by May 14, set adjourned meetings for 7:30 p.m. June 1 and 2 to review the budget. The council asked Bathurst to invite the Larkspur Library Board to the June 1 session.

PLANNING COUNCIL — After rejecting pleas in March by the Larkspur Town Meeting to join the City-County Planning Council, voted to join the organization on a year's trial basis.

SAN QUENTIN — Postponed to June 3 action on City of Novato resolution seeking state funds to offset Marin County tax burden of court cases involving San Quentin Prison inmates.

BUSINESS LICENSE — Received from Harlan Barry, Bathurst's assistant, proposed revisions to the city's business license and closeout sale ordinances. Councilmen agreed that the proposals needed further revision, and said they would send written suggestions to Barry before a draft is turned over to City Atty. Robert W. Elliott or presented to the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce.

OVERCROSSING — Adopted a resolution urging rebuilding the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's narrow old span over Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East, a 14-foot-wide bottleneck on the road to San Quentin Prison and the possible future ferryboat terminal at the Hutchison quarry site. Bathurst said some $50,000 in state funds is available for the work.

TOWN MEETING — Heard a request from Joan Sestak, chairman of the Larkspur Town Meeting held Saturday, for a session with the council on the gathering's recommendations. Mayor Earl J. Grady Jr. said the talk might be put on the agenda of any special May meetings, or a nonbudget meeting in June.

FENCE — Postponed to June 3 action on the planning commission recommendations concerning the Candrian Fence controversy and appeal.

CLOSED SESSION — Discussed in closed session with Elliott the status of the city's suit against the Marin County Flood Control District over an old force main break and a property owner's suit against the city in the same break, but took no action.

STOP SIGNS — Approved four-way stop sign installations at Dartmouth Drive and Tulane Avenue, Hillview Gardens.

All council members were present.

ANTIWAR

told they were under arrest or allowed to contact friends or relatives. A number of bystanders also were picked up in some arrests.

A police department spokesman said 1,873 demonstrators were still in custody at 9:30 a.m. EDT today. They were being processed out either on bond or collateral.

Two Chicago Seven defendants, Rennie Davis and John Froines, were arrested previously on charges of conspiracy to violate the rights of citizens and to interfere with government employees.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld a federal judge's ruling that demonstrators still in jail from Monday's protests must either be charged specifically or released immediately. D.C. Superior Court Judge Alfred J. Burka, however, refused early today to order the immediate release of all those arrested during demonstrations at the Capitol Wednesday. Burka said he could not rule without first hearing a trial of the request for a writ of habeas corpus brought by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson, reponding to the storm of sonctroversy surrounding his department's arrest procedures — including absence of specific charges — issued a statement Wednesday taking full responsibility for the arrests.

At the University of Maryland campus 10 miles away, 1,000 demonstrators blocked major highways resulting in nine injured protesters and nine injured police. Gov. Marvin Mandel declared a state of emergency and National Guardsmen patrolled the campus today.

Antiwar protesters Wednesday also blocked traffic in San Francisco. A young blonde securities analyst, who marched in an antiwar rally last month, snuffed out a burning American flag against her body.

The demonstrations coincided with Kent State University ceremonies on the first anniversary of the slaying of four students during an antiwar rally. There also were protests in New York, Boston and Chicago.

Peace demonstrators moved against Selective Service headquarters and military recruiters in Phoenix; Philadelphia; Missoula, Mont.; Eugene, Ore.; Salt Lake City; San Rafael and Fresno, Calif. In Pittsburgh, 25 young men armed with toy pop guns shot 25 women dressed as Vietnamese in a "massacre."

Eight peace demonstrators in Philadelphia attempted and failed to arrest the regional supervisor of the Selective Service Systems for alleged war crimes.

At least 15 young persons were arrested during afternoon and evening skirmishes on the 35,000-student campus of the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Demonstrators also marched in Milwaukee and before that protest was over six young persons who were under arrest.

Numerous antiwar rallies in the New York metropolitan area for the most part were peaceful with more than 10,000 persons attending a rally in mid-Manhattan to hear speakers demanding an immediate end to U.S. involvement in Indochina.

There were brief scuffles in Central Park between groups of students who fought for control of the podium during an antiwar meeting.

About a thousand antiwar protesters demonstrated outside bank and oil company headquarters in San Francisco, then broke into small groups which committed vandalism and blocked traffic in the city's financial district.

They were pursued by police, who arrested 102 persons, most of them for failure to disperse or disturbing the peace. At least five persons were hurt, none seriously.

The vandalism included paint spread on the sidewalk in front of the Bank of America's world headquarters and windows broken at three other banks. Traffic, including the city's famed cable cars, was disrupted temporarily.

Closed Session

The Dixie School District Board of Trustees will hold a special closed meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the administration office at 35 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, to hear charges against and possibly fire an employee, according to Joseph B. Goff, assistant superintendent.

Two $1,000 Scholarships Are Given

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Students from Novato and Petaluma last night were awarded $1,000 scholarships in the annual Bank of America Achievement Awards program at the Hilton Hotel. Two Marin students received $250 awards.

Winners of the $1,000 first place scholarship are Gregory Griffin of 160 Country Club Drive, Novato and Wendy Dragoo of 11 Haven Drive, Petaluma. Griffin's award was for his studies in science and mathematics at Novato High School; Miss Dragoo, a student at Petaluma High School, won her award for work in liberal arts. Only four top awards were made in the Bay Area.

Other winners were Dorene Closson of 353 Hyacinth Way, San Rafael, $250 for her work in vocational arts at Terra Linda High School and Frances Cook of 403 Magee Avenue, Mill Valley, $250 for her work in fine arts at Tamalpais High School.

Winners were selected on the basis of academic and extracurricular activity records and an interview before a panel of judges consisting of business and civic leaders.

The awards were presented by Al Gilman, regional vice president in charge of all bank branches in the North Bay and North Coast counties.

Mrs. Kinzer, using a bullhorn, attempted to order the protesters from the building. Her voice did not carry over the mournful refrains of peace songs.

Four juveniles were taken separately to juvenile hall.

Thirty-three persons were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of unlawful assembly, failure to disperse and malicious obstruction of a public place.

Within four hours all were released on their promise to appear in Marin Municipal Court later.

Released to appear Tuesday were:

Steven John Loegering, 19, of 1132 Second Street, Novato; James Gordon Digby, 22, of 672 Cherry Street, Novato; Neil Lionel Edwards, 26, of 8 Laurel Street, Mill Valley; Richard Carol Sloan, 35, of Lagunitas; Michael Drew Mendelson, 25, of Berkeley; Eric Signard Suenson, 20, of 15 La Crescenta Way, San Rafael; Michael Alan Glass, 18, of 1 Shell Court, Mill Valley; Kenneth John Cottrell, 23, of 229 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley, and Ronald Keith Nicholas, 32, of 672 Cherry Street, Novato.

Released to appear next Wednesday were:

Wendi Anne Killins, 19, and Wilmar Eugene Friesen, 21, both of 1 Shell Court, Mill Valley; Kenneth William Bott, 19, of 100 East Manor Drive, Mill Valley; Robert Alan Le Blane, 23, of 406A D Street, San Rafael; Gregory Carlton Fearon, 22, of 162 Hillside Avenue, San Rafael; Carol Marie Quellet, 20, of 111 H Street, San Rafael.

Michele Tormanen, 19, of 86 Laurel Lane, Fairfax; Deborah Lee Neill, 18, of 33 Jefferson Street, San Rafael; James Russell Allen, 23, of 28 Chester Avenue, Fairfax; Mark Nolan Werner, 22, of 229 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito, and Daryl Kent Grossman, 23, of 817 D Street, San Rafael.

Released to appear next Thursday were:

Released to appear May 18 were:

Debbie Webb, 20, of 21 Stetson Avenue, Kentfield; Robert Nelson Well, 24, of 610 Davidson Street, Novato; Randy Clifton Patterson, 22, of 201 Kent Avenue, Apt. 8, Kentfield; James Kimo Campbell, 24, of 50 Fremont Road, San Rafael; William Griffin Zane, 26, of 127B Laurel Drive, Fairfax, and Lynn Zimmerman, 21, of 544 Gate R Road, Sausalito.

Dr. Hiester added that despite the tonnage figures, "I don't really know what's happening." He also objected to the failure to round off the figures, citing a claim that automobiles generated 6,130 tons of contaminants a day.

"We're fooling ourselves and fooling the people who read them," he said of such precise figures.

Callaghan acknowledged that the figures were engineering estimates, but good estimates, accurate within 15 per cent of actual tonnages.

His claim of accuracy was challenged by Dr. David Mage, a chemical engineer and professor at San Jose State College. Mage said his measurements last month of Carbon monoxide in San Jose were 120 per cent higher than those at the same time by the district elsewhere in the same city.

Director Dianne Feinstein, a San Francisco supervisor, and board chairman Victor Calvo, a Santa Clara supervisor, stated their disbelief of the staff's claim of a 17 per cent cut in emissions. So did director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View city councilman, who proposed that major industries monitor their emissions continously instead of having district inspectors check them periodically.

Callaghan said industry's views should be solicited before considering such a requirement.

Mrs. Will Siri of the West Contra Costa County Conservation League observed from the audience that the claimed reduction was "not evident to us — we still have sore throats and headaches in North Richmond."

The only director to defend the staff report was Robert W. Hoyer, Clayton city councilman. He objected that criticism of the report was "somewhat unscientific."

Eleven of the 12 board members were present.

Dr. Milton Feldstein, district director of technical services, cited figures he said showed generally improved air quality over the past year.

The annual staff report said that toal emissions were cut last year by 1,570 tons a day to a new low of 7,611. It said this was the largest one-year reduction since estimates first were made for 1955.

"For the first time, estimated daily emissions have fallen below the 1955 rate, which was 8,260 tons a day," it declared. This was despite a 49 per cent growth of population and a 96 per cent increase in the number of automobiles since 1955, it said.

If no air pollution controls had been imposed, the total would have grown to 16,700 tons a day last year, according to the report.

It attributed the 1970 drop in emissions to the closing of two major industrials plants, the prohibition of backyard burning, the continuing shift by oil refineries and power plants from oil to gas fuel, and improved controls on vehicle emissions.

The report detailed contaminants by the 90 sources emitting over one-tenth of a ton a day, all but nine of them emitting under 10 tons a day.

Of these nine, the top five accounted for almost one third of the 1,479 tons from all stationary sources. They were: American Semlting and Refining Co. of Crockett, 93.7 tons; Pacific Gas and Electric Company's nine plants combined, 86.4 tons; Standard Oil Co. of California of Richmond, 73 tons; Phillips Petroleum Co. of Martinez, 70.2 tons, and Shell Oil Co. of Martinez, 53.4 tons.

TALKS

ter the date of U.S. withdrawal has been set "all the troops participating in the war can then rapidly regain their homes."

There was more talk today about cease-fires in Vietnam but no progress toward one at today's 112th session of the talks that have dragged along for two years with no visible sign of progress.

Bruce referred to a cease-fire proposal last week by Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, the chief Viet Cong negotiator, as a "sham" and suggested instead immediate negotiations on President Nixon's call for a cease-fire-in-place.

In her proposal last week Madame Binh said the Viet Cong would cease firing on American soldiers who "abstain from hostile actions," an apparent follow up to a Viet Cong call for Americans to desert. She expanded on this today and said it applied to America's allies fighting in Vietnam.

Throughout the meeting was the oft-stated Communist position that there can be no progress until Nixon names a date for total U.S. withdrawal.

Rogers In Israel With Cairo Plan

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived in the Israeli capital today with a new peace plan from Cairo. He told the Israelis they had met the agonies of war and now must meet the agony of making peace.

Rogers' arrival statement in Tel Aviv where he landed on a flight from Cairo via Cyprus served to bring out the differences of opinion between Washington and Jerusalem over what has been termed in Washington as Israel's intransigence.

Cairo dispatches also indicated sharp differences between the United States and Egypt over a Middle East settlement.

"This is an unusual time in our history," Rogers said in Tel Aviv. "The nations in this area have the opportunity to take wise and decisive action. There are risks in agreeing to peace—-there are greater risks in failing to do so."

A crowd estimated by police at 70 persons appeared at the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv with signs reading "Rogers Go Home?" The demonstrators oppose the Rogers plan calling for withdrawal from Arab territory. But bigger demonstrations in Jerusalem were canceled by police request.

Rogers, cheered by American tourists at the King David Hotel in Jerusalem, began his Israeli mission by talking first with David Ben-Gurion, one of the founders of the Israeli republic and a man who has joined Rogers in asking for Israeli withdrawals in favor of a lasting peace.

Rogers, who conferred earlier today in Cairo with President Anwar Sadat, quoted President Nixon as saying Israel's security can come finally only from peace with the Arabs.

Rogers, carrying a letter from Nixon to Prime Minister Golda Meir, said he wasconvinced there may not be a "better opportunity for a long time to come" to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.
must be done to impart new momentum to the negotiations under the auspices of Ambassador (Gunnar V.) Jarring," Rogers said before departing for Jerusalem.

ANALYSIS

from countries wanting marks in exchange, the West German Bundesbank (central bank) announced Wednesday it would stop buying dollars.

Banks in Austria, Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands followed suit. Portugal suspended all foreign exchange transactions because of the turmoil. The Bank of Israel suspended trading in German marks, Swiss and French francs and Dutch guilders. Trading in marks was suspended in Japan to bolster the dollar's value.

Britain, France, Italy and the Scandinavian countries continued to support the dollar by buying it at the lowest rate they could.

The dollar is in a unique position in international economic affairs because all other currencies in non-Communist countries are valued officially in terms of dollars. The United States, therefore, could not devalue the dollar, as other countries have their currencies, because any revaluation automatically would bring corresponding changes in the worth of other currencies.

If the mark revalued upward, however, the dollar would buy fewer marks and the effect would be one of a dollar devaluation.

It was inconceivable to many Americans flooding European capitals at the start of the heavy tourist season that Europeans were rolling in the welcome mat for the almighty dollar. Some reacted with open resentment and anger.

"We may cut our trip short and may even be prepared to say to hell with Europe and God bless America," Ted Markovic, a film editor from Glen Rock, N.J., said in Paris.

Mrs. Sally Senator of Pittsburgh, also in Paris, summed up her group's feelings this way: "The (Europeans) love the almighty dollar as we see it. They grab every penny out of it. They've forgotten the Marshall plan."

While banks in Paris and London continued to accept dollars, their counterparts in West Germany, Switzerland, The Netherlands, Austria, Belgium and Portugal closed their doors to American money. Some hotels also refused dollars.

But Americans generally were able to make other arrangements.

MONEY

German Shipowners both advised the government against either an upward revaluation or a floating mark. They said either move would reduce the competitiveness of German exporters and shipowners, without striking at the cause of inflation, which they consider to be unjustified wage demands.

During the last monetary crisis in September, 1969, the Bonn government decided on a temporarily floating mark as a solution. After allowing it to float for just under four weeks, it was given a new fixed parity near the price at which it had levelled off in free trade.

The American dollar was the object of the heavy currency speculation that swept Europe this week, and it took so bad a buffeting that the West German government closed all money and gold markets until Monday. Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Austria also refused to buy U.S. dollars.

The money crisis moved on to Asia today when Japanese banks and markets opened following a one-day holiday Wednesday. The Japanese central bank bought more than $200 million in the morning session of the foreign exchange market.

Japanese Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda said the yen would not be revalued upward although it was one of the "strong" currencies being exchanged for dollars.

The reason the dollar is under attack is that people want to sell dollars to buy other currencies —German marks, Swiss francs or Japanese yen. Bankers, businessmen and speculators in Europe have been betting either the mark would be revalued upward or the dollar would be devalued.

While Germany's economy is booming, the United States has made deep outlays on the war in Indochina and its balance of payments deficit has been worsening.

Devaluation of the dollar was unlikely since it would not only lose value against such "strong" currencies as the mark, but also against all other currencies.

Vandals Hit Bank Branch

TIPTON (UPI) — Windows and the front glass doors at the Bank of America here were shattered by vandals early today.

Bank manager M. Abramson said three windows and both glass doors were broken. He estimated damage at between $500 and $1,000.

He said it appeared that a pipe or other blunt instrument was used to smash the glass.

The Tulare County sheriff's office said an investigation was underway.

OBITUARIES

Roy W. Crane

Roy W. Crane, 70-year-old retired postal supervisor, collapsed at Scott's Hardware Store in San Rafael yesterday and was pronounced dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 1:35 p.m.

Crane of 769 Diablo Avenue, Novato, apparently died of natural causes, according to the Marin County Coroner's office. He was a part-time employee at the hardware store.

Crane had been in the postal service in San Francisco for 30 years, and was a resident of San Francisco until he moved to Marin in 1945.

He was a native of California.

Surviving are his wife, Genevieve, of Novato; two sons, Austin Crane of Novato and Denis Crane of Huntington, N.Y.; a daughter, Royna Johnson of San Rafael; a brother, Harold Crane of Richmond, a sister, Edith Crane of San Francisco, and seven grandchildren.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 9 a.m. Saturday at Our Lady of Loretto Church, Novato. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

HENRY RESPINI

Henry A. Respini, 83, a retired real estate agent and bookkeeper,died yesterday in a Petaluma rest home after a long illness.

Respini was born in Petaluma and educated in that city. He was a bookkeeper for many businesses in Petaluma and worked as a real estate agent in the Southern Sonoma area before poor health forced his retirement.

Survivors are three sons, H. Alden Respini of Oakland, John Respini of Ruth, Trinity County, and Richard Respini of Redwood Valley, Mendocino County; a daughter, Ellen Respini of California City, Kern County, and six grandchidlren.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Petaluma with burial in Calvary Cemetery. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Sorenson Mortuary, Petaluma.

WILLIAM MANCEBO

Funeral for William C. Mancebo, a former employee of the City of Mill Valley, was today in Mill Valley. Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Mancebo, 69, died Tuesday, in a local hospital after a long illness.

Mancobo was born in Mountain View and lived most of his life in Marin County. He had worked 14 years as custodian for the City of Mill Valley, retiring in 1967.

He was a member of UPPEC, Portuguese Lodge of Mill Valley.

He is survived by his wife, Ada, of the home address, 3 Linden Lane, Homestead Valley; and two brothers, Henry Brum, of Mill Valley, and Edward Olivera of Fremont.

MRS. OLMSTED

Harriett C. Olmsted, a resident of Marin for 13 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 90.

She was born in Boston and had spent 28 years in California. Her husband, Frederic A. Olmstead, who died last year, was a contract negotiator for the Oakland Ordnance Depot.

She is survived by a son, Edwin L. Olmstead of Pacific Grove, Monterey County.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley, 285 Miller Avenue, with burial at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Friends may call at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley, until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

AINO LESLEY

Memorial service for Aino Lesley of 98 San Marino Drive, San Rafael, were held today in Trinity Lutheran Church in San Rafael.

Mrs. Lesley, 42, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in Longview, Wash., but moved to California 35 years ago. She had lived in Marin County the past two years.

She is survived by her husband, Donald J. Lesley; four sons, Donald J., Fletcher M., Marcus J. and Randall M Lesley, all of the home, and a daughter Aino K. Lesley of Santa Clara.

She willed her body to University of California Medical School.

WALTER HANSEN

Private funeral for Walter E. Hansen of Mill Valley was held today in Palo Alto. Hansen, 79, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Wisconsin, he had lived in California 60 years and in Marin five years, residing at 4 Plymouth Avenue. Before his retirement he was a wholesale antique dealer in Sunnyvale and San Francisco.

Hansen is survived by his wife, Margaret, of Mill Valley; two daughters, Edith Lefort of Mill Valley and Jean Van Zandt of Sunnyvale and two sons, Ralph Hansen of Palo Alto and George Hansen of Los Altos.

Burial will be in Alta Mesa Memorial Park, Palo Alto.

LOUISE GARIBALDI

A Requiem Mass for Louise Garibaldi, sister of Elvra Ponzini of Corte Madera, will be at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at St. Christopher's Church, San Jose.

Mrs. Garibaldi, 87, a native of San Francisco, died Tuesday. She lived 43 years in San Jose.

Her husband, the late Filippo Garibaldi founded the California Macaroni Co. in San Jose which he operated until his death in 1943.

Mrs. Garibaldi is also survived by four daughters, Elvira La Torre, and Romilda Muzzio, both of San Jose, Angela Fiori of San Francisco and Mae Mitchell of Portland, Ore. and two other sisters, Mary Hansen of Pacifica and Ida Ciari of San Jose.

Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. today at Chapel of Flowers, 900 South Second Street, San Jose. Burial will be in Santa Clara Catholic Cemetery, Santa Clara.

ANTIWAR

told they were under arrest or allowed to contact friends or relatives. A number of bystanders also were picked up in some arrests.

A police department spokesman said 1,873 demonstrators were still in custody at 9:30 a.m. EDT today. They were being processed out either on bond or collateral.

Two Chicago Seven defendants, Rennie Davis and John Froines, were arrested previously on charges of conspiracy to violate the rights of citizens and to interfere with government employees.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld a federal judge's ruling that demonstrators still in jail from Monday's protests must either be charged specifically or released immediately. D.C. Superior Court Judge Alfred J. Burka, however, refused early today to order the immediate release of all those arrested during demonstrations at the Capitol Wednesday. Burka said he could not rule without first hearing a trial of the request for a writ of habeas corpus brought by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson, reponding to the storm of sonctroversy surrounding his department's arrest procedures — including absence of specific charges — issued a statement Wednesday taking full responsibility for the arrests.

At the University of Maryland campus 10 miles away, 1,000 demonstrators blocked major highways resulting in nine injured protesters and nine injured police. Gov. Marvin Mandel declared a state of emergency and National Guardsmen patrolled the campus today.

Antiwar protesters Wednesday also blocked traffic in San Francisco. A young blonde securities analyst, who marched in an antiwar rally last month, snuffed out a burning American flag against her body.

The demonstrations coincided with Kent State University ceremonies on the first anniversary of the slaying of four students during an antiwar rally. There also were protests in New York, Boston and Chicago.

Peace demonstrators moved against Selective Service headquarters and military recruiters in Phoenix; Philadelphia; Missoula, Mont.; Eugene, Ore.; Salt Lake City; San Rafael and Fresno, Calif. In Pittsburgh, 25 young men armed with toy pop guns shot 25 women dressed as Vietnamese in a "massacre."

Eight peace demonstrators in Philadelphia attempted and failed to arrest the regional supervisor of the Selective Service Systems for alleged war crimes.

At least 15 young persons were arrested during afternoon and evening skirmishes on the 35,000-student campus of the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Demonstrators also marched in Milwaukee and before that protest was over six young persons who were under arrest.

Numerous antiwar rallies in the New York metropolitan area for the most part were peaceful with more than 10,000 persons attending a rally in mid-Manhattan to hear speakers demanding an immediate end to U.S. involvement in Indochina.

There were brief scuffles in Central Park between groups of students who fought for control of the podium during an antiwar meeting.

About a thousand antiwar protesters demonstrated outside bank and oil company headquarters in San Francisco, then broke into small groups which committed vandalism and blocked traffic in the city's financial district.

They were pursued by police, who arrested 102 persons, most of them for failure to disperse or disturbing the peace. At least five persons were hurt, none seriously.

The vandalism included paint spread on the sidewalk in front of the Bank of America's world headquarters and windows broken at three other banks. Traffic, including the city's famed cable cars, was disrupted temporarily.

Closed Session

The Dixie School District Board of Trustees will hold a special closed meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the administration office at 35 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, to hear charges against and possibly fire an employee, according to Joseph B. Goff, assistant superintendent.

Two $1,000 Scholarships Are Given

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Students from Novato and Petaluma last night were awarded $1,000 scholarships in the annual Bank of America Achievement Awards program at the Hilton Hotel. Two Marin students received $250 awards.

Winners of the $1,000 first place scholarship are Gregory Griffin of 160 Country Club Drive, Novato and Wendy Dragoo of 11 Haven Drive, Petaluma. Griffin's award was for his studies in science and mathematics at Novato High School; Miss Dragoo, a student at Petaluma High School, won her award for work in liberal arts. Only four top awards were made in the Bay Area.

Other winners were Dorene Closson of 353 Hyacinth Way, San Rafael, $250 for her work in vocational arts at Terra Linda High School and Frances Cook of 403 Magee Avenue, Mill Valley, $250 for her work in fine arts at Tamalpais High School.

Winners were selected on the basis of academic and extracurricular activity records and an interview before a panel of judges consisting of business and civic leaders.

The awards were presented by Al Gilman, regional vice president in charge of all bank branches in the North Bay and North Coast counties.

Mrs. Kinzer, using a bullhorn, attempted to order the protesters from the building. Her voice did not carry over the mournful refrains of peace songs.

The demonstrators, once removed from the building, were "handcuffed" with plastic strip devices and loaded aboard a jail-bound bus.

Four juveniles were taken separately to juvenile hall.

Thirty-three persons were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of unlawful assembly, failure to disperse and malicious obstruction of a public place.

Within four hours all were released on their promise to appear in Marin Municipal Court later.

Released to appear Tuesday were:

Steven John Loegering, 19, of 1132 Second Street, Novato; James Gordon Digby, 22, of 672 Cherry Street, Novato; Neil Lionel Edwards, 26, of 8 Laurel Street, Mill Valley; Richard Carol Sloan, 35, of Lagunitas; Michael Drew Mendelson, 25, of Berkeley; Eric Signard Suenson, 20, of 15 La Crescenta Way, San Rafael; Michael Alan Glass, 18, of 1 Shell Court, Mill Valley; Kenneth John Cottrell, 23, of 229 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley, and Ronald Keith Nicholas, 32, of 672 Cherry Street, Novato.

Released to appear next Wednesday were:

Wendi Anne Killins, 19, and Wilmar Eugene Friesen, 21, both of 1 Shell Court, Mill Valley; Kenneth William Bott, 19, of 100 East Manor Drive, Mill Valley; Robert Alan Le Blane, 23, of 406A D Street, San Rafael; Gregory Carlton Fearon, 22, of 162 Hillside Avenue, San Rafael; Carol Marie Quellet, 20, of 111 H Street, San Rafael.

Michele Tormanen, 19, of 86 Laurel Lane, Fairfax; Deborah Lee Neill, 18, of 33 Jefferson Street, San Rafael; James Russell Allen, 23, of 28 Chester Avenue, Fairfax; Mark Nolan Werner, 22, of 229 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito, and Daryl Kent Grossman, 23, of 817 D Street, San Rafael.

Released to appear next Thursday were:

Released to appear May 18 were:

Debbie Webb, 20, of 21 Stetson Avenue, Kentfield; Robert Nelson Well, 24, of 610 Davidson Street, Novato; Randy Clifton Patterson, 22, of 201 Kent Avenue, Apt. 8, Kentfield; James Kimo Campbell, 24, of 50 Fremont Road, San Rafael; William Griffin Zane, 26, of 127B Laurel Drive, Fairfax, and Lynn Zimmerman, 21, of 544 Gate R Road, Sausalito.

Dr. Hiester added that despite the tonnage figures, "I don't really know what's happening." He also objected to the failure to round off the figures, citing a claim that automobiles generated 6,130 tons of contaminants a day.

"We're fooling ourselves and fooling the people who read them," he said of such precise figures.

Callaghan acknowledged that the figures were engineering estimates, but good estimates, accurate within 15 per cent of actual tonnages.

His claim of accuracy was challenged by Dr. David Mage, a chemical engineer and professor at San Jose State College. Mage said his measurements last month of Carbon monoxide in San Jose were 120 per cent higher than those at the same time by the district elsewhere in the same city.

Director Dianne Feinstein, a San Francisco supervisor, and board chairman Victor Calvo, a Santa Clara supervisor, stated their disbelief of the staff's claim of a 17 per cent cut in emissions. So did director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View city councilman, who proposed that major industries monitor their emissions continously instead of having district inspectors check them periodically.

Callaghan said industry's views should be solicited before considering such a requirement.

Mrs. Will Siri of the West Contra Costa County Conservation League observed from the audience that the claimed reduction was "not evident to us — we still have sore throats and headaches in North Richmond."

The only director to defend the staff report was Robert W. Hoyer, Clayton city councilman. He objected that criticism of the report was "somewhat unscientific."

Eleven of the 12 board members were present.

Dr. Milton Feldstein, district director of technical services, cited figures he said showed generally improved air quality over the past year.

The annual staff report said that toal emissions were cut last year by 1,570 tons a day to a new low of 7,611. It said this was the largest one-year reduction since estimates first were made for 1955.

"For the first time, estimated daily emissions have fallen below the 1955 rate, which was 8,260 tons a day," it declared. This was despite a 49 per cent growth of population and a 96 per cent increase in the number of automobiles since 1955, it said.

If no air pollution controls had been imposed, the total would have grown to 16,700 tons a day last year, according to the report.

It attributed the 1970 drop in emissions to the closing of two major industrials plants, the prohibition of backyard burning, the continuing shift by oil refineries and power plants from oil to gas fuel, and improved controls on vehicle emissions.

The report detailed contaminants by the 90 sources emitting over one-tenth of a ton a day, all but nine of them emitting under 10 tons a day.

Of these nine, the top five accounted for almost one third of the 1,479 tons from all stationary sources. They were: American Semlting and Refining Co. of Crockett, 93.7 tons; Pacific Gas and Electric Company's nine plants combined, 86.4 tons; Standard Oil Co. of California of Richmond, 73 tons; Phillips Petroleum Co. of Martinez, 70.2 tons, and Shell Oil Co. of Martinez, 53.4 tons.

TALKS

ter the date of U.S. withdrawal has been set "all the troops participating in the war can then rapidly regain their homes."

There was more talk today about cease-fires in Vietnam but no progress toward one at today's 112th session of the talks that have dragged along for two years with no visible sign of progress.

Bruce referred to a cease-fire proposal last week by Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, the chief Viet Cong negotiator, as a "sham" and suggested instead immediate negotiations on President Nixon's call for a cease-fire-in-place.

In her proposal last week Madame Binh said the Viet Cong would cease firing on American soldiers who "abstain from hostile actions," an apparent follow up to a Viet Cong call for Americans to desert. She expanded on this today and said it applied to America's allies fighting in Vietnam.

Throughout the meeting was the oft-stated Communist position that there can be no progress until Nixon names a date for total U.S. withdrawal.

Rogers In Israel With Cairo Plan

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived in the Israeli capital today with a new peace plan from Cairo. He told the Israelis they had met the agonies of war and now must meet the agony of making peace.

Rogers' arrival statement in Tel Aviv where he landed on a flight from Cairo via Cyprus served to bring out the differences of opinion between Washington and Jerusalem over what has been termed in Washington as Israel's intransigence.

Cairo dispatches also indicated sharp differences between the United States and Egypt over a Middle East settlement.

"This is an unusual time in our history," Rogers said in Tel Aviv. "The nations in this area have the opportunity to take wise and decisive action. There are risks in agreeing to peace— -there are greater risks in failing to do so."

A crowd estimated by police at 70 persons appeared at the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv with signs reading "Rogers Go Home?" The demonstrators oppose the Rogers plan calling for withdrawal from Arab territory. But bigger demonstrations in Jerusalem were canceled by police request.

Rogers, cheered by American tourists at the King David Hotel in Jerusalem, began his Israeli mission by talking first with David Ben-Gurion, one of the founders of the Israeli republic and a man who has joined Rogers in asking for Israeli withdrawals in favor of a lasting peace.

Rogers, who conferred earlier today in Cairo with President Anwar Sadat, quoted President Nixon as saying Israel's security can come finally only from peace with the Arabs.

Rogers, carrying a letter from Nixon to Prime Minister Golda Meir, said he wasconvinced there may not be a "better opportunity for a long time to come" to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

must be done to impart new momentum to the negotiations under the auspices of Ambassador (Gunnar V.) Jarring," Rogers said before departing for Jerusalem.

from countries wanting marks in exchange, the West German Bundesbank (central bank) announced Wednesday it would stop buying dollars.

Banks in Austria, Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands followed suit. Portugal suspended all foreign exchange transactions because of the turmoil. The Bank of Israel suspended trading in German marks, Swiss and French francs and Dutch guilders. Trading in marks was suspended in Japan to bolster the dollar's value.

Britain, France, Italy and the Scandinavian countries continued to support the dollar by buying it at the lowest rate they could.

The dollar is in a unique position in international economic affairs because all other currencies in non-Communist countries are valued officially in terms of dollars. The United States, therefore, could not devalue the dollar, as other countries have their currencies, because any revaluation automatically would bring corresponding changes in the worth of other currencies.

If the mark revalued upward, however, the dollar would buy fewer marks and the effect would be one of a dollar devaluation.

It was inconceivable to many Americans flooding European capitals at the start of the heavy tourist season that Europeans were rolling in the welcome mat for the almighty dollar. Some reacted with open resentment and anger.

"We may cut our trip short and may even be prepared to say to hell with Europe and God bless America," Ted Markovic, a film editor from Glen Rock, N.J., said in Paris.

Mrs. Sally Senator of Pittsburgh, also in Paris, summed up her group's feelings this way: "The (Europeans) love the almighty dollar as we see it. They grab every penny out of it. They've forgotten the Marshall plan."

While banks in Paris and London continued to accept dollars, their counterparts in West Germany, Switzerland, The Netherlands, Austria, Belgium and Portugal closed their doors to American money. Some hotels also refused dollars.

But Americans generally were able to make other arrangements.

German Shipowners both advised the government against either an upward revaluation or a floating mark. They said either move would reduce the competitiveness of German exporters and shipowners, without striking at the cause of inflation, which they consider to be unjustified wage demands.

During the last monetary crisis in September, 1969, the Bonn government decided on a temporarily floating mark as a solution. After allowing it to float for just under four weeks, it was given a new fixed parity near the price at which it had levelled off in free trade.

The American dollar was the object of the heavy currency speculation that swept Europe this week, and it took so bad a buffeting that the West German government closed all money and gold markets until Monday. Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Austria also refused to buy U.S. dollars.

The money crisis moved on to Asia today when Japanese banks and markets opened following a one-day holiday Wednesday. The Japanese central bank bought more than $200 million in the morning session of the foreign exchange market.

Japanese Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda said the yen would not be revalued upward although it was one of the "strong" currencies being exchanged for dollars.

The reason the dollar is under attack is that people want to sell dollars to buy other currencies —German marks, Swiss francs or Japanese yen. Bankers, businessmen and speculators in Europe have been betting either the mark would be revalued upward or the dollar would be devalued.

While Germany's economy is booming, the United States has made deep outlays on the war in Indochina and its balance of payments deficit has been worsening.

Devaluation of the dollar was unlikely since it would not only lose value against such "strong" currencies as the mark, but also against all other currencies.

Vandals Hit Bank Branch

TIPTON (UPI) — Windows and the front glass doors at the Bank of America here were shattered by vandals early today.

Bank manager M. Abramson said three windows and both glass doors were broken. He estimated damage at between $500 and $1,000.

He said it appeared that a pipe or other blunt instrument was used to smash the glass.

The Tulare County sheriff's office said an investigation was underway.

LAND OF BROKEN LIVES

Two cars and a house teeter on the brink of a giant hole left Tuesday night by a cave-in at St. Jean Vianney, Quebec, which swallowed 40 homes in tons of muck described as "cold lava" and left three persons dead and 28 missing. When dawn arrived yesterday, mass evacuations in the small town of 2,000 began. According to officials many of the missing are feared to be children. The slides continued last night and there was the possibility of more today.

Reds Set Cease-Fire For Buddha

SAIGON, (UPI)—The Viet Cong tonight declared a 48-hour cease-fire in South Vietnam on the occasion of the 2,515th birth date of Buddha. The Saigon allies previously had announced they would observe a 24-hour truce.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam, political arm of the Viet Cong, announced in a communique the Communist cease-fire will run from 7 a.m. Saigon time Saturday (7 p.m. EDT Friday to 7 a.m. Monday.

The Communist truce declaration, broadcast over the Viet Cong's Liberation Radio and monitored in Saigon, came as a surprise. Allied commands had speculated the lateness of an announcement probably meant the Reds would not go along with the government cease-fire.

President Nguyen Van Thieu earlier today announced South Vietnam and its troop-contributing allies, the United States, South Korea, Thailand, Australia and New Zealand, would hold a 24-hour truce from noon Saturday (midnight EDT Friday) to noon Sunday.

Neither the Communist nor the allied cease-fires will apply to neighboring Cambodia and Laos where, along with South Vietnam, more than 70 per cent of the population is Buddhist.

The Communist communique said "that in respect for freedom of worship of the South Vietnamese people" the PRG had decided to stop attacks on troops of the Saigon government and its allies for 48 hours.

Use Of Rail Lines Drops In Britain

LONDON (UPI)—Britons had the use of only half the number of state-owned railway stations in 1969 compared with 10 years previously, official figures show.

There were 9,375 miles of route open to passenger traffic a drop from 14,063 miles in 1959. The number of passenger stations fell from 5,060 to 2,511 in the period.

Homeowners Group Picks New Slate

About 50 residents of Mill Valley's Enchanted Knolls attended the yearly general meeting of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association last night and elected a board of directors and officers for this year.

New board members are Nancy Wrisley, Richard Theide, John Chelini and Robert Rosson Jr. Retained on the board were Robert B. Rankin, Louis G. Millin and Carolyn Myers.

Rankin was reelected president and Mrs. Myers secretary. Other officers chosen were Millen, vice president, and Theide, treasurer.

Rankin said residents agreed to petition the city of Mill Valley for traffic signals at East Blithedale Avenue and Lomita Drive.

One resident was involved in an accident at the corner and —others have had close calls, Rankin said, because motorists often fail to stop at stop signs there.

Attempt Made To Set Blaze In Courthouse

Someone tried last night to set fire to the old Courthouse in San Rafael.

San Rafael firemen reported today that furniture and papers were piled in a room at the Fifth Street entrance and ignited. amage was estimated at $250.

At 8:19 p.m. an unidentified person went to the main firestation saying that smoke was coming from the building. Firemen quickly quelled the blaze before it could spread.

A witness, Frank Dantonio of Redwood City, said he was parked on Fourth Street in front of the building when he noticed three men enter the building through the front door, San Rafael police reported.

One man came out and then reentered the building, Dantonio said. The three came out and one man went to the water fountain at Fourth and Court streets to wash his hands, Cantonio said. He reported that he was about to call police because of the suspicious behavior of the men when the fire engines arrived.

Police reported that half of an aluminum front glass door had been broken to gain entry.

Soldier Arrested In Burglary Probe

A 21-year-old Larkspur soldier was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary after police received a report that he and another man were acting suspiciously around a Corte Madera home.

Arrested was Ronald Berg Goodrich, of 429 Elm Avenue, after he was identified by a witness as one of the men seen leaving the home of Henry Hulett, 140 Buena Vista at 6:30 p.m.

Goodrich was stopped as he walked along a nearby street. In his pocket, officers said, they found several Kennedy half dollars which were believed stolen during another residential burglary earlier that day.

Nothing was missing from the Hulett home, officers said.

Goodrich was booked into Marin County Jail where he was released on $1,000 bail and scheduled to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Brainerd Reelected

James Brainerd was elected last night to a third term as president of the Alto-Richardson Bay Volunteer Firemen's Association. Other new officers are: Laurent Haines, secretary; Harold Roberts, treasurer; Fred Foss, property clerk and Paul Mason and John Polacchi Sr., directors.

LAND OF BROKEN LIVES

Two cars and a house teeter on the brink of a giant hole left Tuesday night by a cave-in at St. Jean Vianney, Quebec, which swallowed 40 homes in tons of muck described as "cold lava" and left three persons dead and 28 missing. When dawn arrived yesterday, mass evacuations in the small town of 2,000 began. According to officials many of the missing are feared to be children. The slides continued last night and there was the possibility of more today.

Reds Set Cease-Fire For Buddha

SAIGON, (UPI)—The Viet Cong tonight declared a 48-hour cease-fire in South Vietnam on the occasion of the 2,515th birth date of Buddha. The Saigon allies previously had announced they would observe a 24-hour truce.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam, political arm of the Viet Cong, announced in a communique the Communist cease-fire will run from 7 a.m. Saigon time Saturday (7 p.m. EDT Friday to 7 a.m. Monday.

The Communist truce declaration, broadcast over the Viet Cong's Liberation Radio and monitored in Saigon, came as a surprise. Allied commands had speculated the lateness of an announcement probably meant the Reds would not go along with the government cease-fire.

President Nguyen Van Thieu earlier today announced South Vietnam and its troop-contributing allies, the United States, South Korea, Thailand, Australia and New Zealand, would hold a 24-hour truce from noon Saturday (midnight EDT Friday) to noon Sunday.

Neither the Communist nor the allied cease-fires will apply to neighboring Cambodia and Laos where, along with South Vietnam, more than 70 per cent of the population is Buddhist.

The Communist communique said "that in respect for freedom of worship of the South Vietnamese people" the PRG had decided to stop attacks on troops of the Saigon government and its allies for 48 hours.

Secretary Of State To Challenge Campaign Ruling

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said today he would appeal directly to the state supreme court a lower court ruling that permits secret contributions to campaigns for or against measures on election ballots.

"If the lower court decision is allowed to stand, California voters will soon witness the most dishonest campaigns in America," Brown told a news conference at the Ambassador Hotel.

"The decision invites every special interest group in the country to rush into California and trick the voters with fraudulent advertising."

Brown had brought suit to force disclosure of campaign funds used to defeat Proposition 18 in the Nov. 3 election. It would have permitted use of a portion of gasoline tax funds for smog control and for development of a rapid transit system in the metropolitan areas of the state.

Oil companies had bitterly fought the proposition. Among the defendants was a group called "Californians Against the Street and Road Tax Trap."

Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall ruled Tuesday that the Elections Code section under which the suit was brought was unconstitutional. He said the section discriminated against contributors to campaigns involving initiative measures and favored donors to individual candidates.

Brown said he was taking the "extraordinary step" of bypassing the lower appelate courts because the matter was of such extreme urgency.

"Big corporations that pollute our air and water now have official court authority to run ballot campaigns behind a cloak of secrecy and I believe the Supreme Court must immediately correct this by upholding the public's right to know exactly who is supporting and opposing ballot measures," he said.

The lawsuit had been filed against three oil companies charging they gave a total of $95,000 in anonymous contributions in the campaign against Proposition 18.

Marshall dismissed the suit after defense attorneys, including those for Gulf, Mobil and Standard of California, challenged the constitutionality of the law.

Brown said his appeal will be filed early this week.

Prohibition went into effect Jan. 17, 1920 and was repealed Dec. 5, 1933.

Education Goals Task Force Named

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A 15-member committee of business and education leadeers was named Tuesday to draft a master plan for California higher education covering the remainder of the 1970s and the 1980s.

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education established the advisory committee to re-evaluate the 1960 master plan in light of increasing enrollment and decreasing financial resources.

Council director Owen Albert Knorr said the council wants "some brainstorming about who's going to go to college, how are they going to get there, how are we going to pay for it —the basic issues."

He said the committee would probably submit its report to the 1972 legislature.

Named to the advisory panel were Carlyle Reed, publisher of the Sacramento Union; David Hurford, Los Angeles; Donald Hart, Bakerfield; Louis Heilbron, San Francisco; Gordon Marshall, San Gabriel; Theodore Meriam, Chico; Burnham Emerson, San Francisco; Stanley Legro, San Diego;

Trial Set In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A San Francisco man has pleaded innocent in Sonoma County Superior Court to charges growing out of the stabbing of a woman in Petaluma April 11.

A June 8 jury trial was set for Robert J. Rector, 36.

He is accused of assault with intent to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon in the stabbing of Icalee Fears, 34, of Petaluma, during a quarrel in Mrs. Fears's home.

Peace Marcher Saves The Flag From Burning

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An attractive blonde who marched in a peace parade last month saved a burning American flag ignited by protesters Wednesday when she pulled it from a pole and snuffed the flames out against her body.

Marcy Taylor, 25, a securities analyst for the Bank of America, rushed out of the firm's world headquarters into an antiwar demonstration on an outdoor plaza to extinguish the flames.

Miss Taylor, who was not hurt, kept the flag-25 per cent of it burned. She refused to return it to the demonstrators who had ignited the banner and tried to get it back to light again.

"I believe in peace," said Miss Taylor, who marched in a massive April 24 antiwar protest parade. "I will march for it anytime. But this kind of thing is wrong."

Secretary Of State To Challenge Campaign Ruling

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said today he would appeal directly to the state supreme court a lower court ruling that permits secret contributions to campaigns for or against measures on election ballots.

"If the lower court decision is allowed to stand, California voters will soon witness the most dishonest campaigns in America," Brown told a news conference at the Ambassador Hotel.

"The decision invites every special interest group in the country to rush into California and trick the voters with fraudulent advertising."

Brown had brought suit to force disclosure of campaign funds used to defeat Proposition 18 in the Nov. 3 election. It would have permitted use of a portion of gasoline tax funds for smog control and for development of a rapid transit system in the metropolitan areas of the state.

Oil companies had bitterly fought the proposition. Among the defendants was a group called "Californians Against the Street and Road Tax Trap."

Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall ruled Tuesday that the Elections Code section under which the suit was brought was unconstitutional. He said the section discriminated against contributors to campaigns involving initiative measures and favored donors to individual candidates.

Brown said he was taking the "extraordinary step" of bypassing the lower appelate courts because the matter was of such extreme urgency.

"Big corporations that pollute our air and water now have official court authority to run ballot campaigns behind a cloak of secrecy and I believe the Supreme Court must immediately correct this by upholding the public's right to know exactly who is supporting and opposing ballot measures," he said.

The lawsuit had been filed against three oil companies charging they gave a total of $95,000 in anonymous contributions in the campaign against Proposition 18.

Marshall dismissed the suit after defense attorneys, including those for Gulf, Mobil and Standard of California, challenged the constitutionality of the law.

Brown said his appeal will be filed early this week.

Prohibition went into effect Jan. 17, 1920 and was repealed Dec. 5, 1933.

Winifred Baker To Conduct At Cathedral

Winifred Baker of San Rafael will conduct the Bach B Minor Mass as the first major choral-orchestral concert at the new St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco on May 23 at 2 p.m.

The performance will offer the first opportunity to evaluate the cathedral's acoustics with orchestra, organ and a large choir.

The choir will be the combined 185-voice San Francisco Civic Chorale and Marin Winifred Baker chorale, both regularly conducted by Miss Baker, and the 24-piece baroque orchestra will include many of the instrumentalists who played in last year's Bach festival in Carmel.

Soloists will include soprano Gwen Curatilo of Terra Linda, in her last San Francisco appearance before she leaves for a year's tour of Germany, where she will sing in Munich in October.

The concert is sponsored by the San Francisco Art Commission.

Guilty Verdict In 1969 Case

Edward K. Wachsman of San Rafael was not found guilty of a public nuisance charge in 1969, as may have been implied in an article in Tuesday's Independent-Journal.

Wachsman was found guilty in Marin Municipal Court in November 1969 of keeping a horse on property near his home without a city permit. A public nuisance charge was dismissed at that time.

Wachsman, who has continued to seek city approval for two horses on his property, failed again Monday night when the San Rafael City Council overruled a planning commission decision granting him a permit for the horses.

Planning Commission Nod For Housing Proposals

Final approval for two housing developments with a total of 30 units has been granted by the Tiburon Planning Commission, planning aide Jeanne McLean reported yesterday.

Approved were a 24-unit townhouse development on Red Hill and a six-lot single family subdivision in Porto Marino Estates.

Mrs. McLean said the townhouses are to be built on by Leonard Chan on Red Hill Circle. The single-family houses, she said, will be constructed by Deak and Co. on Geldert Drive.

Approval of the Porto Marino development was contingent on dedication of a path between Hacienda and Geldert drives for the use of Del Mar School pupils.

Consideration of a master plan for a three-story apartment-office building on Juanita Lane was continued until May 17 to allow the applicant, Robert E. Boat, to submit new drawings.

Mrs. McLean said the new plans will show traffic circulation and parking and the use of the existing El Borro restaurant, behind which the new structure is to be built.

Fire-O-Rama Set Saturday

Southern Sonoma fire units will take part Saturday in the annual Fire-O-Rama in Santa Rosa sponsored by the Sonoma County Firemen's Association.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. with a parade of 41 fire units, both new and vintage, from Fifth and E streets to the county fairgrounds. Demonstrations of fire-fighting techniques, including the laying of fire hose by a state Division of Forestry helicopter, will begin at 1 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

Besides the demonstrations, the Rohnert Park and Windsor fire departments will compete in a water fight.

Spelling Bee Winners

First in last Friday's contest was Kevin Lewis from S. Rafael's School; second, Nadine Niess from St. Anselm's School, and third, Daniel Dubuc from St. Patrick's School. The contest was held at St. Anselm's Parish Hall.

Meet Rus Walton, Columnist For I-J

RUS WALTON
New to editorial page

A new California political columnist is appearing this week on the editorial page of the Independent-Journal and will be a regular feature hereafter.

Actually, Rus Walton is not new either to reporting or to the Sacramento political scene. But his column is new to the Independent-Journal.

His "Capitol Report" will appear two or three times each week, alternating with the familiar "Affairs of State" column by Henry C. McArthur.

Walton is a former reporter and editor, was national public relations director of Citizens for Goldwater in 1964, and served until recently as secretary for program development in Gov. Ronald Reagan's office.

In addition to writing his column, he is now on the staff of California Journal, a monthly devoted to state governmental affairs published in Sacramento.

As may be inferred from his background, Walton is a political conservative.

PICTURE HER ON MOTHER'S DAY

Family albums are generally full of pictures of the baby and the growing family at each stage of life, and that's all to the good. But there are occasions that remind us to focus on the adults in the family.

Mother's Day is such a time. We forget how many good reasons to photograph Mom there are. For one thing, everyone in the family wants pictures of her, so you can hardly take too many. For another, she's too often neglected in the picture parade.

And that's a mistake for the very good reason that mothers make marvelous photo subjects. Show her with her children and grandchildren as "props," or in the home she has created. With Dad, to reveal another side of here . . . and all by herself. If you can capture on film what she means to you and to us, you'll have a prize-winning picture for any album.

For Mother's Day and every special occasion, be sure you have plenty of film on hand. See us for the right film for your needs . . . and for expert developing and photo finishing, too.

Education Goals Task Force Named

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A 15-member committee of business and education leadeers was named Tuesday to draft a master plan for California higher education covering the remainder of the 1970s and the 1980s.

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education established the advisory committee to re-evaluate the 1960 master plan in light of increasing enrollment and decreasing financial resources.

Council director Owen Albert Knorr said the council wants "some brainstorming about who's going to go to college, how are they going to get there, how are we going to pay for it —the basic issues."

He said the committee would probably submit its report to the 1972 legislature.

Named to the advisory panel were Carlyle Reed, publisher of the Sacramento Union; David Hurford, Los Angeles; Donald Hart, Bakerfield; Louis Heilbron, San Francisco; Gordon Marshall, San Gabriel; Theodore Meriam, Chico; Burnham Emerson, San Francisco; Stanley Legro, San Diego;

Trial Set In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A San Francisco man has pleaded innocent in Sonoma County Superior Court to charges growing out of the stabbing of a woman in Petaluma April 11.

A June 8 jury trial was set for Robert J. Rector, 36.

He is accused of assault with intent to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon in the stabbing of Icalee Fears, 34, of Petaluma, during a quarrel in Mrs. Fears's home.

Peace Marcher Saves The Flag From Burning

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An attractive blonde who marched in a peace parade last month saved a burning American flag ignited by protesters Wednesday when she pulled it from a pole and snuffed the flames out against her body.

Marcy Taylor, 25, a securities analyst for the Bank of America, rushed out of the firm's world headquarters into an antiwar demonstration on an outdoor plaza to extinguish the flames.

Miss Taylor, who was not hurt, kept the flag-25 per cent of it burned. She refused to return it to the demonstrators who had ignited the banner and tried to get it back to light again.

"I believe in peace," said Miss Taylor, who marched in a massive April 24 antiwar protest parade. "I will march for it anytime. But this kind of thing is wrong."

STARS ABOVE

Hunting Dogs Are Interesting

By SHERMAN WALICER

The Hunting Dogs make up a constellation that is also dim and rather difficult to trace out, but there are a great many objects of telescopic interest within its borders.

The dogs belong to Bootes (the Herdsman or Bear Driver) and are restrained by a leash as they chase the Great Bear around the pole star. The northern dog is named Asterion and the other is Chara.

To locate the Hunting Dogs, face southward at 9 p.m. and look at the region of sky that is almost exactly overhead.

The constellation does have one fairly bright second-magnitude star, Cor Caroli (the Heart of Charles. It was named for Charles II of England at a time when it was the fashion to curry favor with royalty by naming a star or planet for them. Herschel, you may remember, tried to name the planet he discovered, Uranus, for George III of England, without success.

There is a star cluster (M-3) in this constellation which you might see as a faint hazy spot, but only if conditions are ideal and you have good eyesight. It is made up of thousands of suns and is known as the Whirlpool Nebula. It is more than 60 light-years across.

University Changes To Bilingual Status

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—The University of Texas at San Antonio will be the first state-supported bilingual institution of higher education in the fall of 1973.

Plans call for the new school to have one or more bilingual professors in every major department. Students will spend half their time in English classes and half in Spanish.

ACLU Asks For Equal TV Time

NEW YORK (UPI) —ABC, CBS and NBC have been asked by the American Civil Liberties Union to provide time for immediate response to televised presidential speeches by persons who hold opposing views.

The best way of achieving wide debate, said the ACLU in a letter to the network presidents, is to obtain texts of presidential speeches before broadcast and make them available for persons with contrary views. Responses could be prepared by those disagreeing with the president's positions, and network commentators could provide the public with such diverse views.

However, the ACLU said, diversity would be best served by giving air time to advocates of other positions.

Families Get More Milk Than Realized

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Families probably are getting more "milk" in their diet than they realize. The extra comes from milk products.

The Nebraska Extension Service reports, for instance, that to make one pound of cheese, you would have to start with 10 pounds of milk.

Board Balks On Bennett's Utility Move

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Board of Equalization rejected a request by William Bennett yesterday tnat it rescind its action in lowering the market value of the state's 10 biggest public utilities.

Bennett, of Kentfield, a board member, offered the motion after telling his three colleagues on the board they had adopted "an Alice in Wonderland method of assessment."

After an hour of lively debate, the motion failed for lack of a second. Then, in behalf of a group called "Consumers Arise Now," Bennett submitted a petition seeking to accomplish the same purpose. It was filed for later consideration.

"Gentlemen, you are giving the whole ball game away this morning," Bennett said moments before his motion was turned down.

"You have just given the public utilities a massive windfall and have been doing it for 13 years."

In a voice heavy with sarcasm, Bennett said that by its action the board was shifting the tax burden "from the poor, downtrodden public utilities to the affluent homeowners and taxpayers of California."

Board members John Lynch and George Reilly defended the means by which the board determined fair market value for public utilities.

"The legislature has looked into the operations of this board on at least three occasions and has found it to be moving along acceptable lines in its determination of assessments," Reilly said.

At a meeting Monday, the four-member board voted to set the assessment at 29 per cent of full value. The level in 1970 was 31 per cent.

Auditorium Name Decision Delayed

Marin County supervisors have postponed to May 18 a decision on whether to drop the word "veterans" from the name of the new auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center.

The supervisors said Tuesday they wanted to learn public reaction to the request from the Marin County United Veterans' Council that the structure — long referred to as the Marin Veterans Memorial Auditorium — not have any reference to veterans in its name.

Arthur E. Wedemeyer Jr., in a letter to the board, wrote that the council members unanimously voted for the deletion. W. P. (Doc) Duhamel, told the board, "It's a war memorial, not a veterans' memorial. We originated the idea, but wanted something less elaborate and more use to the people."

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

RELIEF — Was told that the California Supreme Court has ruled a county cannot deny general relief funds to a person able but unwilling to work. No action was taken pending review by the county counsel, including the possibility that the relief recipients might be put to work on county projects if unwilling to work elsewhere.

HUMAN RIGHTS — Received and approved in principle, most of a report from the Marin County Human Rights Commission. The board agreed to recruit a new human rights department head in the $14,000 to $16,000 annual salary range, but withheld approval of the commission's recommendation for a $63,000 budget for fiscal 1971-72.

FIRE CHIEF — Postponed to May 11, discussion of hiring a replacement for Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom, who reaches mandatory retirement age June 1.

AUDITORIUM — Delayed to May 18, to obtain public reaction, a decision on the Marin County United Veterans' Council request to delete the word "veterans" from the name of the new county auditorium. County Admin. Alan Bruce favored using simply "Marin Memorial" as short and useful.

MOUNT TAM — In response to a request from Supervisor Michael Wornum, agreed to ask federal officials to a meeting on the issue of bright lights and new building projects at the radar station on Mount Tamalpais.

APPOINTMENTS — After a 3-2 straw vote, unanimously named Warren Jacobs to the engineer's vacancy on the county Board of Appeals, but postponed for further checking, nominations for the ad hoc motorcycle committee.

LOS RANCHITOS — Approved Supervisor John F. McInnins's request that county staff prepare an ordinance amendment to install a two-way stop sign at Los Ranchitos and Rafael roads, to assist small school children in crossing the busy intersection.

FURNISHINGS — Voted to pay a long-disputed bill for $2,184 for Hall of Justice furniture to California Correctional Industries, and approved ordering $1,200 more furniture for the new attorney's workroom near the courtrooms.

DOG-BITES — Referred to the Marin County Humane Society for study, a request by Carolyn Crabtree of Novato that all dog registration be computerized, to speed up tracing data in dog-bite cases.

$1.5 Billion Paid A Month For Health

NEW YORK (UPI)—Private health insurers are paying about $1.5 billion each month to help Americans meet their health care bills.

In reporting this statistic, the Health Insurance Institute adds that insurers paid a record $17.4 billion in health insurance benefits to the nation's policyholders last year. The figure represents an increase of more than $3 billion over the previous year's record.

Winifred Baker To Conduct At Cathedral

Winifred Baker of San Rafael will conduct the Bach B Minor Mass as the first major choral-orchestral concert at the new St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco on May 23 at 2 p.m.

The performance will offer the first opportunity to evaluate the cathedral's acoustics with orchestra, organ and a large choir.

The choir will be the combined 185-voice San Francisco Civic Chorale and Marin Winifred Baker chorale, both regularly conducted by Miss Baker, and the 24-piece baroque orchestra will include many of the instrumentalists who played in last year's Bach festival in Carmel.

Soloists will include soprano Gwen Curatilo of Terra Linda, in her last San Francisco appearance before she leaves for a year's tour of Germany, where she will sing in Munich in October.

The concert is sponsored by the San Francisco Art Commission.

Guilty Verdict In 1969 Case

Edward K. Wachsman of San Rafael was not found guilty of a public nuisance charge in 1969, as may have been implied in an article in Tuesday's Independent-Journal.

Wachsman was found guilty in Marin Municipal Court in November 1969 of keeping a horse on property near his home without a city permit. A public nuisance charge was dismissed at that time.

Wachsman, who has continued to seek city approval for two horses on his property, failed again Monday night when the San Rafael City Council overruled a planning commission decision granting him a permit for the horses.

Planning Commission Nod For Housing Proposals

Final approval for two housing developments with a total of 30 units has been granted by the Tiburon Planning Commission, planning aide Jeanne McLean reported yesterday.

Approved were a 24-unit townhouse development on Red Hill and a six-lot single family subdivision in Porto Marino Estates.

Mrs. McLean said the townhouses are to be built on by Leonard Chan on Red Hill Circle. The single-family houses, she said, will be constructed by Deak and Co. on Geldert Drive.

Approval of the Porto Marino development was contingent on dedication of a path between Hacienda and Geldert drives for the use of Del Mar School pupils.

Consideration of a master plan for a three-story apartment-office building on Juanita Lane was continued until May 17 to allow the applicant, Robert E. Boat, to submit new drawings.

Mrs. McLean said the new plans will show traffic circulation and parking and the use of the existing El Borro restaurant, behind which the new structure is to be built.

Fire-O-Rama Set Saturday

Southern Sonoma fire units will take part Saturday in the annual Fire-O-Rama in Santa Rosa sponsored by the Sonoma County Firemen's Association.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. with a parade of 41 fire units, both new and vintage, from Fifth and E streets to the county fairgrounds. Demonstrations of fire-fighting techniques, including the laying of fire hose by a state Division of Forestry helicopter, will begin at 1 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

Besides the demonstrations, the Rohnert Park and Windsor fire departments will compete in a water fight.

Spelling Bee Winners

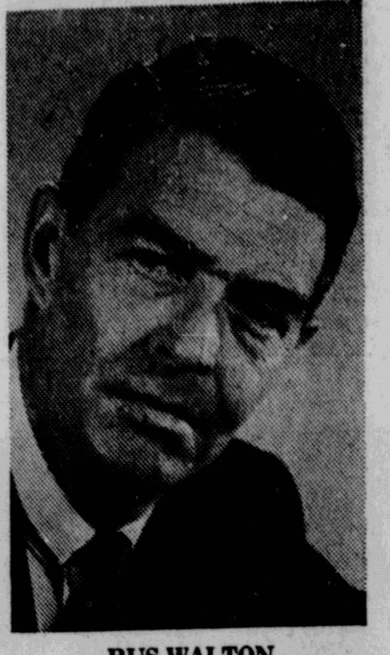
First in last Friday's contest was Kevin Lewis from S. Rafael's School; second, Nadine Niess from St. Anselm's School, and third, Daniel Dubuc from St. Patrick's School. The contest was held at St. Anselm's Parish Hall.

Meet Rus Walton, Columnist For I-J



RUS WALTON
New to editorial page

A new California political columnist is appearing this week on the editorial page of the Independent-Journal and will be a regular feature hereafter.

Actually, Rus Walton is not new either to reporting or to the Sacramento political scene. But his column is new to the Independent-Journal.

His "Capitol Report" will appear two or three times each week, alternating with the familiar "Affairs of State" column by Henry C. McArthur.

Walton is a former reporter and editor, was national public relations director of Citizens for Goldwater in 1964, and served until recently as secretary for program development in Gov. Ronald Reagan's office.

In addition to writing his column, he is now on the staff of California Journal, a monthly devoted to state governmental affairs published in Sacramento.

As may be inferred from his background, Walton is a political conservative.

PICTURE HER ON MOTHER'S DAY

Family albums are generally full of pictures of the baby and the growing family at each stage of life, and that's all to the good. But there are occasions that remind us to focus on the adults in the family.

Mother's Day is such a time. We forget how many good reasons to photograph Mom there are. For one thing, everyone in the family wants pictures of her, so you can hardly take too many. For another, she's too often neglected in the picture parade.

And that's a mistake for the very good reason that mothers make marvelous photo subjects. Show her with her children and grandchildren as "props," or in the home she has created. With Dad, to reveal another side of here . . . and all by herself. If you can capture on film what she means to you and to us, you'll have a prize-winning picture for any album.

For Mother's Day and every special occasion, be sure you have plenty of film on hand. See us for the right film for your needs . . . and for expert developing and photo finishing, too.

TIGHT FORMATION — The Air Force's Thunderbirds, a precision flying team, which thrill audiences with aerial maneuvers, will perform at Hamilton Air Force Base's 37th birthday anniversary and open house next Wednesday. Open house is from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the Thunderbirds are scheduled to fly at 3 p.m.

Hamilton To Mark Birthday Wednesday

The Thunderbirds, the Air Force's aerial demonstration team with a spectacular display of jet flying, will highlight the 37th birthday anniversary of Hamilton Air Force Base next Wednesday.

There will be open house from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the Thunderbirds to fly at 3 p.m. and the 573rd Air Force Band, at the base since 1941, will play its final public concert.

The event will mark the resumption of open house at the base, which was cancelled last year because of antiwar demonstrations throughout the U.S.

There will be a display of vintage and World War II aircraft as well as the base's primary mission aircraft, the Convair F-106 Delta Dart.

Base units, Civil Air Patrol and local model airplane clubs also will have displays.

The Thunderbirds, flying the F-4E Phantom II, will perform intricate maneuvers in close formation, execute a variety of rolls and swoop at low level.

All the Thunderbird pilots are Vietnam war veterans with a total of 1,451 combat missions flown by the five members.

The 573rd Air Force Band will be making its last public appearance in Marin because it will be deactivated in June as an economy measure.

Lights Turned Off For Ecology

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Electric Building, for 60 years a glowing night-time landmark in downtown Buffalo, has been blacked out in the interest of ecology.

A spokesman for the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. said Wednesday the 55 1,000-watt light bulbs that decorated the top of the building were turned off at the request of the Rev. Hugh G. Carmichael who operates the St. Augustine Center for the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York.

Carmichael said the lights, which could be seen for miles, used 275 kilowatts of electricity per night, He said the generation of electricity produces "as a byproduct a certain form of pollution."

9,000 Pounds Of Seized Pot Up In Flames

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The federal government burned 9,000 pounds of marijuana Wednesday and predicted more arrests in the biggest seizure of the illegal weed in history.

The bulk of five tons of marijuana confiscated at sea — worth $1.5 million—was burned in neighboring South San Francisco and a cloud of brown smoke wafted southward over the populated Peninsula.

The remaining 1,000 pounds was kept as evidence against eight persons arrested Monday when federal and state agents boarded two boats and seized a camper van waiting on a dock.

In San Diego, U.S. Attorney Harry Steward said more arrests are expected there and in San Francisco during the crackdown on one of the largest marijuana smuggling operations in the United States.

Ceiling On Population In Mill Valley Favored

A ceiling on Mill Valley's population was looked on favorably last night by city councilmen and planning commissioners.

The point came up during discussion of a proposed new method of determining the desnity of residential developments. Time and again at the two-hour adjourned meeting, councilmen, commissioners and audience members said a population limit was necessary in Mill Valley.

"We've got to recognize that there is an optimum population beyond which the quality of life is bound to deteriorate," said Planning Commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine.

Despite the lack of action, the theme of clamping a size lid on the city persisted through the discussion of a new density formula.

Planning Commissioner Paul E. Rosenthal explained that the density formula, if approved by the council after being developed in final form, would base density on the number of bedrooms rather than units per acre.

"The present system (units per acre) is based essentially on the number of kitchens, because a unit is defined as a dwelling structure with a kitchen," he said.

But the impact on the community is affected by other factors: access to the property, slope of the land, amount of open space in the development and, most important, the size of units and number of bedrooms.

"I have a lot of reservations about this proposal," Rosenthal admitted. "It needs some work, but the planning commission wanted approval in principle before it puts the idea into an ordinance."

The basic appeal of the new system, Rosenthal said, is that it spells out variables — access, open space and such — and thus eliminates "horsetrading," wherein the city and developers trade density increases for open space and other amenities.

Councilmen told the planners to submit more data on how the new system would work — including specific figures on the relative weight of different-sized units — and return to the council.

Mayor George E. Wickham said the council will take another look at the matter when it has the additional data, in about a month.

Negotiator For Coast Plan Picked

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County supervisors have chosen colleague Henry Spomer to represent their board in negotiations to form a north coast regional government.

Spomer, whose name was picked in a hat-drawing, won out over Robert Theiller, who also had sought the position.

Spomer's job will be to form guidelines for Sonoma's planned hookup with an alliance that is to include Mendocino, Lake, Del Norte and Humboldt counties. Sonoma voters chose at the polls last month to withdraw from the Association of Bay Area Governments.

In other business Tuesday, supervisors rezoned a 300-acre parcel near Lichau Road in Cotati from unclassified to rural residential for a subdivision of 1.25-acre lots. County Planning Director George Kovatch unsuccessfully urged that the approval be accompanied by a requirement for a development plan.

Larkspur Acts To Save Urban Funds For Intersection Work

Larkspur City councilmen rushed last night to beat the waning fiscal year calendar and save $40,000 in urban thoroughfare funds.

City Engineer Roy H. Hoffman was ordered to call for bids on a major remodeling of the Magnolia Avenue-Doherty Drive intersection, estimated to cost $140,000 and give the city its first traffic light.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst explained that the work must be contracted before July 1 or the state and federal urban thoroughfare funds would be lost. He told the council that accumulated city and state highway funds plus "a couple of months of next year's gas tax funds" should suffice. He admitted having misgivings about cash flow during the contract period.

The council voted a series of related actions for the project. It approved $56,000 out-of-court condemnation suit settlement with C. T. H. Wright for approximately 7,000 square feet of property on both sides of Doherty Drive at the intersection, ordered the road work bids to include alternates for extending new sewer lines from the corner to Henry Hall School, and approved hiring a traffic consultant for up to $3,500 to design the $35,000 set of computerized traffic signals for the busy intersection. The traffic signals on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard are in county territy, Bathurst explained, when questioned whether the Magnolia Avenue lights would be the city's first.

Proposals for multiple-residential development near the boardwalk and for a supermarket south of Doherty Drive have added urgency to engineer Hoffman's plans to build four lanes on both streets at the corner, and special left-turn lanes.

The intersection work "will be a problem to traffic, but there's no other way," Hoffman said. The work is expected to follow hard on the heels of another project that has snarled Larkspur area traffic —the current repairs on the Bon Air Bridge.

Hoffman said that the decision to close the span entirely, rather than try to keep it open to restricted traffic, had greatly speeded the work. He said the project costing nearly $100,000 was ahead of schedule and should meet its July completion date.

The bridge suffered serious structural damage during Army Corps of Engineers flood control project dredging of Corte Madera Creek. The Army, state and city are sharing the repair costs.

Thirty years ago Lebanon passed a law forbidding women to wear shorts.

STARS ABOVE

Hunting Dogs Are Interesting

By SHERMAN WALICER

The Hunting Dogs make up a constellation that is also dim and rather difficult to trace out, but there are a great many objects of telescopic interest within its borders.

The dogs belong to Bootes (the Herdsman or Bear Driver) and are restrained by a leash as they chase the Great Bear around the pole star. The northern dog is named Asterion and the other is Chara.

To locate the Hunting Dogs, face southward at 9 p.m. and look at the region of sky that is almost exactly overhead.

The constellation does have one fairly bright second-magnitude star, Cor Caroli (the Heart of Charles. It was named for Charles II of England at a time when it was the fashion to curry favor with royalty by naming a star or planet for them. Herschel, you may remember, tried to name the planet he discovered, Uranus, for George III of England, without success.

There is a star cluster (M-3) in this constellation which you might see as a faint hazy spot, but only if conditions are ideal and you have good eyesight. It is made up of thousands of suns and is known as the Whirlpool Nebula. It is more than 60 light-years across.

University Changes To Bilingual Status

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—The University of Texas at San Antonio will be the first state-supported bilingual institution of higher education in the fall of 1973.

Plans call for the new school to have one or more bilingual professors in every major department. Students will spend half their time in English classes and half in Spanish.

ACLU Asks For Equal TV Time

NEW YORK (UPI) —ABC, CBS and NBC have been asked by the American Civil Liberties Union to provide time for immediate response to televised presidential speeches by persons who hold opposing views.

The best way of achieving wide debate, said the ACLU in a letter to the network presidents, is to obtain texts of presidential speeches before broadcast and make them available for persons with contrary views. Responses could be prepared by those disagreeing with the president's positions, and network commentators could provide the public with such diverse views.

However, the ACLU said, diversity would be best served by giving air time to advocates of other positions.

Families Get More Milk Than Realized

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Families probably are getting more "milk" in their diet than they realize. The extra comes from milk products.

The Nebraska Extension Service reports, for instance, that to make one pound of cheese, you would have to start with 10 pounds of milk.

Board Balks On Bennett's Utility Move

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Board of Equalization rejected a request by William Bennett yesterday tnat it rescind its action in lowering the market value of the state's 10 biggest public utilities.

Bennett, of Kentfield, a board member, offered the motion after telling his three colleagues on the board they had adopted "an Alice in Wonderland method of assessment."

After an hour of lively debate, the motion failed for lack of a second. Then, in behalf of a group called "Consumers Arise Now," Bennett submitted a petition seeking to accomplish the same purpose. It was filed for later consideration.

"Gentlemen, you are giving the whole ball game away this morning," Bennett said moments before his motion was turned down.

"You have just given the public utilities a massive windfall and have been doing it for 13 years."

In a voice heavy with sarcasm, Bennett said that by its action the board was shifting the tax burden "from the poor, downtrodden public utilities to the affluent homeowners and taxpayers of California."

Board members John Lynch and George Reilly defended the means by which the board determined fair market value for public utilities.

"The legislature has looked into the operations of this board on at least three occasions and has found it to be moving along acceptable lines in its determination of assessments," Reilly said.

At a meeting Monday, the four-member board voted to set the assessment at 29 per cent of full value. The level in 1970 was 31 per cent.

Auditorium Name Decision Delayed

Marin County supervisors have postponed to May 18 a decision on whether to drop the word "veterans" from the name of the new auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center.

The supervisors said Tuesday they wanted to learn public reaction to the request from the Marin County United Veterans' Council that the structure — long referred to as the Marin Veterans Memorial Auditorium — not have any reference to veterans in its name.

Arthur E. Wedemeyer Jr., in a letter to the board, wrote that the council members unanimously voted for the deletion. W. P. (Doc) Duhamel, told the board, "It's a war memorial, not a veterans' memorial. We originated the idea, but wanted something less elaborate and more use to the people."

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

RELIEF — Was told that the California Supreme Court has ruled a county cannot deny general relief funds to a person able but unwilling to work. No action was taken pending review by the county counsel, including the possibility that the relief recipients might be put to work on county projects if unwilling to work elsewhere.

HUMAN RIGHTS — Received and approved in principle, most of a report from the Marin County Human Rights Commission. The board agreed to recruit a new human rights department head in the $14,000 to $16,000 annual salary range, but withheld approval of the commission's recommendation for a $63,000 budget for fiscal 1971-72.

FIRE CHIEF — Postponed to May 11, discussion of hiring a replacement for Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom, who reaches mandatory retirement age June 1.

AUDITORIUM — Delayed to May 18, to obtain public reaction, a decision on the Marin County United Veterans' Council request to delete the word "veterans" from the name of the new county auditorium. County Admin. Alan Bruce favored using simply "Marin Memorial" as short and useful.

MOUNT TAM — In response to a request from Supervisor Michael Wornum, agreed to ask federal officials to a meeting on the issue of bright lights and new building projects at the radar station on Mount Tamalpais.

APPOINTMENTS — After a 3-2 straw vote, unanimously named Warren Jacobs to the engineer's vacancy on the county Board of Appeals, but postponed for further checking, nominations for the ad hoc motorcycle committee.

LOS RANCHITOS — Approved Supervisor John F. McInnins's request that county staff prepare an ordinance amendment to install a two-way stop sign at Los Ranchitos and Rafael roads, to assist small school children in crossing the busy intersection.

FURNISHINGS — Voted to pay a long-disputed bill for $2,184 for Hall of Justice furniture to California Correctional Industries, and approved ordering $1,200 more furniture for the new attorney's workroom near the courtrooms.

DOG-BITES — Referred to the Marin County Humane Society for study, a request by Carolyn Crabtree of Novato that all dog registration be computerized, to speed up tracing data in dog-bite cases.

$1.5 Billion Paid A Month For Health

NEW YORK (UPI)—Private health insurers are paying about $1.5 billion each month to help Americans meet their health care bills.

In reporting this statistic, the Health Insurance Institute adds that insurers paid a record $17.4 billion in health insurance benefits to the nation's policyholders last year. The figure represents an increase of more than $3 billion over the previous year's record.

Union Asks Raises For 'Survival'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state employes union yesterday urged the Reagan administration to recommend a $35-a-month pay raise for all employes starting July 1 so lower paid workers "can at least survive."

The Union of State Employes, Local 411, submitted the pay proposal prior to a meeting between union directors and Earl Coke, secretary of agriculture and services. The union said it represents 5,000 employes.

Gov. Ronald Reagan provided no funds for cost-of-living salary increases in his 1971-72 budget proposal submitted to the legislature.

Earl E. Sullaway, secretary-treasurer of the union, told Coke in a letter that more than 30,000 state employes are "incapable of supporting their families at the most minimal level, based on Federal Bureau of Labor statistics."

"If the governor cannot see his way clear to recommending a cost-of-living increase," he said, "then we request that some allowance be made for survival."

Sullaway said such a raise "would provide a guarantee that thousands of state employes and their families could continue to exist."

U.S. Budget Deficit May Hit $19 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget for the Nixon administration, predicts the federal deficit for the business year ending June 30 will be more than $19 billion—a figure that would be the second largest since World War II.

In January the administration had projected a $18.6 billion deficit for the current fiscal year. The largest red ink year since World War II was 1968, when the deficit was $25.2 billion.

73-Year-Old Is Sued For Hitting Teen In Jaw

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. (UPI) —The father of an 18-year-old boy has filed a $100,000 damage suit against a 73-year-old man, claiming the old man belted his son and broke his jaw, forcing him to miss the senior prom.

Police said Kitely was driving to meet his 92-year-old mother at a beauty shop and, while parking his car, he backed into a car driven by the younger Hunthrop. The police said Hunthrop got out of his car and called Kitely an abusive name. Kitely then broke his jaw.

Kitely was charged with disturbing the peace and forfeited $17.50 bond.

The suit is seeking $50,000 in compensatory damages and $50,000 in punitive damages. It claims the youth "suffered great bodily pain as a result of the beating" which caused him to miss his senior prom last Friday night.

Capp Released

HARRISON, Ark. (UPI)—Cartoonist Al Capp was released Wednesday from the Boone County Hospital and announced he was canceling all his college speaking appearances for the rest of the month.

An Unsuccessful Bombing Attempt

CHICO (UPI) —An unsuccessful would-be firebomber threw a molotov cocktail through the window of an Air Force recruiting office Tuesday night to practically no avail.

Police said the bottle of gasoline failed to ignite and that whoever had thrown it failed in repeated attempts to set off the spilled fuel by throwing matches and cigarettes at it.

A Possible Span Jumper

A 23-year-old San Carlos woman may have jumped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The leap of the woman believed to be Victoria Ann Jordan was not witnessed, officers said, but her 1969 pickup truck was found abandoned in the northbound lanes of the bridge at 3 a.m. by a passerby.

A two-hour search by the Coast Guard failed to locate a body.

A letter in the truck indicated Mrs. Jordan, a clerk at the Del Monte Corp. in San Francisco, was despondent over a pending divorce.

Attack On Antigrowth 'Lobbyists'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sen. Gordon Allot, R-Colo., said Wednesday he is disturbed by a "very effective coalition of lobbies against the very idea of economic growth."

Speaking to a meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's Division of Production, Allott said most of the lobbies are composed of private citizens with a sincere concern for the environment.

However, he said some of them are "simply moral exhibitionists or pastoral romantics" and that together the lobbies "are in danger of turning the fight for a better environment into a war against the American economy."

The senator warned that the "enemies of economic growth" have concentrated on energy sources because they are basic to the American economy.

He said the demand for energy is growing constantly, "but today you cannot turn a spade of earth for the construction of a power plant without generating five years of litigation from various environmental groups.

"In fact, we are so much more proficient at generating litigation than we are at generating electricity, that in five years we will have clogged courts and brown-outs in every section of the nation."

Park 100
a great new grass blend for the Bay Area
With Park 100 lawn seed, you can expect a beautiful lawn. And you can expect it to stay beautiful without much effort on your part. Here's why: Park 100 is a blend of grasses. For beauty there's Park Kentucky Bluegrass. For persistence there's Pelo and NK 100, the original fine-leafed ryegrasses. The results are summarized by comments of people who've used Park 100. "Most uniform grass I've seen." "We haven't had any weed problems." "Its fine blade texture makes it look much richer and greener than similar blends." Get the grass that's blended to thrive in the Bay Area, get Park 100.

TIGHT FORMATION — The Air Force's Thunderbirds, a precision flying team, which thrill audiences with aerial maneuvers, will perform at Hamilton Air Force Base's 37th birthday anniversary and open house next Wednesday. Open house is from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the Thunderbirds are scheduled to fly at 3 p.m.

Hamilton To Mark Birthday Wednesday

The Thunderbirds, the Air Force's aerial demonstration team with a spectacular display of jet flying, will highlight the 37th birthday anniversary of Hamilton Air Force Base next Wednesday.

There will be open house from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the Thunderbirds to fly at 3 p.m. and the 573rd Air Force Band, at the base since 1941, will play its final public concert.

The event will mark the resumption of open house at the base, which was cancelled last year because of antiwar demonstrations throughout the U.S.

There will be a display of vintage and World War II aircraft as well as the base's primary mission aircraft, the Convair F-106 Delta Dart.

Base units, Civil Air Patrol and local model airplane clubs also will have displays.

The Thunderbirds, flying the F-4E Phantom II, will perform intricate maneuvers in close formation, execute a variety of rolls and swoop at low level.

All the Thunderbird pilots are Vietnam war veterans with a total of 1,451 combat missions flown by the five members.

The 573rd Air Force Band will be making its last public appearance in Marin because it will be deactivated in June as an economy measure.

Lights Turned Off For Ecology

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Electric Building, for 60 years a glowing night-time landmark in downtown Buffalo, has been blacked out in the interest of ecology.

A spokesman for the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. said Wednesday the 55 1,000-watt light bulbs that decorated the top of the building were turned off at the request of the Rev. Hugh G. Carmichael who operates the St. Augustine Center for the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York.

Carmichael said the lights, which could be seen for miles, used 275 kilowatts of electricity per night, He said the generation of electricity produces "as a byproduct a certain form of pollution."

9,000 Pounds Of Seized Pot Up In Flames

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The federal government burned 9,000 pounds of marjijuana Wednesday and predicted more arrests in the biggest seizure of the illegal weed in history.

The bulk of five tons of marijuana confiscated at sea — worth $1.5 million—was burned in neighboring South San Francisco and a cloud of brown smoke wafted southward over the populated Peninsula.

The remaining 1,000 pounds was kept as evidence against eight persons arrested Monday when federal and state agents boarded two boats and seized a camper van waiting on a dock.

In San Diego, U.S. Attorney Harry Steward said more arrests are expected there and in San Francisco during the crackdown on one of the largest marijuana smuggling operations in the United States.

Ceiling On Population In Mill Valley Favored

A ceiling on Mill Valley's population was looked on favorably last night by city councilmen and planning commissioners.

The point came up during discussion of a proposed new method of determining the desnity of residential developments. Time and again at the two-hour adjourned meeting, councilmen, commissioners and audience members said a population limit was necessary in Mill Valley.

"We've got to recognize that there is an optimum population beyond which the quality of life is bound to deteriorate," said Planning Commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine.

Despite the lack of action, the theme of clamping a size lid on the city persisted through the discussion of a new density formula.

Planning Commissioner Paul E. Rosenthal explained that the density formula, if approved by the council after being developed in final form, would base density on the number of bedrooms rather than units per acre.

"The present system (units per acre) is based essentially on the number of kitchens, because a unit is defined as a dwelling structure with a kitchen," he said.

But the impact on the community is affected by other factors: access to the property, slope of the land, amount of open space in the development and, most important, the size of units and number of bedrooms.

"I have a lot of reservations about this proposal," Rosenthal admitted. "It needs some work, but the planning commission wanted approval in principle before it puts the idea into an ordinance."

The basic appeal of the new system, Rosenthal said, is that it spells out variables — access, open space and such — and thus eliminates "horsetrading," wherein the city and developers trade density increases for open space and other amenities.

Councilmen told the planners to submit more data on how the new system would work — including specific figures on the relative weight of different-sized units — and return to the council.

Mayor George E. Wickham said the council will take another look at the matter when it has the additional data, in about a month.

Negotiator For Coast Plan Picked

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County supervisors have chosen colleague Henry Spomer to represent their board in negotiations to form a north coast regional government.

Spomer, whose name was picked in a hat-drawing, won out over Robert Theiller, who also had sought the position.

Spomer's job will be to form guidelines for Sonoma's planned hookup with an alliance that is to include Mendocino, Lake, Del Norte and Humboldt counties. Sonoma voters chose at the polls last month to withdraw from the Association of Bay Area Governments.

In other business Tuesday, supervisors rezoned a 300-acre parcel near Lichau Road in Cotati from unclassified to rural residential for a subdivision of 1.25-acre lots. County Planning Director George Kovatch unsuccessfully urged that the approval be accompanied by a requirement for a development plan.

Larkspur Acts To Save Urban Funds For Intersection Work

Larkspur City councilmen rushed last night to beat the waning fiscal year calendar and save $40,000 in urban thoroughfare funds.

City Engineer Roy H. Hoffman was ordered to call for bids on a major remodeling of the Magnolia Avenue-Doherty Drive intersection, estimated to cost $140,000 and give the city its first traffic light.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst explained that the work must be contracted before July 1 or the state and federal urban thoroughfare funds would be lost. He told the council that accumulated city and state highway funds plus "a couple of months of next year's gas tax funds" should suffice. He admitted having misgivings about cash flow during the contract period.

The council voted a series of related actions for the project. It approved $56,000 out-of-court condemnation suit settlement with C. T. H. Wright for approximately 7,000 square feet of property on both sides of Doherty Drive at the intersection, ordered the road work bids to include alternates for extending new sewer lines from the corner to Henry Hall School, and approved hiring a traffic consultant for up to $3,500 to design the $35,000 set of computerized traffic signals for the busy intersection. The traffic signals on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard are in county territy, Bathurst explained, when questioned whether the Magnolia Avenue lights would be the city's first.

Proposals for multiple-residential development near the boardwalk and for a supermarket south of Doherty Drive have added urgency to engineer Hoffman's plans to build four lanes on both streets at the corner, and special left-turn lanes.

The intersection work "will be a problem to traffic, but there's no other way," Hoffman said. The work is expected to follow hard on the heels of another project that has snarled Larkspur area traffic —the current repairs on the Bon Air Bridge.

Hoffman said that the decision to close the span entirely, rather than try to keep it open to restricted traffic, had greatly speeded the work. He said the project costing nearly $100,000 was ahead of schedule and should meet its July completion date.

The bridge suffered serious structural damage during Army Corps of Engineers flood control project dredging of Corte Madera Creek. The Army, state and city are sharing the repair costs.

Thirty years ago Lebanon passed a law forbidding women to wear shorts.

Union Asks Raises For 'Survival'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state employes union yesterday urged the Reagan administration to recommend a $35-a-month pay raise for all employes starting July 1 so lower paid workers "can at least survive."

The Union of State Employes, Local 411, submitted the pay proposal prior to a meeting between union directors and Earl Coke, secretary of agriculture and services. The union said it represents 5,000 employes.

Gov. Ronald Reagan provided no funds for cost-of-living salary increases in his 1971-72 budget proposal submitted to the legislature.

Earl E. Sullaway, secretary-treasurer of the union, told Coke in a letter that more than 30,000 state employes are "incapable of supporting their families at the most minimal level, based on Federal Bureau of Labor statistics."

"If the governor cannot see his way clear to recommending a cost-of-living increase," he said, "then we request that some allowance be made for survival."

Sullaway said such a raise "would provide a guarantee that thousands of state employes and their families could continue to exist."

U.S. Budget Deficit May Hit $19 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget for the Nixon administration, predicts the federal deficit for the business year ending June 30 will be more than $19 billion—a figure that would be the second largest since World War II.

In January the administration had projected a $18.6 billion deficit for the current fiscal year. The largest red ink year since World War II was 1968, when the deficit was $25.2 billion.

73-Year-Old Is Sued For Hitting Teen In Jaw

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. (UPI) —The father of an 18-year-old boy has filed a $100,000 damage suit against a 73-year-old man, claiming the old man belted his son and broke his jaw, forcing him to miss the senior prom.

Police said Kitely was driving to meet his 92-year-old mother at a beauty shop and, while parking his car, he backed into a car driven by the younger Hunthrop. The police said Hunthrop got out of his car and called Kitely an abusive name. Kitely then broke his jaw.

Kitely was charged with disturbing the peace and forfeited $17.50 bond.

The suit is seeking $50,000 in compensatory damages and $50,000 in punitive damages. It claims the youth "suffered great bodily pain as a result of the beating" which caused him to miss his senior prom last Friday night.

Capp Released

HARRISON, Ark. (UPI)—Cartoonist Al Capp was released Wednesday from the Boone County Hospital and announced he was canceling all his college speaking appearances for the rest of the month.

An Unsuccessful Bombing Attempt

CHICO (UPI) —An unsuccessful would-be firebomber threw a molotov cocktail through the window of an Air Force recruiting office Tuesday night to practically no avail.

Police said the bottle of gasoline failed to ignite and that whoever had thrown it failed in repeated attempts to set off the spilled fuel by throwing matches and cigarettes at it.

A Possible Span Jumper

A 23-year-old San Carlos woman may have jumped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The leap of the woman believed to be Victoria Ann Jordan was not witnessed, officers said, but her 1969 pickup truck was found abandoned in the northbound lanes of the bridge at 3 a.m. by a passerby.

A two-hour search by the Coast Guard failed to locate a body.

A letter in the truck indicated Mrs. Jordan, a clerk at the Del Monte Corp. in San Francisco, was despondent over a pending divorce.

Attack On Antigrowth 'Lobbyists'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sen. Gordon Allot, R-Colo., said Wednesday he is disturbed by a "very effective coalition of lobbies against the very idea of economic growth."

Speaking to a meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's Division of Production, Allott said most of the lobbies are composed of private citizens with a sincere concern for the environment.

However, he said some of them are "simply moral exhibitionists or pastoral romantics" and that together the lobbies "are in danger of turning the fight for a better environment into a war against the American economy."

The senator warned that the "enemies of economic growth" have concentrated on energy sources because they are basic to the American economy.

He said the demand for energy is growing constantly, "but today you cannot turn a spade of earth for the construction of a power plant without generating five years of litigation from various environmental groups.

"In fact, we are so much more proficient at generating litigation than we are at generating electricity, that in five years we will have clogged courts and brown-outs in every section of the nation."

SHIRLEY POLLOCK shows her foster son how to hold their kitten gently. Three boys whose parents could not provide a home for them temporarily, have been sent to her for love and a home during the past six years. "It makes you feel good to hear from a boy later when he's doing fine," says the foster mother.

FOSTER FAMILY

The Test Of Love: Learning To Let Go

By PAT BALMES

"If you can love them while they're with you and then let them go, that's a good attitude," says foster mother Shirley Pollock, who has welcomed three homeless boys into her family, knowing that they would leave her.

To give a home to a boy whose parents temporarily cannot provide one for him and to fill-in her own family, Mrs. Warren Pollock of Mill Valley applied six years ago for her "License to Conduct a Boarding Home for Children."

"Doesn't that sound like Oliver Twist?" laughs Shirley as she takes a moment's rest in her Scott Valley home, which has an organ, a guitar, two cats with kittens, a dog bought for her foster sons and a gentle horse visiting in the backyard.

The Pollocks made their house a foster home to provide their daughter, Betsy, with a brother and because, "God knows there is a need for it." When it looked like Betsy would be an only child, the Pollocks went to the Departemnt of Public Social Services for a foster son. It was not a shortcut to adoption, since foster children are temporary. The agency's aim is to reunite families, she says, adding that age and circumstances prevented the Pollocks from considering adoption.

"THERE ARE all sorts of reasons you get these kids. A parent might be institutionalized. The mother might be in the hospital. Or the child might have parents who delight in beating kids. Then the courts get involved until the trouble is ironed out," says Shirley.

For the first month with a new foster son, Shirley is very careful and tries to be professional. After that, "It's family.'' When she has some problem she can't cope with, Shirley consults the child's case worker.

Shirley has experienced nothing but friendliness and cooperation from her foster son's parents. The boys would often visit their parents on weekends. If his mother were in the hospital, Shirley would think it was quite natural for his father to come to her home to put the boy to bed every night. But she wouldn't want a parent sitting at her kitchen table all day, says Shirley, adding that "from what I've heard, sometimes it is the parents who are the problems."

"IT MAKES YOU feel good to hear from the boy later," says the foster mother. She has received phone calls and cards from her first foster son who lived with the Pollocks for 14 months:

"Hi! Remember me? How are things?"

The voice of that boy, who is "doing fine now," brought back to Shirley the scene six years ago when a resentful, argumentative and rude eight-year-old arrived with his few things in a box. He was upset because his homelife was upset, explains the foster mother. He adjusted after a tough summer. It took him awhile to get used to Shirley and her discipline, which was not what he was used to before.

"He would slam every door in the house when I sent him to his room," she remembers.

SINCE THEN Shirley feels she has learned a lot more about children and mentally apologizes to him for cutting his Beatle haircut and putting him to bed at 7:30 p.m.

Her husband Warren, an architect, adds,

"After a month and a half he settled in then he was part of the family. At first he called us 'Mr. and Mrs.,' but soon it was 'Mom and Dad.' He knew he belonged and was part of the scheme. We treated him exactly the same as we treat Betsy."

Betsy, five years old when her first foster brother arrived, inquired why his own parents didn't take care of him. Her mother explained that, for the time being, his parents could not take care of him so they were.

"Can't you make her be quiet!"

Shirley heartily agreed and said that family problems are nobody's business.

HER PARENTS feel that, except for normal sibling rivalries, Betsy has accepted her foster brothers very well, possibly because the first foster brother arrived when she was so young. It isn't always easy for Betsy and sometimes she complains:

"Why do I have to have such a dumb brother?" (But she has always said "brother.")

A foster child receives a modest food and clothing allowance and his medical and dental bills are paid by Medi-Cal.

"But if you think people get into it for the money, forget it," says Warren Pollock.

The Foster Parents Association exchanges clothing for growing foster children. It was organized so foster parents could help one another and could act as a lobbying group about their problems.

ONE GRIEVANCE, Shirley says, is that it is unreasonable to expect a private home to have the same fire prevention facilities as a large institution.

Marin Women

Gap Still Remains In The News Field

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Progress of women toward equality with men in radio and television is disappointing according to Jeanne Toncre of Mill Valley, who returned Friday from the 20th annual convention in Washington, D.C., of American Women in Radio and Television.

Mrs. Toncre, who is director of women's community affairs for KRON-TV, is the newly elected president of the Golden Gate Chapter of the organization.

"A panel program, 'Focus on Women,' was the highlight of the convention, which attracted 650 women broadcasters from all sections of the Uited States and several foreign countries," Mrs. Toncre said.

"MODERATOR WAS Betty Groebli, broadcaster for NBC in Washington, D.C. Panelists were Jo Foxworth, president of her own advertising agency and past national advertising woman of the year; Xandra Kayden, director of development for the women's action program of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; and Marguerite Rawalt (a member of the National Organization for Women), attorney and member of the President's Commission on the Status of Women, 1961-63 and Citizens Advisory Council on the Status of Women, 1963-68.

"The consensus was that discrimination against women is widespread in broadcasting. It was noted that in the entire United States there are less than 300 women broadcasters on radio and television, with Nancy Dickerson, Barbara Walters and Pauline Frederick about the only women broadcasters on network TV, in comparison with men who are all over the tubes," Mrs. Toncre said.

The women said the same discrimination was evident behind the scenes too, Mrs. Toncre said.

All agreed that there should be equal pay for equal work," she said. "Some felt that women should do more about improving their situation, but the question was how. Many thought too aggressive methods only arouse antagonism."

ESPECIALLY FRUSTRATING, Jeanne said, was the lack of sympathy for women's position, revealed in a panel composed of prominent men in the broadcasting field.

"Typical of the way they skirted the issues," she said, "was the attitude of Vincent Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, who said, 'I am fond of women — I have a wife and four daughters — and a woman attorney on my staff.'

"The men said little more than that 'the ladies have come a long way.' They acted as though they were running scared," she commented.

Jeanne said the only sympathy for the women's position came from a man from another country, John Akar, who until last week was the ambassador from Sierra Leone to the United States. He was moderator and keynote speaker for the men's panel on "Future Trends in Communications."

Mrs. Toncre said the general feeling at the end of the convention was that, though women in broadcasting have accomplished much, they are still way down at the bottom of the list in making progress toward equal rights and opportunities.

The women were received by Mrs. Richard M. Nixon.

Kitchen Safety Rules For Children

How can you make the kitchen safer for your children?

Your children probably know a lot about kitchen safety — but don't take their knowledge for granted.

Children forget easily, and they like to experiment and play. If by chance they haven't completely understood about kitchen safety, you may not know it until it's too late.

So, help your children remember these safety rules and help them practice.

TEACH THEM that a range and oven aren't playthings — that top burners get very hot and can burn fingers.

Tell them that the range and oven control knobs are not to be played with.

Keep matches out of the reach of children.

Remember that kids today see knives used in movies and on TV — so be sure that your kitchen knives are safely out of the reach of playful youngsters. It might be wise to let the kids feel the edge and point of a knife while you hold their hands — so they can understand that it is sharp and you can hurt someone.

IF YOU have any large kitchen appliances (such as an empty refrigerator, or a freezer or even a large oven) don't ever let your children play inside them. All too often children accidently lock themselves inside their "special hideout."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

She Wants To Find Out If Her Intended Snores At Night

DEAR HELEN:

I am 25 and have been going with my fiance for four years. We've always had a bit of a problem about what he calls my "uptight morals." I insist on waiting for marriage, and now it's close, as he is out of graduate school. He says there aren't many 25-year-old virgins left.

That isn't what's bothering me, however. I'm very sensitive to noise. My fiance says he doesn't snore, but how do I know? After we're married we will live in a small apartment, and I couldn't take a snoring man.

So I want him to come and spend a week with me at my apartment, but sleep on the couch. We'll get to know each other better that way, (mentally) and also I'll find out about the snoring.

He says fine, but only if he doesn't sleep on the couch. Inasmuch as we've waited this long, don't you think he could wait another week? I have perfect control and can't see why he's so stubborn. — CINDY

DEAR CINDY:

Have you considered spinsterhood? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it that only the rich or the very poor can afford psychiatric help?

My husband and I need a counselor but we can't afford $50 a visit. Even group therapy at half the price is out of the question. I've tried ministers, but our troubles go deeper than that. We don't have a Family Service Agency or Mental Health Clinic in our town.

Where can salaried people go when they need psychotherapy? — DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I wish I had an answer to your question. Perhaps if I print it often enough, areas now lacking in mental health clinics or Family Service Agencies will see the need and meet it.

How many marriages, families, lives could be saved if only expert counseling were available at fees working people could afford! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My family says I am wrong to insist they have nothing to do with the harpy who has taken away my husband. What do you say?

I have been married for 40 years. We have 12 children, three still at home, 40 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. I am 56 and my husband is 60.

On our 40th anniversary I found out he was seeing a 32-year-old woman who has seven children. He left me seven months ago, saying he had to cheat on me because "I didn't trust him." He pays me support, and I intend to divorce him soon, though I still love him.

He brings this woman to see our married children and, although they don't like her, they allow her into their homes so they can see their father. I say they should insist he visit them alone, or not at all.

Your opinion, please? — TOO TRUSTING TOO LONG

DEAR TTTL:

Your children may have the right idea: kindness and a firm grip on family ties has brought many a wandering older man back to his wife, whereas a vindictive attitude can push him farther away. Chances are good that this July-November romance won't last. You still love your husband, so let him know — through the children — that he can come home. — H.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

A guide for press chairmen of organizations interested in getting news to the Marin Women's Section of the Independent-Journal is available at the San Rafael main office and the Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma I-J offices.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The guide explains policies of coverage, how to prepare news stories and meeting notices, and the special stories and features emphasized by the section.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

"breaking in a new colt." They are listed with the agency as wanting a boy younger than Betsy because, as Shirley says, she is not expert, only a harried mother who is not ready to cope with a teen-ager's problems.

When the agency suggested they take in a first grade boy the same age as Betsy, Warren wanted to meet the boy first. A "freckled, blue-eyed doll" came with his father for the introduction, carrying his Halloween costume. The boy asked if he could stay and the Pollocks told him they would let him know on Monday. As the car turned around in front of their house, the Pollocks said to each other:

"Why wait until Monday?"

Betsy took her new twin by the hand to school to show him off. Her mother says that this second foster son was not resentful. He was from a large, close family and he knew they would be reunited soon. Also, his father, a widower, would gather all his children from their foster homes and take them out on Sundays.

He was their foster son for 16 months. The Pollocks have recently received a letter from him and Betsy urges her mother to hurry up and write back.

SHIRLEY FEELS more relaxed with her third foster son who has lived with them for two years, since he was four years old. Coming home from kindergarten, he stops briefly in the house to lisp,

"Mommie, will you go to the open house at school tonight?" And then he is off to climb a tree.

This one will be hard to let go, Shirley says.

These foster sons have filled-in her family and re-created the atmosphere Shirley knew as one of three children in Glencoe, Ill.

"One Christmas we had all ages of relatives-who-were-not-strangers, from a great-great grandmother of 93 to a year-old baby. Later I came out here where I didn't know anybody," says Shirley.

She attended New Trier High School in Winnetka, Ill. She received her bachelor's degree in modern languages at Grinnell College in Iowa. On a tour of Europe, Shirley visited Luxembourgers who had billeted her father during the First World War and Viennese who had received Care packages from her grandmother.

RETURNING HOME, she became a budget analyst and, in 1951, arrived in San Francisco on a Greyhound bus. Here she met Warren, an architect from Seattle, at night school, and they were married in 1954. Betsy was born in 1960.

Shirley is learning to play the organ and guitar, and has sung in choral groups like Community Chorus at College of Marin. She says she "grew up in church choirs."

The Pollocks enjoy camping in the high Sierra.

In 1968 they bought a Coronado 25 sailboat "after Shirley had had only one sailing lesson." Warren had sailed years ago in Seattle. The family enjoys living aboard ship on their vacations on the Delta. While cruising the children stay in the cabin or wear life jackets on deck.

"The boy has loved the boat," says his foster mother.

Promises, Promises

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Promise her anything but give her Arpege" is the perfume slogan that has worked its way into the language. But the slogan also developed into a class exercise at the second grade Locust Valley Elementary School in Locust Valley, N.Y. The children were asked to write their promises —to be given to parents.

Bridal Shopping

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bridal shopping trips should be started at least three to six months before the wedding. Certainly not later than two months before. It usually takes six to eight weeks to deliver the gown, and there's also the time needed for making the wedding portrait.

Campbell-Gamas Engagement Told

The engagement of Carol Lee Gamas of Fairfax to Martin L. Campbell has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nelson Gamas, also of Fairfax.

The sister of Michael and Denise Gamas of Fairfax, Carol is employed with Stan's For Sports, Inc., in Pleasant Hill. She was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School, attended the College of Marin and Sonoma State College.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Campbell of Ventura are Martin's parents, and he is the brother of Harvey Campbell of Moraga. He was graduated from Ventura Senior High School and Brooks Institute of Photography in Santa Barbara and is now employed with Stan's For Sports Inc. in San Rafael.

Cybele Was First 'Mother' Honored

The first mother to be honored with special yearly veneration was Cybele, according to research done by a card manufacturer. She was an earth-mother goddess who was supposed to be the great parent of gods and men as well as the lower orders of creation.

The worship of Cybele began in Asia Minor and spread to Greece and eventually Rome. Later, the ancients became confused as her cult spread and confounded her with local matriarchal dieties such as Rhea, Ge and Demeter.

These various Mediterranean mother goddesses closely resembled one another and are products of similar concepts of fertility of the earth and regeneration of life every spring. Our modern concept of Mother's Day shuns goddesses and focuses attention on live and specific 'moms.'

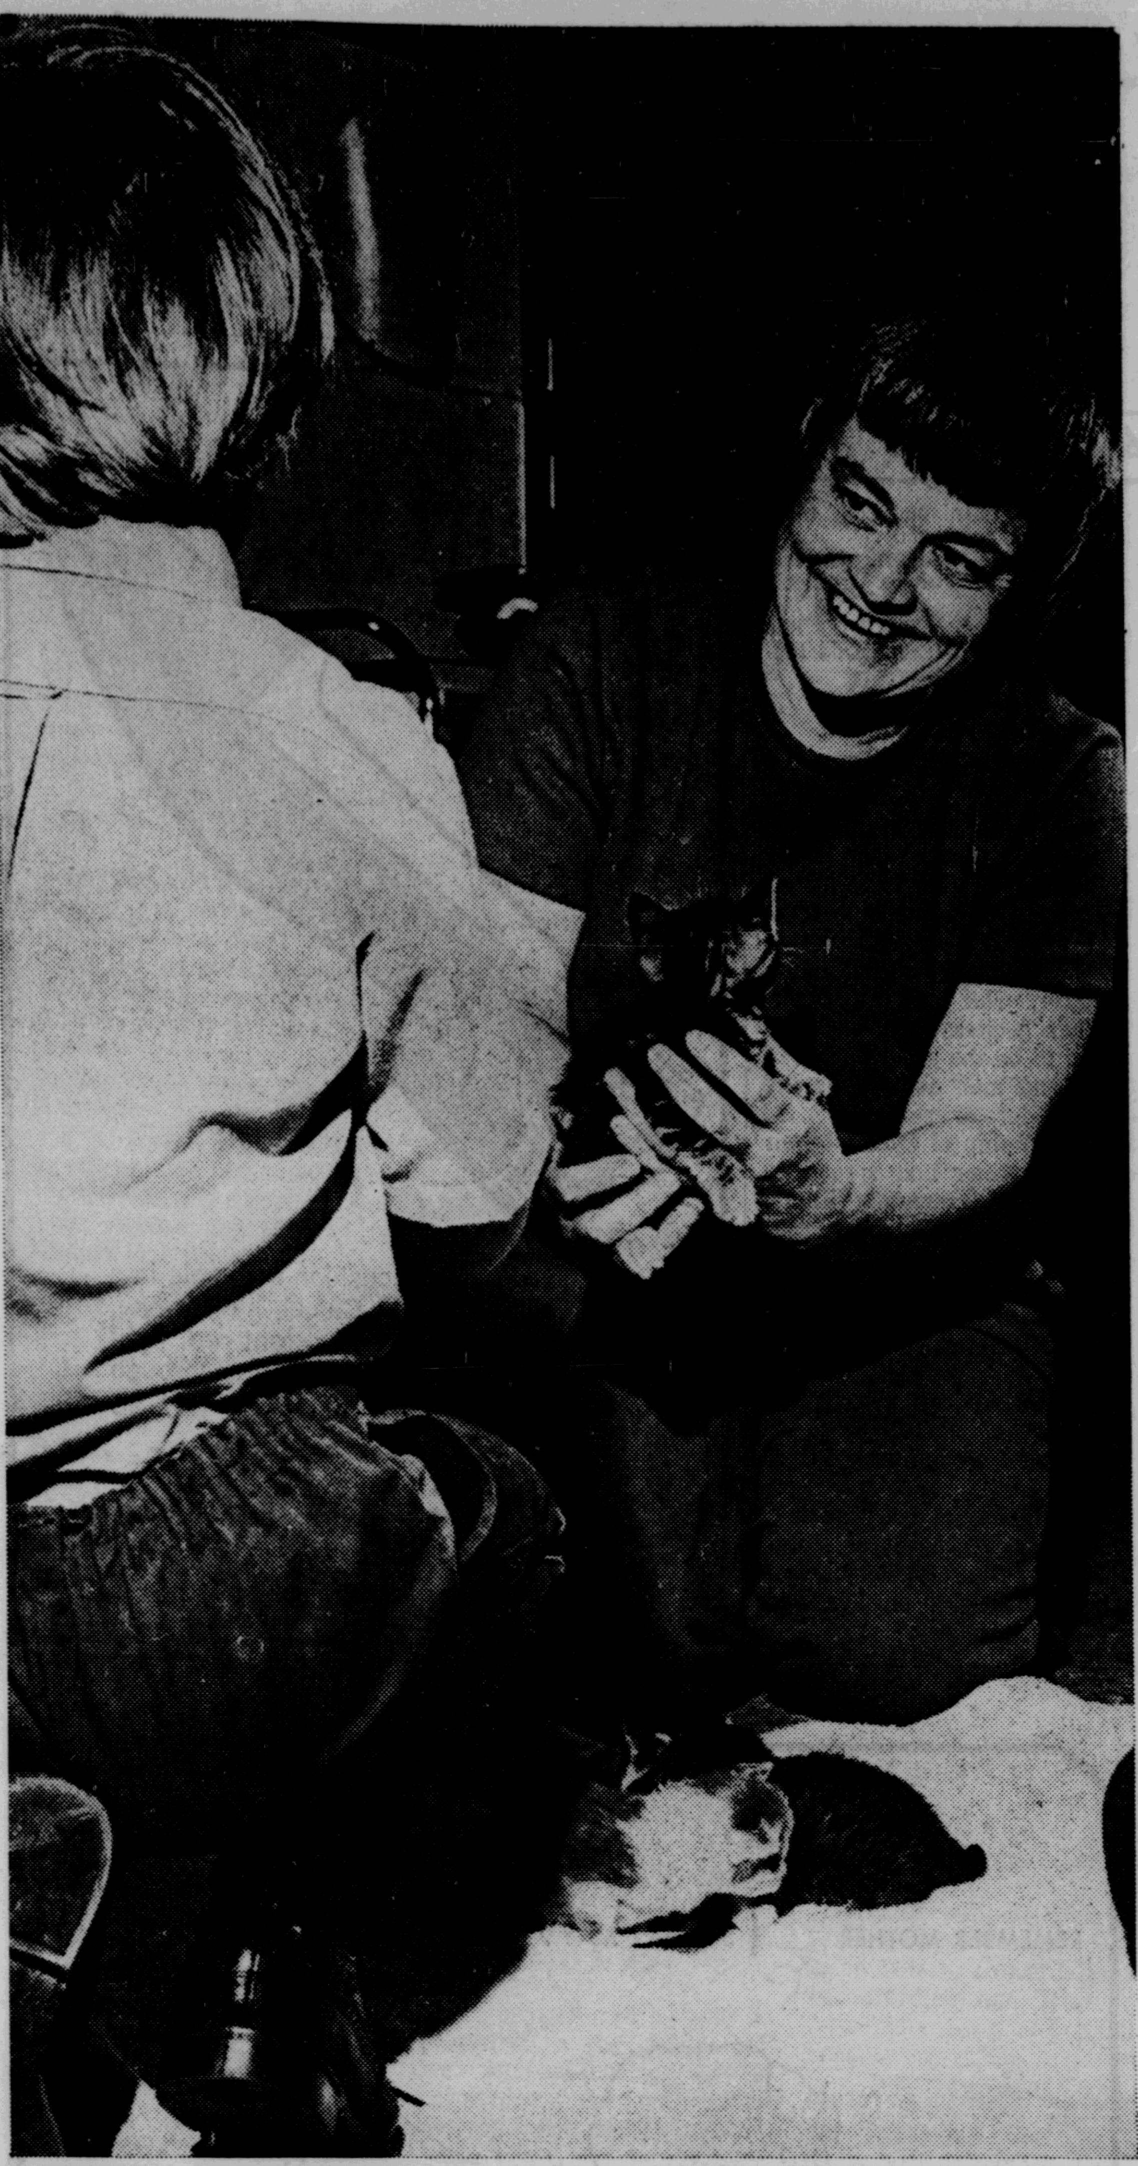
FOSTER FAMILY

The Test Of Love: Learning To Let Go

By PAT BALMES



SHIRLEY POLLOCK shows her foster son how to hold their kitten gently. Three boys whose parents could not provide a home for them temporarily, have been sent to her for love and a home during the past six years. "It makes you feel good to hear from a boy later when he's doing fine," says the foster mother.

"If you can love them while they're with you and then let them go, that's a good attitude," says foster mother Shirley Pollock, who has welcomed three homeless boys into her family, knowing that they would leave her.

To give a home to a boy whose parents temporarily cannot provide one for him and to fill-in her own family, Mrs. Warren Pollock of Mill Valley applied six years ago for her "License to Conduct a Boarding Home for Children."

"Doesn't that sound like Oliver Twist?" laughs Shirley as she takes a moment's rest in her Scott Valley home, which has an organ, a guitar, two cats with kittens, a dog bought for her foster sons and a gentle horse visiting in the backyard.

The Pollocks made their house a foster home to provide their daughter, Betsy, with a brother and because, "God knows there is a need for it." When it looked like Betsy would be an only child, the Pollocks went to the Departemnt of Public Social Services for a foster son. It was not a shortcut to adoption, since foster children are temporary. The agency's aim is to reunite families, she says, adding that age and circumstances prevented the Pollocks from considering adoption.

"THERE ARE all sorts of reasons you get these kids. A parent might be institutionalized. The mother might be in the hospital. Or the child might have parents who delight in beating kids. Then the courts get involved until the trouble is ironed out," says Shirley.

For the first month with a new foster son, Shirley is very careful and tries to be professional. After that, "It's family.'' When she has some problem she can't cope with, Shirley consults the child's case worker.

Shirley has experienced nothing but friendliness and cooperation from her foster son's parents. The boys would often visit their parents on weekends. If his mother were in the hospital, Shirley would think it was quite natural for his father to come to her home to put the boy to bed every night. But she wouldn't want a parent sitting at her kitchen table all day, says Shirley, adding that "from what I've heard, sometimes it is the parents who are the problems."

"IT MAKES YOU feel good to hear from the boy later," says the foster mother. She has received phone calls and cards from her first foster son who lived with the Pollocks for 14 months:

"Hi! Remember me? How are things?"

The voice of that boy, who is "doing fine now," brought back to Shirley the scene six years ago when a resentful, argumentative and rude eight-year-old arrived with his few things in a box. He was upset because his homelife was upset, explains the foster mother. He adjusted after a tough summer. It took him awhile to get used to Shirley and her discipline, which was not what he was used to before.

"He would slam every door in the house when I sent him to his room," she remembers.

SINCE THEN Shirley feels she has learned a lot more about children and mentally apologizes to him for cutting his Beatle haircut and putting him to bed at 7:30 p.m.

Her husband Warren, an architect, adds,

"After a month and a half he settled in then he was part of the family. At first he called us 'Mr. and Mrs.,' but soon it was 'Mom and Dad.' He knew he belonged and was part of the scheme. We treated him exactly the same as we treat Betsy."

Betsy, five years old when her first foster brother arrived, inquired why his own parents didn't take care of him. Her mother explained that, for the time being, his parents could not take care of him so they were.

The tiny girl told this at school until the boy pleaded with his foster mother.

"Can't you make her be quiet!"

Shirley heartily agreed and said that family problems are nobody's business.

HER PARENTS feel that, except for normal sibling rivalries, Betsy has accepted her foster brothers very well, possibly because the first foster brother arrived when she was so young. It isn't always easy for Betsy and sometimes she complains:

"Why do I have to have such a dumb brother?" (But she has always said "brother.")

A foster child receives a modest food and clothing allowance and his medical and dental bills are paid by Medi-Cal.

"But if you think people get into it for the money, forget it," says Warren Pollock.

The Foster Parents Association exchanges clothing for growing foster children. It was organized so foster parents could help one another and could act as a lobbying group about their problems.

ONE GRIEVANCE, Shirley says, is that it is unreasonable to expect a private home to have the same fire prevention facilities as a large institution.

Marin Women

Gap Still Remains In The News Field

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Progress of women toward equality with men in radio and television is disappointing according to Jeanne Toncre of Mill Valley, who returned Friday from the 20th annual convention in Washington, D.C., of American Women in Radio and Television.

Mrs. Toncre, who is director of women's community affairs for KRON-TV, is the newly elected president of the Golden Gate Chapter of the organization.

"A panel program, 'Focus on Women,' was the highlight of the convention, which attracted 650 women broadcasters from all sections of the Uited States and several foreign countries," Mrs. Toncre said.

"MODERATOR WAS Betty Groebli, broadcaster for NBC in Washington, D.C. Panelists were Jo Foxworth, president of her own advertising agency and past national advertising woman of the year; Xandra Kayden, director of development for the women's action program of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; and Marguerite Rawalt (a member of the National Organization for Women), attorney and member of the President's Commission on the Status of Women, 1961-63 and Citizens Advisory Council on the Status of Women, 1963-68.

"The consensus was that discrimination against women is widespread in broadcasting. It was noted that in the entire United States there are less than 300 women broadcasters on radio and television, with Nancy Dickerson, Barbara Walters and Pauline Frederick about the only women broadcasters on network TV, in comparison with men who are all over the tubes," Mrs. Toncre said.

The women said the same discrimination was evident behind the scenes too, Mrs. Toncre said.

All agreed that there should be equal pay for equal work," she said. "Some felt that women should do more about improving their situation, but the question was how. Many thought too aggressive methods only arouse antagonism."

ESPECIALLY FRUSTRATING, Jeanne said, was the lack of sympathy for women's position, revealed in a panel composed of prominent men in the broadcasting field.

"Typical of the way they skirted the issues," she said, "was the attitude of Vincent Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, who said, 'I am fond of women — I have a wife and four daughters — and a woman attorney on my staff.'

"The men said little more than that 'the ladies have come a long way.' They acted as though they were running scared," she commented.

Jeanne said the only sympathy for the women's position came from a man from another country, John Akar, who until last week was the ambassador from Sierra Leone to the United States. He was moderator and keynote speaker for the men's panel on "Future Trends in Communications."

Mrs. Toncre said the general feeling at the end of the convention was that, though women in broadcasting have accomplished much, they are still way down at the bottom of the list in making progress toward equal rights and opportunities.

The women were received by Mrs. Richard M. Nixon.

Kitchen Safety Rules For Children

How can you make the kitchen safer for your children?

Your children probably know a lot about kitchen safety — but don't take their knowledge for granted.

Children forget easily, and they like to experiment and play. If by chance they haven't completely understood about kitchen safety, you may not know it until it's too late.

So, help your children remember these safety rules and help them practice.

TEACH THEM that a range and oven aren't playthings — that top burners get very hot and can burn fingers.

Tell them that the range and oven control knobs are not to be played with.

Keep matches out of the reach of children.

Remember that kids today see knives used in movies and on TV — so be sure that your kitchen knives are safely out of the reach of playful youngsters. It might be wise to let the kids feel the edge and point of a knife while you hold their hands — so they can understand that it is sharp and you can hurt someone.

IF YOU have any large kitchen appliances (such as an empty refrigerator, or a freezer or even a large oven) don't ever let your children play inside them. All too often children accidently lock themselves inside their "special hideout."

ON THE AGENDA

Coffees To Launch Marin Association For Mental Health Membership Drive

May is Mental Health Month and the Marin Association for Mental Health is launching its annual membership drive with a series of coffees. Speakers from the Suicide Prevention Center will talk about the Center's services and its needs.

The coffees from 10 a.m. to noon will be at the home of Mrs. Lawrason Driscoll of Novato on Monday, at the home of Mrs. Axel W. Hoke of Terra Linda on Wednesday and at the home of Mrs. Robert Marvin of Greenbrae on May 21.

Mrs. Hoke is membership chairman.

THREE YOUNG women, recipients of American Field Service international scholarships, will be guests of the Petaluma Chapter American Field Service Monday at 7:30 p.m. at McNear Elementary School's multi-purpose room. The public is invited.

Mrs. Lester Brians, chapter president, said Christine Bubba of Bolivia; Kristina Nilsson from Sweden and Martine Chamla of France will each explain her experiences in the United States while an AFS student.

Miss Bubba is currently attending high school in El Sobrante. Miss Nilsson and Miss Chamla are living in Santa Rosa and attending Piner and Montgomery High Schools respectively.

Committee chairmen for the "international coffee time" are Mmes. Shep Porter, Donald Harris and Robert A. McDonald.

MEMBERS OF the White Hill Parent-Teacher Association will be selling refreshments at the Northern California Car Show Sunday at Sir Francis Drake High School.

THE MARIN County Chapter National Association of Women in Construction will honor their bosses at a dinner Saturday at Rancho Nicascio. Mrs. Juanita McGuire is reservations chairman.

WELCOME WAGON Club members will have their annual salad bowl luncheon Tuesday at Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda. Punch will be served at 11 a.m. and luncheon will be at noon.

Proceeds will benefit the Suicide Prevention Center and the Trainable Mentally Retarded of Oakview School. Mrs. Billy Shelton of Terra Linda is reservations chairman. Child care will be available.

AMONG THE 600 women teachers, librarians, counselors and school administrators attending the state Delta Kappa Gamma convention in Los Angeles were Eva Maria Nieto, Marin Chapter president and Reed District teacher, and Mrs. Delbert V. Henry Jr. of Novato, Tamalpais High School teacher. Mrs. Henry is also a Marin chapter member. The three-day convention finished Saturday.

MRS. GORDON Walker of Marin Country Club Estates in Novato will be installed as chairman of the Oleander Chapter, Marin Foundation, Friends of Arequipa at its meeting to be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. Ross Cox Jr.

Officers to be installed with Mrs. Walker are Mmes. Robert Bliss, chairmen; L. T. Kett, recording secretary; Robert Dinsmore, corresponding secretary; Edward Rifkind, treasurer; and Arthur Lindauer, parliamentarian.

Appointive chairmen are Mmes. Harry Flachs and Don Curran, ways and means; Thomas Ruane, volunteer; C. W. McColpin, house; Carl Johnson and Earl Isaacs, bridge; Harold Collin, historian Christmas cards and stationery, Charles Galt and Arthur Lindauer, publicity.

THE MARIN REGIONAL Council of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation will hold its annual spring luncheon and election of officers at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. David Faraday in Ross.

At this time plans will be completed for the group's festive "mini-auction" on May 21 for members and guests at the McNear summer home in Glenwood. There will be cocktails and a picnic dinner at 7 p.m. Council members are collecting items of unusual interest and value for the auction.

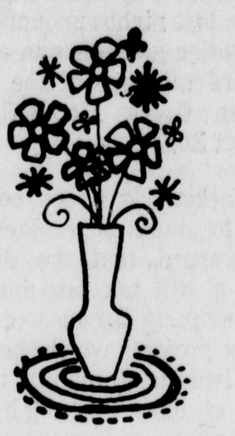
THE MARIN Country Garden Club will hold its election of officers at a meeting to be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the country club in Novato.



Stanford Warner of the Ignacio Nursery will demonstrate bonsai and Oriental pruning, according to program chairmen, Mmes. E. D. Oliphant and Carl Johnson. Mmes. Walker Geddes, Herbert Marsh and Harold Collin are hostesses for the meeting for members and their guests.

THE FIRST social function for the Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club will be a mother's day brunch to be held at Sam's restaurant in Tiburon Sunday.

Small power boats and cruisers will leave Bel Marin Keys at 10 a.m. for the "run to Sam's."

A MOTHER-Daughter luncheon and fashion show will be held by members of Bel Marin Keys Women's Club at 11 a.m. Saturday at Sonoma Joe's in Petaluma.

Narrator will be Mrs. Bill Fox and models are Mmes. Ralph Wilson, Howard Kanter, Neil Harding and Miss Joan Tetu, Milia Klein and Marilyn Kane.

"CELEBRATION FOR an Old Fashioned Girl" is the theme chosen for the 14th annual Dairy Princess Ball for district three Saturday at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. The doors will open at 7 p.m.

This event to select a young woman to represent district three in competition for the title of California Dairy Princess is cosponsored by the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, North Bay Dairy Women and the California Milk Advisory Board.

At 8 p.m. public judging begins of the 11 contestants. The judges will announce the winner at 9:30 p.m., and dancing will follow. A buffet dinner is planned for 10:30 p.m.

North Bay Dairy Women who are committee chairmen are Mmes. Joseph Schultz, Leo Garzelli, Clarence Christensen, Carl Mendonca, Isolena Maestretti, Peter Giacomelli, Henry Corda, Marvin Malacredit, Frank La Franconi, Carl Haderman and Lloyd Draper.

NEW OFFICERS of the Marin Motion Picture and Television Council will be installed Tuesday at their meeting at 10 a.m. at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

Also Douglas Godfrey, auditor; Harold Marelli, historian, and Miss Ellen Clar, Eilert, Mrs. Stanley E. Hood, and Mrs. Harold Keane, directors-at-large. Honorary vice president is Edward Paulson.

A SPAGHETTI and wine dinner with a dixieland jazz band will be sponsored by the Founders Auxiliary of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers Friday at 7 p.m. at the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Dinner will be served family style and dominoes or bridge are part of the program. Chairman Mrs. Vincent White of Mill Valley will be assisted by Mmes. Richard Mayer, invitations; John Ball, food; William Pemberton, decor; James Behr, table setting; Rodney Hartman, entertainment, and Harrison Leppo, publicity.

Purtill-Cummings Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Cummings of Novato have announced the engagement of their daughter, Glenda J Cummings to David T. Purtill.

GLENDA CUMMINGS
Engaged To Be Wed

Glenda is the sister of Patricia and Rick Cummings. Her local grandfather is Joseph Rosson of San Rafael. She was graduated from Novato High School and is employed at the Emporium in Terra Linda.

David is the son of Mrs. Frank Purtill of Novato and the late Mr. Purtill. He is the brother of Barbara and Ralph Purtill of Novato and his local grandmother is Mrs. Elsie Purtill of Novato.

He was graduated from Novato High School, Heald's College of Engineering and Marin Aviation flight school, where he acquired his commercial pilot license, instrument rating and flight instructor's rating.

He is attending the Air Traffic Control School with the Army at Fort Rucker, Ala.

'True Love Knot'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The expression "to tie the knot" as a synonym for getting married comes from the ancients. In olden days, the knot was a symbol of faith and young couples used the "true love knot" to indicate the tie of love and duty in a marriage that would never disoolve.

Mrs. Hendricks Is All-Ways Tops President

Mrs. E. Raymond Hendricks of Novato has been elected president of the All-Ways Tops Club of Novato for the year.

Mrs. Hendricks and her husband have been Novato residents for the past 10 years and formerly owned a garden business there. Gardening is her hobby, as well.

The club, she says, is to help persons who want to "take off pounds sensibly," and it meets each Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in Novato.

Other officers of the club are Mmes. Frank Scarabino, coleader; Darrell DeMartini, secretary; and Richard Hosmer, treasurer.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

She Wants To Find Out If Her Intended Snores At Night

DEAR HELEN:

I am 25 and have been going with my fiance for four years. We've always had a bit of a problem about what he calls my "uptight morals." I insist on waiting for marriage, and now it's close, as he is out of graduate school. He says there aren't many 25-year-old virgins left.

That isn't what's bothering me, however. I'm very sensitive to noise. My fiance says he doesn't snore, but how do I know? After we're married we will live in a small apartment, and I couldn't take a snoring man.

So I want him to come and spend a week with me at my apartment, but sleep on the couch. We'll get to know each other better that way, (mentally) and also I'll find out about the snoring.

He says fine, but only if he doesn't sleep on the couch. Inasmuch as we've waited this long, don't you think he could wait another week? I have perfect control and can't see why he's so stubborn. — CINDY

DEAR CINDY:

Have you considered spinsterhood? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it that only the rich or the very poor can afford psychiatric help?

My husband and I need a counselor but we can't afford $50 a visit. Even group therapy at half the price is out of the question. I've tried ministers, but our troubles go deeper than that. We don't have a Family Service Agency or Mental Health Clinic in our town.

Where can salaried people go when they need psychotherapy? — DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I wish I had an answer to your question. Perhaps if I print it often enough, areas now lacking in mental health clinics or Family Service Agencies will see the need and meet it.

How many marriages, families, lives could be saved if only expert counseling were available at fees working people could afford! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My family says I am wrong to insist they have nothing to do with the harpy who has taken away my husband. What do you say?

I have been married for 40 years. We have 12 children, three still at home, 40 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. I am 56 and my husband is 60.

On our 40th anniversary I found out he was seeing a 32-year-old woman who has seven children. He left me seven months ago, saying he had to cheat on me because "I didn't trust him." He pays me support, and I intend to divorce him soon, though I still love him.

He brings this woman to see our married children and, although they don't like her, they allow her into their homes so they can see their father. I say they should insist he visit them alone, or not at all.

Your opinion, please? — TOO TRUSTING TOO LONG

DEAR TTTL:

Your children may have the right idea: kindness and a firm grip on family ties has brought many a wandering older man back to his wife, whereas a vindictive attitude can push him farther away. Chances are good that this July-November romance won't last. You still love your husband, so let him know — through the children — that he can come home. — H.

"breaking in a new colt." They are listed with the agency as wanting a boy younger than Betsy because, as Shirley says, she is not expert, only a harried mother who is not ready to cope with a teen-ager's problems.

When the agency suggested they take in a first grade boy the same age as Betsy, Warren wanted to meet the boy first. A "freckled, blue-eyed doll" came with his father for the introduction, carrying his Halloween costume. The boy asked if he could stay and the Pollocks told him they would let him know on Monday. As the car turned around in front of their house, the Pollocks said to each other:

"Why wait until Monday?"

Betsy took her new twin by the hand to school to show him off. Her mother says that this second foster son was not resentful. He was from a large, close family and he knew they would be reunited soon. Also, his father, a widower, would gather all his children from their foster homes and take them out on Sundays.

He was their foster son for 16 months. The Pollocks have recently received a letter from him and Betsy urges her mother to hurry up and write back.

SHIRLEY FEELS more relaxed with her third foster son who has lived with them for two years, since he was four years old. Coming home from kindergarten, he stops briefly in the house to lisp,

"Mommie, will you go to the open house at school tonight?" And then he is off to climb a tree.

This one will be hard to let go, Shirley says.

These foster sons have filled-in her family and re-created the atmosphere Shirley knew as one of three children in Glencoe, Ill.

"One Christmas we had all ages of relatives-who-were-not-strangers, from a great-great grandmother of 93 to a year-old baby. Later I came out here where I didn't know anybody," says Shirley.

She attended New Trier High School in Winnetka, Ill. She received her bachelor's degree in modern languages at Grinnell College in Iowa. On a tour of Europe, Shirley visited Luxembourgers who had billeted her father during the First World War and Viennese who had received Care packages from her grandmother.

RETURNING HOME, she became a budget analyst and, in 1951, arrived in San Francisco on a Greyhound bus. Here she met Warren, an architect from Seattle, at night school, and they were married in 1954. Betsy was born in 1960.

Shirley is learning to play the organ and guitar, and has sung in choral groups like Community Chorus at College of Marin. She says she "grew up in church choirs."

The Pollocks enjoy camping in the high Sierra.

In 1968 they bought a Coronado 25 sailboat "after Shirley had had only one sailing lesson." Warren had sailed years ago in Seattle. The family enjoys living aboard ship on their vacations on the Delta. While cruising the children stay in the cabin or wear life jackets on deck.

"The boy has loved the boat," says his foster mother.

Promises, Promises

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Promise her anything but give her Arpege" is the perfume slogan that has worked its way into the language. But the slogan also developed into a class exercise at the second grade Locust Valley Elementary School in Locust Valley, N.Y. The children were asked to write their promises —to be given to parents.

Bridal Shopping

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bridal shopping trips should be started at least three to six months before the wedding. Certainly not later than two months before. It usually takes six to eight weeks to deliver the gown, and there's also the time needed for making the wedding portrait.

Campbell-Gamas Engagement Told

The engagement of Carol Lee Gamas of Fairfax to Martin L. Campbell has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nelson Gamas, also of Fairfax.

The sister of Michael and Denise Gamas of Fairfax, Carol is employed with Stan's For Sports, Inc., in Pleasant Hill. She was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School, attended the College of Marin and Sonoma State College.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Campbell of Ventura are Martin's parents, and he is the brother of Harvey Campbell of Moraga. He was graduated from Ventura Senior High School and Brooks Institute of Photography in Santa Barbara and is now employed with Stan's For Sports Inc. in San Rafael.

Cybele Was First 'Mother' Honored

The first mother to be honored with special yearly veneration was Cybele, according to research done by a card manufacturer. She was an earth-mother goddess who was supposed to be the great parent of gods and men as well as the lower orders of creation.

The worship of Cybele began in Asia Minor and spread to Greece and eventually Rome. Later, the ancients became confused as her cult spread and confounded her with local matriarchal dieties such as Rhea, Ge and Demeter.

These various Mediterranean mother goddesses closely resembled one another and are products of similar concepts of fertility of the earth and regeneration of life every spring. Our modern concept of Mother's Day shuns goddesses and focuses attention on live and specific 'moms.'

Exclusion Appeal By Smog Board

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors appealed yesterday to the state to rescind its decision to exclude large portions of Sonoma and Solano counties from the district. (Another pollution control district story, page 1)

But if the state Air Resources Board refuses to rescind its April decision, then it should reduce the territory to be excluded, the directors unanimously declared.

They also urged that the state board review the effect of any exclusion of territory after six months.

The state board is to take final action on the precise boundaries of the excluded territory at its May 19 meeting in Eureka.

Sonoma, Solano and Napa counties were annexed to the district by the 1970 Legislature, effective this coming July 1. The 1970 law, however, allowed the counties to seek exclusion of territory from the district, which two of them promptly did.

Sonoma supervisors won tentative approval from the state board of a dividing line generally from Bodega Bay to Mount St. Helena. It would put 647 square miles in the district, and exclude 932 square miles, according to county figures.

Such a line also would exclude the county's major lumber mills from the Bay Area district's jurisdiction, a point that bothered Santa Rosa Mayor Gerald M. Poznanovich. "I'm not convinced there are two separate air basins in the county,'' he told the board.

He said that his city council had not opposed the county's plea to the state board because the council was certain the plea would be rejected.

The district's chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan, said that there was no effective air pollution control in either Yolo or Mendocino counties, adjacent to the territory to be excluded from the Bay Area district. The result was that there would be virtually no air pollution control over those portions of Sonoma and Solano, Callaghan said.

The Bay Area district has argued that air contaminants emitted anywhere in the nine-county region affect air quality in other parts of the region.

Pollution Control District Directors Also:

RESEARCH — Received an estimate from Callaghan that a proposed research and development section will cost $100,000 next fiscal year. Its duties will include drafting mathematical models to show the effect of new developments, and computing the region's maximum capacity for each air contaminant.

VIOLATIONS — Received report that violation notices were issued last month for illegal backyard burning against Les Walsh of San Rafael and against Shoreline Market in Tamalpais Valley.

BOARD — Reappointed Dr. Theodore K. Cleveland of Berkeley, a chemical engineer, to the district's three-member hearing board.

FEES — Opposed legislation requiring air pollution control districts to raise at least half their budgets from inspection, registration and permit fees. Callaghan, noting the district's budget would be about $3 million next fiscal year, said netting $1.5 million from fees would be "impossible'' because of high costs in administering fees.

VARIANCES — Opposed legislation requiring the district board of directors to approve any variance granted by the district's hearing board. Calvo said that such a requirement would "keep us tied up.''

BAN — Voted "token support'' to a bill banning use of any engine manufactured after 1974 which discharges any pollutant into the atmosphere. Directors agreed such a bill could not pass, but said it deserved "moral support.''

SUPER AGENCY — Opposed AB 1056 by Assemblyman Edwin L. z'Berg, D-West Sacramento, which would create a state Environmental Quality Board with jurisdiction over solid waste, the coastline, air and water pollution.

USED VEHICLES — Endorsed a bill increasing from $65 to $100 the maximum cost of pollution control devices which may be accredited for use on used vehicles. Callaghan said the current $65 maximum had failed to induce industry to develop the devices.

INSPECTION — Endorsed a bill controlling emissions from motor vehicles through an inspection program.

Chairman Of Creek Zone Quits

Larkspur City Council Neil R. Brixon last night announced his resignation as chairman and as a board member of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control District Zone 9.

He asked his fellow councilmen to name a replacement and warned that the district faced a stiff tax rate increase — principally because of flood control projects which, he said, were beneficial mainly to the Town of Ross though Ross would not be paying the bulk of the tax.

Brixon said he was leaving the zone board — which he had served since it was formed — for compelling personal reasons, but gave no specifics.

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst joined in voicing worries about the zone budget. Bathurst also reported that Fairfax and San Anselmo have discussed withdrawing maintenance support from the zone.

Tax rate for the Zone 9 is 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, but may jump to 29.1 cents simply to finance some $350,000 to $400,000 worth of flood control work in Ross during the next two years, Bathurst predicted.

He said this would mean Larkspur would contribute $105,000 toward the work; Corte Madera $84,700; unincorporated areas of the zone $125,300 and the Town of Ross only $35,000.

The Larkspur councilmen postponed decisions on Brixon's replacement and on action in the flood control outlay to their June 3 meeting.

Mother's Day

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has asked the Rev. John Harper, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church situated one block north of the White House, to conduct Mother's Day worship services in the East Room Sunday.

Architect Was Not At Church Meeting

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that architect Howard Johnson of Mill Valley appeared Tuesday night at a meeting held at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and delving into proposed demolition of the structure.

Johnson, who has questioned the proposed razing, actually appeared the same night at a meeting in a private home that was called by a group of congregation members also opposed to demolition.

The possession of butter was a symbol of a person's wealth in early Finland.

Horseshoes Challenge Is Accepted

Larkspur city fathers last night accepted the Corte Madera Town Council's challenge to a horseshoe pitching contest to be held the evening of July 3 in the Corte Madera Park.

The clash will be a preliminary to the Twin Cities' annual Fourth of July parade and festivities. Larkspur councilmen also approved plans and waived fees for the parade at last night's meeting.

In accepting the horseshoe challenge, the councilmen sounded like Cassius Clay, erstwhile heavyweight boxing champ, warming up his vocal cords before a bout.

"I don't see how we can help but win,'' declared Councilman William G. Fleckles. ". . . that roly poly little mayor they've got. . .''

None of the councilmen would admit to prowess in the horseshoe pits, but declared, "there ought to be four good men on the city staff who can win for us.''

Make Paint Test

Before washing walls, test the paint or other finish to make sure it takes to washing. Use a sudsy sponge to wipe a small section in a concealed corner. If the area looks the same, only cleaner, washing the entire wall is safe.

11 To Vie Saturday For Dairy Princess

Eleven girls — seven from Petaluma — will vie Saturday night in Petaluma for the district title in the California Dairy Princess contest.

The winner, who will take the crown from Beverly Diane Smith of Tomales, 1970 district princess, will represent the five-county dairy region in the state contest in Hollywood on June 24.

Judging will begin at 8 p.m. at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The judges will be Dr. Guy F. Macleod of Oakland, an entomologist and head of a study of agricultural education in California; Robert L. Essick, vice president in charge of agricultural loans at Wells Fargo Bank, San Francisco, and Suzanne Natrass, a free lance model and receptionist for Crocker-Citizens National Bank in San Francisco.

A dance will follow the 9:30 p.m. coronation.

The contestants are:

Pauline Garzelli, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Garzelli of 7975 Petaluma Hill Road, Penngrove. She is an English major at Sonoma State College.

Linda Schultz, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shultz of 3328 Eastman Lane, Petaluma. She is a senior at Petaluma High.

Sharon Vondrak, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vondrak of 81 West Cotati Avenue, Cotati. She is a senior at St. Vincent High.

Hayakawa Backs Mass Arrests

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Mass arrests of antiwar demonstrators in Washington may be the best way to "end the problem quickly and without bloodshed,'' according to President S.I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College.

Hayakawa, of Mill Valley, said Wednesday the "final ingredient'' for restoration of civil peace "is the willingness to use the power required to end the troubles.''

"The kind of action that the authorities are taking may do more to end the problem quickly and without bloodshed than any form of appeasement or indecision,'' he told the Comstock Club, a businessmen's group.

Hayakawa, whose campus was the site of prolonged and often violent protests in 1968-69, said that no television viewer "really likes to see mob scenes where young people are in danger of physical harm.''

Three Little Quakes

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Three light earthquakes rolled through parts of Naples early today, sending some residents fleeing into the streets in nightgowns and pajamas. There were no reports of injuries or damage.

Coffees To Launch Marin Association For Mental Health Membership Drive

May is Mental Health Month and the Marin Association for Mental Health is launching its annual membership drive with a series of coffees. Speakers from the Suicide Prevention Center will talk about the Center's services and its needs.

The coffees from 10 a.m. to noon will be at the home of Mrs. Lawrason Driscoll of Novato on Monday, at the home of Mrs. Axel W. Hoke of Terra Linda on Wednesday and at the home of Mrs. Robert Marvin of Greenbrae on May 21.

Mrs. Hoke is membership chairman.

THREE YOUNG women, recipients of American Field Service international scholarships, will be guests of the Petaluma Chapter American Field Service Monday at 7:30 p.m. at McNear Elementary School's multi-purpose room. The public is invited.

Mrs. Lester Brians, chapter president, said Christine Bubba of Bolivia; Kristina Nilsson from Sweden and Martine Chamla of France will each explain her experiences in the United States while an AFS student.

Miss Bubba is currently attending high school in El Sobrante. Miss Nilsson and Miss Chamla are living in Santa Rosa and attending Piner and Montgomery High Schools respectively.

Committee chairmen for the "international coffee time" are Mmes. Shep Porter, Donald Harris and Robert A. McDonald.

MEMBERS OF the White Hill Parent-Teacher Association will be selling refreshments at the Northern California Car Show Sunday at Sir Francis Drake High School.

THE MARIN County Chapter National Association of Women in Construction will honor their bosses at a dinner Saturday at Rancho Nicascio. Mrs. Juanita McGuire is reservations chairman.

WELCOME WAGON Club members will have their annual salad bowl luncheon Tuesday at Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda. Punch will be served at 11 a.m. and luncheon will be at noon.

Proceeds will benefit the Suicide Prevention Center and the Trainable Mentally Retarded of Oakview School. Mrs. Billy Shelton of Terra Linda is reservations chairman. Child care will be available.

AMONG THE 600 women teachers, librarians, counselors and school administrators attending the state Delta Kappa Gamma convention in Los Angeles were Eva Maria Nieto, Marin Chapter president and Reed District teacher, and Mrs. Delbert V. Henry Jr. of Novato, Tamalpais High School teacher. Mrs. Henry is also a Marin chapter member. The three-day convention finished Saturday.

MRS. GORDON Walker of Marin Country Club Estates in Novato will be installed as chairman of the Oleander Chapter, Marin Foundation, Friends of Arequipa at its meeting to be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. Ross Cox Jr.

Appointive chairmen are Mmes. Harry Flachs and Don Curran, ways and means; Thomas Ruane, volunteer; C. W. McColpin, house; Carl Johnson and Earl Isaacs, bridge; Harold Collin, historian Christmas cards and stationery, Charles Galt and Arthur Lindauer, publicity.

THE MARIN REGIONAL Council of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation will hold its annual spring luncheon and election of officers at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. David Faraday in Ross.

At this time plans will be completed for the group's festive "mini-auction" on May 21 for members and guests at the McNear summer home in Glenwood. There will be cocktails and a picnic dinner at 7 p.m. Council members are collecting items of unusual interest and value for the auction.

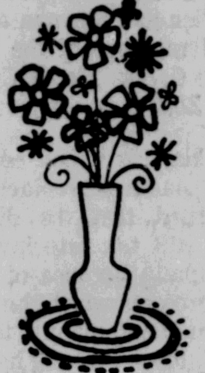
THE MARIN Country Garden Club will hold its election of officers at a meeting to be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the country club in Novato.



Stanford Warner of the Ignacio Nursery will demonstrate bonsai and Oriental pruning, according to program chairmen, Mmes. E. D. Oliphant and Carl Johnson. Mmes. Walker Geddes, Herbert Marsh and Harold Collin are hostesses for the meeting for members and their guests.

THE FIRST social function for the Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club will be a mother's day brunch to be held at Sam's restaurant in Tiburon Sunday.

Small power boats and cruisers will leave Bel Marin Keys at 10 a.m. for the "run to Sam's."

A MOTHER-Daughter luncheon and fashion show will be held by members of Bel Marin Keys Women's Club at 11 a.m. Saturday at Sonoma Joe's in Petaluma.

Narrator will be Mrs. Bill Fox and models are Mmes. Ralph Wilson, Howard Kanter, Neil Harding and Miss Joan Tetu, Milia Klein and Marilyn Kane.

"CELEBRATION FOR an Old Fashioned Girl" is the theme chosen for the 14th annual Dairy Princess Ball for district three Saturday at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. The doors will open at 7 p.m.

This event to select a young woman to represent district three in competition for the title of California Dairy Princess is cosponsored by the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, North Bay Dairy Women and the California Milk Advisory Board.

At 8 p.m. public judging begins of the 11 contestants. The judges will announce the winner at 9:30 p.m., and dancing will follow. A buffet dinner is planned for 10:30 p.m.

North Bay Dairy Women who are committee chairmen are Mmes. Joseph Schultz, Leo Garzelli, Clarence Christensen, Carl Mendonca, Isolena Maestretti, Peter Giacomelli, Henry Corda, Marvin Malacredit, Frank La Franconi, Carl Haderman and Lloyd Draper.

NEW OFFICERS of the Marin Motion Picture and Television Council will be installed Tuesday at their meeting at 10 a.m. at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

Also Douglas Godfrey, auditor; Harold Marelli, historian, and Miss Ellen Clar, Eilert, Mrs. Stanley E. Hood, and Mrs. Harold Keane, directors-at-large. Honorary vice president is Edward Paulson.

A SPAGHETTI and wine dinner with a dixieland jazz band will be sponsored by the Founders Auxiliary of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers Friday at 7 p.m. at the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Dinner will be served family style and dominoes or bridge are part of the program. Chairman Mrs. Vincent White of Mill Valley will be assisted by Mmes. Richard Mayer, invitations; John Ball, food; William Pemberton, decor; James Behr, table setting; Rodney Hartman, entertainment, and Harrison Leppo, publicity.

Purtill-Cummings Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Cummings of Novato have announced the engagement of their daughter, Glenda J Cummings to David T. Purtill.

GLENDA CUMMINGS
Engaged To Be Wed

Glenda is the sister of Patricia and Rick Cummings. Her local grandfather is Joseph Rosson of San Rafael. She was graduated from Novato High School and is employed at the Emporium in Terra Linda.

David is the son of Mrs. Frank Purtill of Novato and the late Mr. Purtill. He is the brother of Barbara and Ralph Purtill of Novato and his local grandmother is Mrs. Elsie Purtill of Novato.

He was graduated from Novato High School, Heald's College of Engineering and Marin Aviation flight school, where he acquired his commercial pilot license, instrument rating and flight instructor's rating.

He is attending the Air Traffic Control School with the Army at Fort Rucker, Ala.

Mrs. Hendricks Is All-Ways Tops President

Mrs. E. Raymond Hendricks of Novato has been elected president of the All-Ways Tops Club of Novato for the year.

Mrs. Hendricks and her husband have been Novato residents for the past 10 years and formerly owned a garden business there. Gardening is her hobby, as well.

The club, she says, is to help persons who want to "take off pounds sensibly," and it meets each Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in Novato.

Other officers of the club are Mmes. Frank Scarabino, co-leader; Darrell DeMartini, secretary; and Richard Hosmer, treasurer.

'True Love Knot'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The expression "to tie the knot" as a synonym for getting married comes from the ancients. In olden days, the knot was a symbol of faith and young couples used the "true love knot" to indicate the tie of love and duty in a marriage that would never disoolve.

Panel Reaffirms Antiwar Position

Directors of the Strawberry Recreation District last night reaffirmed an earlier stand and opposed the war in Southeast Asia, blaming it for causing America to become "brutalized and morally ill."

Almost one year ago, on May 12, 1970, the board declared it was "unalterably opposed" to the war and urged immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

Clerk Jeanne Heick said directors adopted a resolution last night reading:

"The board of directors reaffirms the previously stated position of the prior board decrying and disapproving of present military acts in Southeast Asia. Each day this war continues our nation becomes more brutalized and morally ill.

"We respectfully request again the immediate withdrawal of all military forces from Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos and instruct counsel to write letters to all appropriate elected officials."

The vote was 4-0, with director Conrad Von Blankenburg absent.

Directors also approved an agreement with Mill Valley Refuse Service to collect recyclable materials in the district for delivery to Whole Systems, Inc.

Mrs. Heick said the refuse firm will charge customers $1.50 per month for the service. Whole Systems will supply six separate sacks for clear, brown and green glass and tin, aluminum and bimetal cans.

Newspapers and cardboard tied in bundles also will be collected, she said.

Warehouse Plans Are Turned Down

The Novato Plan Review committee last night rejected plans by North Marin Investors for a warehouse and retail sales building as not harmonious with the neighborhood.

The firm plans to construct a 4,975 square foot building on the east side of Reichert Avenue between Sweetser Avenue and Scown Lane.

The Novato Plan Review Committee also:

RENTAL BUSINESS — Approved plans by E. D. McGillicuddy for a building to house a general equipment rental business adjacent to 6981 Redwood Highway.

BOAT SALES — Approved plans by Ladner N. Cameron for a boat sales and service building on the east side of Highway 101, between Novato Creek and the end of Redwood Road.

SHOP — Approved plans by David E. Milano for construction of a 7,000-square-foot building adjacent to 860 Sweetser Avenue for expansion of Aaero Heating and Sheetmetal and other light industrial uses.

SPECIAL MEETING — Scheduled a special meeting at 8 p.m. May 26 at the Novato Community House to study the plan review committee section of the city zoning ordinance with a view toward recommending changes.

Arraignment On Pot Counts

Daniel J. Miller, 25, and Thomas W. Villas, 24, both of Sausalito, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing and cultivating marijuana and possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

They are to plead to the charges May 26.

The pair was arrested Sunday when Sausalito police went to their apartment on a complaint by neighbors of loud music.

The suspected pot and equipment were found in the apartment, police said.

A roommate of the pair, Michael G. Edmond, a San Francisco undercover narcotics agent, is to be arraigned on the same charges tomorrow.

New Grand Jury Sets First Meeting

The 1971 Marin County Grand Jury will hold its first meeting Tuesday at the Hall of Justice.

The jury has agreed to meet on the second Tuesday of each month at 1:30 p.m. and on the fourth Monday of each month at 8 p.m.

First Stage Fire Budget Is Approved

Kentfield Fire District directors last night approved a preliminary budget of $181,196, an 18 per cent decrease from last year's budget of $221,196.

Arthur L. Poganski, board secretary, said the $40,000 difference was due to the district's recent purchase of a new pumper; most of the money for the pumper was included in last year's budget.

The breakdown of the budget is $127,196 for salaries and fringe benefits; $34,000 for maintenance and $20,000 for capital outlay, Poganski reported.

This year's tax rate is 88 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Poganski said he could not estimate what the new tax rate will be, although he anticipates a lower rate.

The directors are expected to adopt the budget at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday. At that time, they also will discuss hiring a new fire marshal. Rolf Stahlbaum, who resigned as fire marshal last month, left yesterday for Washington where he will operate a restaurant, Poganski said.

Sprinkler Money

Peacock Gap Homeowners Association last night approved $4,500 for the underground sprinkler system at the entrance of Peacock and Riviera drives, according to Constantine Carpou, secretary.

Assembly Advances Strikebreaker Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill said by labor to "outlaw professional strikebreakers" and called "a compulsory closing law" by management reached the Assembly floor yesterday after a voice vote split along party lines in the Assembly Labor Relations Committee.

Committee chairman David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, sponsored the bill which would make it illegal for anyone to offer himself three times in five years to replace a worker on strike, and would make it a misdemeanor for an employer to hire "professional strikebreakers." Roberti argued workers needed protection "from persons who cross state lines and prey on the jobs of Californians" — already prohibited by federal law.

Spokesmen for the California Conference of Employers and the California Newspaper Publishers Association called the bill "a compulsory closing law" and "a turkey" introduced and voted down repeatedly for the past 10 years.

Former State Labor Commissioner Sigmund Arywitz of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor testified violence is associated with strikebreakers because "these people are not nice. Some carry guns."

Committee member William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, asked if it were strikebreakers who killed a nonunion printer at the struck Los Angeles Herald-Examiner and systems design engineer Allan W. Daly of the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

"I don't know . . . we're not policemen," answered John Henning, secretary-treasurer of the California Labor Federation.

The slaying of Los Angeles printer Maurice Maynard is unsolved; Frank J. Thurber, a member of the Newspaper Mailers Union, was convicted of murdering Daly, who had never worked for a newspaper before.

The mailers union is an affiliate of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the Independent-Journal since Jan. 7, 1970. Daly was fatally wounded in his San Francisco home on July 4, 1970.

Year In Jail In Pot Case

Dennis B. Williams, 20, of Novato, was sentenced to one year in Marin County Jail yesterday for selling marijuana.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court also placed Williams on probation for three years.

Williams was found guilty by a superior court jury in March of selling the drug last Aug. 17.

Exclusion Appeal By Smog Board

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors appealed yesterday to the state to rescind its decision to exclude large portions of Sonoma and Solano counties from the district. (Another pollution control district story, page 1)

But if the state Air Resources Board refuses to rescind its April decision, then it should reduce the territory to be excluded, the directors unanimously declared.

They also urged that the state board review the effect of any exclusion of territory after six months.

The state board is to take final action on the precise boundaries of the excluded territory at its May 19 meeting in Eureka.

Sonoma, Solano and Napa counties were annexed to the district by the 1970 Legislature, effective this coming July 1. The 1970 law, however, allowed the counties to seek exclusion of territory from the district, which two of them promptly did.

Sonoma supervisors won tentative approval from the state board of a dividing line generally from Bodega Bay to Mount St. Helena. It would put 647 square miles in the district, and exclude 932 square miles, according to county figures.

Such a line also would exclude the county's major lumber mills from the Bay Area district's jurisdiction, a point that bothered Santa Rosa Mayor Gerald M. Poznanovich. "I'm not convinced there are two separate air basins in the county," he told the board.

He said that his city council had not opposed the county's plea to the state board because the council was certain the plea would be rejected.

The district's chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan, said that there was no effective air pollution control in either Yolo or Mendocino counties, adjacent to the territory to be excluded from the Bay Area district. The result was that there would be virtually no air pollution control over those portions of Sonoma and Solano, Callaghan said.

The Bay Area district has argued that air contaminants emitted anywhere in the nine-county region affect air quality in other parts of the region.

Pollution Control District Directors Also:

RESEARCH — Received an estimate from Callaghan that a proposed research and development section will cost $100,000 next fiscal year. Its duties will include drafting mathematical models to show the effect of new developments, and computing the region's maximum capacity for each air contaminant.

VIOLATIONS — Received report that violation notices were issued last month for illegal backyard burning against Les Walsh of San Rafael and against Shoreline Market in Tamalpais Valley.

BOARD — Reappointed Dr. Theodore K. Cleveland of Berkeley, a chemical engineer, to the district's three-member hearing board.

FEES — Opposed legislation requiring air pollution control districts to raise at least half their budgets from inspection, registration and permit fees. Callaghan, noting the district's budget would be about $3 million next fiscal year, said netting $1.5 million from fees would be "impossible" because of high costs in administering fees.

VARIANCES — Opposed legislation requiring the district board of directors to approve any variance granted by the district's hearing board. Calvo said that such a requirement would "keep us tied up."

BAN — Voted "token support" to a bill banning use of any engine manufactured after 1974 which discharges any pollutant into the atmosphere. Directors agreed such a bill could not pass, but said it deserved "moral support."

SUPER AGENCY — Opposed AB 1056 by Assemblyman Edwin L. z'Berg, D-West Sacramento, which would create a state Environmental Quality Board with jurisdiction over solid waste, the coastline, air and water pollution.

USED VEHICLES — Endorsed a bill increasing from $65 to $100 the maximum cost of pollution control devices which may be accredited for use on used vehicles. Callaghan said the current $65 maximum had failed to induce industry to develop the devices.

INSPECTION — Endorsed a bill controlling emissions from motor vehicles through an inspection program.

Chairman Of Creek Zone Quits

Larkspur City Council Neil R. Brixon last night announced his resignation as chairman and as a board member of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control District Zone 9.

He asked his fellow councilmen to name a replacement and warned that the district faced a stiff tax rate increase — principally because of flood control projects which, he said, were beneficial mainly to the Town of Ross though Ross would not be paying the bulk of the tax.

Brixon said he was leaving the zone board — which he had served since it was formed — for compelling personal reasons, but gave no specifics.

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst joined in voicing worries about the zone budget. Bathurst also reported that Fairfax and San Anselmo have discussed withdrawing maintenance support from the zone.

Tax rate for the Zone 9 is 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, but may jump to 29.1 cents simply to finance some $350,000 to $400,000 worth of flood control work in Ross during the next two years, Bathurst predicted.

He said this would mean Larkspur would contribute $105,000 toward the work; Corte Madera $84,700; unincorporated areas of the zone $125,300 and the Town of Ross only $35,000.

The Larkspur councilmen postponed decisions on Brixon's replacement and on action in the flood control outlay to their June 3 meeting.

Architect Was Not At Church Meeting

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that architect Howard Johnson of Mill Valley appeared Tuesday night at a meeting held at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and delving into proposed demolition of the structure.

Johnson, who has questioned the proposed razing, actually appeared the same night at a meeting in a private home that was called by a group of congregation members also opposed to demolition.

The possession of butter was a symbol of a person's wealth in early Finland.

Mother's Day

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has asked the Rev. John Harper, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church situated one block north of the White House, to conduct Mother's Day worship services in the East Room Sunday.

Horseshoes Challenge Is Accepted

Larkspur city fathers last night accepted the Corte Madera Town Council's challenge to a horseshoe pitching contest to be held the evening of July 3 in the Corte Madera Park.

The clash will be a preliminary to the Twin Cities' annual Fourth of July parade and festivities. Larkspur councilmen also approved plans and waived fees for the parade at last night's meeting.

In accepting the horseshoe challenge, the councilmen sounded like Cassius Clay, erstwhile heavyweight boxing champ, warming up his vocal cords before a bout.

"I don't see how we can help but win," declared Councilman William G. Fleckles. "... that roly poly little mayor they've got. . ."

None of the councilmen would admit to prowess in the horseshoe pits, but declared, "there ought to be four good men on the city staff who can win for us."

Make Paint Test

Before washing walls, test the paint or other finish to make sure it takes to washing. Use a sudsy sponge to wipe a small section in a concealed corner. If the area looks the same, only cleaner, washing the entire wall is safe.

11 To Vie Saturday For Dairy Princess

Eleven girls — seven from Petaluma — will vie Saturday night in Petaluma for the district title in the California Dairy Princess contest.

The winner, who will take the crown from Beverly Diane Smith of Tomales, 1970 district princess, will represent the five-county dairy region in the state contest in Hollywood on June 24.

Judging will begin at 8 p.m. at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The judges will be Dr. Guy F. Macleod of Oakland, an entomologist and head of a study of agricultural education in California; Robert L. Essick, vice president in charge of agricultural loans at Wells Fargo Bank, San Francisco, and Suzanne Natrass, a free lance model and receptionist for Crocker-Citizens National Bank in San Francisco.

A dance will follow the 9:30 p.m. coronation.

The contestants are:

Antoinette Azevedo, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Azevedo of 3100 Skillman Lane, Petaluma. She is a senior at St. Vincent High School.

Pauline Garzelli, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Garzelli of 7975 Petaluma Hill Road, Penngrove. She is an English major at Sonoma State College.

Linda Schultz, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shultz of 3328 Eastman Lane, Petaluma. She is a senior at Petaluma High.

Sharon Vondrak, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vondrak of 81 West Cotati Avenue, Cotati. She is a senior at St. Vincent High.

Hayakawa Backs Mass Arrests

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Mass arrests of antiwar demonstrators in Washington may be the best way to "end the problem quickly and without bloodshed," according to President S.I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College.

Hayakawa, of Mill Valley, said Wednesday the "final ingredient" for restoration of civil peace "is the willingness to use the power required to end the troubles."

"The kind of action that the authorities are taking may do more to end the problem quickly and without bloodshed than any form of appeasement or indecision," he told the Comstock Club, a businessmen's group.

Hayakawa, whose campus was the site of prolonged and often violent protests in 1968-69, said that no television viewer "really likes to see mob scenes where young people are in danger of physical harm."

Three Little Quakes

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Three light earthquakes rolled through parts of Naples early today, sending some residents fleeing into the streets in nightgowns and pajamas. There were no reports of injuries or damage.

MUSIC REVIEW

How A Broken Violin String Sparked A Memorable Evening

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — A fired up Seiji Ozawa, a broken violin string, a magnetic guest artist plus the towering works of Paganini and Beethoven made last night's San Francisco Symphony Orchestra concert in the Opera House a memorable one.

Maestro Ozawa's creed seemed to be "run, not walk" as he zipped in out of the orchestra shell to take bows, congratulate the orchestra, shake a hand or single out an individual player.

From whatever drives the tiny conductor, the orchestra seemed to catch fire. Its personnel were in rare form, producing some of the most beautiful sounds of the season, which is rapidly drawing to a close.

But taken in order, the case of the broken violin string seemed to make the concert one of those "togetherness' things with the full house rooting for its field boss, team and guest. It's a good feeling and pinpoints the sheer enjoyment produced in these past 21 weeks by Ozawa.

It all happened so quickly — the broken violen string, that is — the audience gasped, the young guest violinist Itzhak Perlman turned quickly from his chair on a raised platform to concert-master Stuart Canin for his fiddle, who is turn handed the wounded instrument to an associate in back, who immediately gave up his instrument to the concertmaster and then began repairs, pulling from his jacket a case with strings.

The musical chairs business broke the tension, Perlman let out a laugh, Ozawa stopped the orchestra, the guest picked up the fast pace of the Violin Concerto in E Flat (D) Major, Opus 6 by Paganini to finish the first movement — the allegro maestoso — in complete, unshaken virtuosity.

The audience then broke into appreciative applause, the violins were reshuffled and Perlman, who debuted with the symphony two seasons ago, went on to conquer the difficult work which is one of the real showpieces for violin.

Perlman's understanding of his instrument, at the youthful age of 25, is amazing. His tones were crystal clear, even in the two-string passages. It was another one of those complete understandings of the score between guest and maestro which has been evidenced so frequently this season.

Following the final notes, the audience leaped to its feet to give Perlman, crippled since a youngster by polio and shackled by braces and crutches, a rare and warm ovation.

What Ozawa captured in the Paganini — a full bodied but relaxed sound — continued to build in the mighty Symphony No. 3 in E Flat Major, Opus 55 — the Eroica — by Beethoven. The maestro obtained glowing passages from the horns, exquisite shadings from the violins, plus the usual fine work from the reeds. The reading was "big league" all the way and once again signaled the orchestra's coming of age again for recording sessions.

The evening opened with Gluck's Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis" which is full of lush melodies, especially in the lower strings. Ozawa seemed to let the orchestra flow into the beautifully constructed passages.

Following the Gluck, Ozawa presented the string section in Wallingford Riegger's "Study in Sonority, Opus 7." The work is telegraphic with the melody launched by the first chair and then transferred to other chairs. While atonal in nature, it has a sensuous feel and is wonderfully expressive of early 20th Century compositions.

Berkeley Draft Board Moved To Oakland

BERKELEY (UPI) —The Berkeley draft board, for years besieged with bombs, raids, defacement and demonstrations by radicals, has moved out of town to Oakland and safer surroundings.

Col. Richard Davis, spokesman for the Selective Service regional headquarters in San Francisco, said Wednesday boards Number 46, 47, and 48 were moved to the well-guarded Armed Forces Entrace Station, as part of a "pre-planned decision."

But Davis said the move was not connected with the latest attack on the office Monday, when several dozen antiwar protesters overturned desks and filing cabinets and scattered documents on the floor.

The highest free air movement ever recorded was 225 mph atop Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Civic Light Opera To Open Tuesday

The 34th season of the San Francisco Light Opera season opens Tuesday night at the Curran Theater with Burt Lancaster, starring in "Knickerbocker Holiday."

Knickerbocker," a Kurt-Weill-Maxwell Anderson hit of 1938 on Broadway, will serve as Lancaster's musical comedy debut. The musical is a first on the West Coast and will later run in Los Angeles.

The three other Civic Light Opera presentations will be Leonard Bernstein's "Candide," "Company" and "Applause."

DRAMA

The American Conservatory Theater will close its current 26-week repertory season Saturday with two performances of "The Merchant of Venice."

The evening performance will be followed by ACT's traditional season-end "walkdown," a curtain call which recalls all the season's shows and features performers in costumes from end of the 1970-71.

MUSIC

Folksinger Peter Seeger will make a Bay Area appearance Sunday afternoon with a concert at Winterland in San Francisco.

In the East Bay, Johnny Cash will present an afternoon and evening show Sunday at the Oakland Coliseum. Appearing with him will be the Tennessee Three and Glen Sherley.

Darius Milhaud, who is leaving his Mills College post this spring to return to Paris, will share conducting honors with maestro Seiji Ozawa in the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra's weekly subscription series. Also spotlighted will be Leon Fleisher, pianist, in Ravel's Concerto for the Left Hand. Milhaud will conduct his "Music for Prague."

Other attractions:

Geary Theater — "The Selling Of The President," today and Friday, 8:30 p.m.; "The Merchant Of Venice," Saturday at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. (Closing performance of season.)

Time Extension Bill For Transit Plan Advances

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation giving the Golden Gate Bridge District another two years to detail a long-range transit plan yesterday was approved without debate by the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

The bill, SB 421 by Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, also would require the plan to be for a system compatible with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. The bill would bar the district from spending money on any transit system during the next two years, except on its interim bus and ferry system.

The measure had cleared committee on Monday.

The district last month gave the Legislature a transit plan for the next decade, but said it had had too little time to look further into the future.

More Trash Containers Supported

The Novato Environment Committee, which has favored placing exposed aggregate trash containers along West Grant Avenue, has called for similar containers along the East Grant, according to Rodney B. Brown, city administrative assistant.

Committee members agreed Monday night to seek acceptable containers for East Grant, he said.

The Committee recommended tree planting along the north side of San Marin Drive in the area of San Miguel Way with a request to the city public works department to proceed with the planting.

Members also changed their meeting dates to the first and third Tuesdays, instead of first and third Mondays, Brown reported.

Panel Reaffirms Antiwar Position

Directors of the Strawberry Recreation District last night reaffirmed an earlier stand and opposed the war in Southeast Asia, blaming it for causing America to become "brutalized and morally ill."

Almost one year ago, on May 12, 1970, the board declared it was "unalterably opposed" to the war and urged immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

Clerk Jeanne Heick said directors adopted a resolution last night reading:

"The board of directors reaffirms the previously stated position of the prior board decrying and disapproving of present military acts in Southeast Asia. Each day this war continues our nation becomes more brutalized and morally ill.

"We respectfully request again the immediate withdrawal of all military forces from Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos and instruct counsel to write letters to all appropriate elected officials."

The vote was 4-0, with director Conrad Von Blankenburg absent.

Directors also approved an agreement with Mill Valley Refuse Service to collect recyclable materials in the district for delivery to Whole Systems, Inc.

Mrs. Heick said the refuse firm will charge customers $1.50 per month for the service. Whole Systems will supply six separate sacks for clear, brown and green glass and tin, aluminum and bimetal cans.

Newspapers and cardboard tied in bundles also will be collected, she said.

Warehouse Plans Are Turned Down

The Novato Plan Review committee last night rejected plans by North Marin Investors for a warehouse and retail sales building as not harmonious with the neighborhood.

The firm plans to construct a 4,975 square foot building on the east side of Reichert Avenue between Sweetser Avenue and Scown Lane.

The Novato Plan Review Committee also:

RENTAL BUSINESS — Approved plans by E. D. McGillicuddy for a building to house a general equipment rental business adjacent to 6981 Redwood Highway.

BOAT SALES — Approved plans by Ladner N. Cameron for a boat sales and service building on the east side of Highway 101, between Novato Creek and the end of Redwood Road.

SHOP — Approved plans by David E. Milano for construction of a 7,000-square-foot building adjacent to 860 Sweetser Avenue for expansion of Aaero Heating and Sheetmetal and other light industrial uses.

SPECIAL MEETING — Scheduled a special meeting at 8 p.m. May 26 at the Novato Community House to study the plan review committee section of the city zoning ordinance with a view toward recommending changes.

Arraignment On Pot Counts

Daniel J. Miller, 25, and Thomas W. Villas, 24, both of Sausalito, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing and cultivating marijuana and possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

They are to plead to the charges May 26.

The pair was arrested Sunday when Sausalito police went to their apartment on a complaint by neighbors of loud music.

The suspected pot and equipment were found in the apartment, police said.

A roommate of the pair, Michael G. Edmond, a San Francisco undercover narcotics agent, is to be arraigned on the same charges tomorrow.

New Grand Jury Sets First Meeting

The jury has agreed to meet on the second Tuesday of each month at 1:30 p.m. and on the fourth Monday of each month at 8 p.m.

First Stage Fire Budget Is Approved

Kentfield Fire District directors last night approved a preliminary budget of $181,196, an 18 per cent decrease from last year's budget of $221,196.

Arthur L. Poganski, board secretary, said the $40,000 difference was due to the district's recent purchase of a new pumper; most of the money for the pumper was included in last year's budget.

The breakdown of the budget is $127,196 for salaries and fringe benefits; $34,000 for maintenance and $20,000 for capital outlay, Poganski reported.

This year's tax rate is 88 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Poganski said he could not estimate what the new tax rate will be, although he anticipates a lower rate.

The directors are expected to adopt the budget at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday. At that time, they also will discuss hiring a new fire marshal. Rolf Stahlbaum, who resigned as fire marshal last month, left yesterday for Washington where he will operate a restaurant, Poganski said.

Sprinkler Money

Peacock Gap Homeowners Association last night approved $4,500 for the underground sprinkler system at the entrance of Peacock and Riviera drives, according to Constantine Carpou, secretary.

Assembly Advances Strikebreaker Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill said by labor to "outlaw professional strikebreakers" and called "a compulsory closing law" by management reached the Assembly floor yesterday after a voice vote split along party lines in the Assembly Labor Relations Committee.

Committee chairman David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, sponsored the bill which would make it illegal for anyone to offer himself three times in five years to replace a worker on strike, and would make it a misdemeanor for an employer to hire "professional strikebreakers." Roberti argued workers needed protection "from persons who cross state lines and prey on the jobs of Californians" — already prohibited by federal law.

Spokesmen for the California Conference of Employers and the California Newspaper Publishers Association called the bill "a compulsory closing law" and "a turkey" introduced and voted down repeatedly for the past 10 years.

Former State Labor Commissioner Sigmund Arywitz of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor testified violence is associated with strikebreakers because "these people are not nice. Some carry guns."

Committee member William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, asked if it were strikebreakers who killed a nonunion printer at the struck Los Angeles Herald-Examiner and systems design engineer Allan W. Daly of the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

"I don't know . . . we're not policemen," answered John Henning, secretary-treasurer of the California Labor Federation.

The slaying of Los Angeles printer Maurice Maynard is unsolved; Frank J. Thurber, a member of the Newspaper Mailers Union, was convicted of murdering Daly, who had never worked for a newspaper before.

The mailers union is an affiliate of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the Independent-Journal since Jan. 7, 1970. Daly was fatally wounded in his San Francisco home on July 4, 1970.

Year In Jail In Pot Case

Dennis B. Williams, 20, of Novato, was sentenced to one year in Marin County Jail yesterday for selling marijuana.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court also placed Williams on probation for three years.

Williams was found guilty by a superior court jury in March of selling the drug last Aug. 17.

Allende Gaining Support In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Marxist President Salvador Allende, who took office six months ago pledging to "start Chile down the road to socialism," has done just that— and increased his popular following considerably in the bargain.

Socialist Allende, 62, squeaked to victory last Nov. 3 in the three-way presidential election with a 1.4 per cent plurality and only 36 per cent of the popular vote. He headed a coalition of his own socialists, the communists, the radicals and three small non-Marxist parties.

In April's municipal elections these forces won 48 per cent of the popular vote (50 per cent with a little government fudging of the official results to eliminate independents and blank ballots). Allende's Socialist party vaulted into second place with 22 per cent of the votes, behind the reformist Christian Democrats (25 per cent) passing the hemisphere's oldest Communist party for the first time.

Despite a great outlay of effort and money the Communists moved up only one per cent to 17. The rightist National Party got 18 per cent, a decline of four per cent from the 1969 parliamentary elections. The extreme left, but non-Marxist, Radical party which gave Allende his narrow election, plunged to eight per cent.

Allende's popular support increased, his opposition remained apparently hopelessly divided between rightists and christian Democrats —the same division of non-Marxist forces which gave him the presidency by default.

Allende listed four major goals for his "road to socialism" government: nationalization of foreign commerce and internal distribution; nationalization of banks and credits; and completion of the agrarian reform with expropriation of every farm in Chile over 250 acres.

He has made great strides in all but the agrarian sector where illegal seizures of farms by leftist extremist have diverted the government effort.

Some Communists and Sociaplists have participated in the squatter movements, but those government parties quickly quelled this extracurricular activity, and Allende finally warned publicly in his May Day speech that the seizures must cease "because they threaten the agrarian reform with chaos."

On the positive side of the ledger for Allende was assurance that his copper nationalization bill will be enacted into law, probably this month, with Christian Democrat support. Indemnization for the Kennecott, Anaconda, and Cerro Corportation installations would be at initial investment, less depreciation and amortizations to be paid in 30 annual installments at 3 per cent annual interest.

Copper produces 80 per cent of Chile's foreign exchange earnings, and nationalization is so popular that the rightist National Party has not even opposed the measure except to predict dire marketing consequence.

Allende has had mixed success so far in achieving his goal of state control of banks and credits. Under the threat of nationalization legislation — which has never been presented —the government has bought, at premium prices, the controlling shares of nine of Chile's 22 private commercial banks.

The effort continues.

Allende put further pressure on the hold-out banks last week, restricting foreign exchange transactions to seven of the state banks. This deprives the private banks of a traditional source of commission inome.

The Socialist president virtually achieved his objective of a state monopoly on imports last week by applying 10,000 per cent deposit requirements on virtually all imports.

In foreign affairs, Allende has established relations with Cuba, Red China, and East Germany, and has announced he will do so with North Korea and North Vietnam. Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has promised to visit Chile, which is trading beans, garlic and onions for Cuban sugar.

Relations with the United States have been cold but correct.

Measures which have increased Allende's popularity with Chile's proletariat majority have included:

—Effective attempts to deliver a free half-liter measure of powdered milk to each child daily; a reduction of 10 per cent in the price of men's clothing; annullment of an electricity rate increase conceded by the past administrations; dissolution of the riot police squad which used to break up strikers and demonstrating students; priority for the popular neighborhoods in construction of the projected metropolitan subway; a minimum wage for domestic servants.

Allende's only major legislative setback was the government withdrawal in face of certain defeat of the projected "Popular Tribunals" a project aimed at creating neighborhood courts to try "antisocials."

Wanda Ramey Heading Dinner

Television personality Wanda Ramey will be mistress of ceremonies at a testimonial dinner for Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht on May 13, Mrs. Frank McClain, dinner chairman, announced today.

The veteran Marin County health officer will be honored by associates and the public at the dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael.

Members of the sponsoring committee, besides Mrs. McClain, are Mrs. Elmer A. Weden and County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell. Reservations may be made with Mrs. McClain at 2 Shell Court, Mill Valley.

WHOOPING IT UP FOR LIBERATION

A women's liberation chorus sings out against male chauvinism in one of 18 musical numbers and skits in the Tamalpais Improvement Club's 17th Annual Rhubarb Revue which opens for a third weekend Friday at The Tamalpais Valley Community Center, Marin Avenue and Tennessee Valley Road. The revue will be presented tomorrow and Saturday and next weekend, May 14 and 15. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

How A Broken Violin String Sparked A Memorable Evening

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — A fired up Seiji Ozawa, a broken violin string, a magnetic guest artist plus the towering works of Paganini and Beethoven made last night's San Francisco Symphony Orchestra concert in the Opera House a memorable one.

Maestro Ozawa's creed seemed to be "run, not walk" as he zipped in out of the orchestra shell to take bows, congratulate the orchestra, shake a hand or single out an individual player.

From whatever drives the tiny conductor, the orchestra seemed to catch fire. Its personnel were in rare form, producing some of the most beautiful sounds of the season, which is rapidly drawing to a close.

But taken in order, the case of the broken violin string seemed to make the concert one of those "togetherness' things with the full house rooting for its field boss, team and guest. It's a good feeling and pinpoints the sheer enjoyment produced in these past 21 weeks by Ozawa.

It all happened so quickly — the broken violen string, that is — the audience gasped, the young guest violinist Itzhak Perlman turned quickly from his chair on a raised platform to concert-master Stuart Canin for his fiddle, who is turn handed the wounded instrument to an associate in back, who immediately gave up his instrument to the concertmaster and then began repairs, pulling from his jacket a case with strings.

The musical chairs business broke the tension, Perlman let out a laugh, Ozawa stopped the orchestra, the guest picked up the fast pace of the Violin Concerto in E Flat (D) Major, Opus 6 by Paganini to finish the first movement — the allegro maestoso — in complete, unshaken virtuosity.

The audience then broke into appreciative applause, the violins were reshuffled and Perlman, who debuted with the symphony two seasons ago, went on to conquer the difficult work which is one of the real showpieces for violin.

Perlman's understanding of his instrument, at the youthful age of 25, is amazing. His tones were crystal clear, even in the two-string passages. It was another one of those complete understandings of the score between guest and maestro which has been evidenced so frequently this season.

Following the final notes, the audience leaped to its feet to give Perlman, crippled since a youngster by polio and shackled by braces and crutches, a rare and warm ovation.

What Ozawa captured in the Paganini — a full bodied but relaxed sound — continued to build in the mighty Symphony No. 3 in E Flat Major, Opus 55 — the Eroica — by Beethoven. The maestro obtained glowing passages from the horns, exquisite shadings from the violins, plus the usual fine work from the reeds. The reading was "big league" all the way and once again signaled the orchestra's coming of age again for recording sessions.

The evening opened with Gluck's Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis" which is full of lush melodies, especially in the lower strings. Ozawa seemed to let the orchestra flow into the beautifully constructed passages.

Following the Gluck, Ozawa presented the string section in Wallingford Riegger's "Study in Sonority, Opus 7." The work is telegraphic with the melody launched by the first chair and then transferred to other chairs. While atonal in nature, it has a sensuous feel and is wonderfully expressive of early 20th Century compositions.

The highest free air movement ever recorded was 225 mph atop Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Berkeley Draft Board Moved To Oakland

BERKELEY (UPI) —The Berkeley draft board, for years besieged with bombs, raids, defacement and demonstrations by radicals, has moved out of town to Oakland and safer surroundings.

Col. Richard Davis, spokesman for the Selective Service regional headquarters in San Francisco, said Wednesday boards Number 46, 47, and 48 were moved to the well-guarded Armed Forces Entrace Station, as part of a "pre-planned decision."

But Davis said the move was not connected with the latest attack on the office Monday, when several dozen antiwar protesters overturned desks and filing cabinets and scattered documents on the floor.

Time Extension Bill For Transit Plan Advances

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation giving the Golden Gate Bridge District another two years to detail a long-range transit plan yesterday was approved without debate by the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

The bill, SB 421 by Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, also would require the plan to be for a system compatible with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. The bill would bar the district from spending money on any transit system during the next two years, except on its interim bus and ferry system.

The measure had cleared committee on Monday.

The district last month gave the Legislature a transit plan for the next decade, but said it had had too little time to look further into the future.

More Trash Containers Supported

The Novato Environment Committee, which has favored placing exposed aggregate trash containers along West Grant Avenue, has called for similar containers along the East Grant, according to Rodney B. Brown, city administrative assistant.

Committee members agreed Monday night to seek acceptable containers for East Grant, he said.

The Committee recommended tree planting along the north side of San Marin Drive in the area of San Miguel Way with a request to the city public works department to proceed with the planting.

Members also changed their meeting dates to the first and third Tuesdays, instead of first and third Mondays, Brown reported.

Tiburon Sanitary Panel Studies Budget

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has begun studying a preliminary 1971-72 budget of $123,458, a 25 per cent increase over last year's spending program.

There was no estimate of the effect on the district's tax rate, which stands this fiscal year at 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Most of the increase is attributable to a self-monitoring program installed by the district on order of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

President Robert A. Sterling said the budget includes $18,000 to monitor the district's effluent to determine if it is polluting San Francisco Bay, and another $10,000 for emergency generators to maintain plant operations in case of power failure. Both expenditures were ordered by the regional board.

If these two items, totalling $28,000, are deducted from the budget, Sterling said, the result is a $95,458 budget, only a $1,355 increase over 1970-71.

The preliminary budget, which will be studied by the board, includes $28,410 for salaries and benefits and $67,038 for plant maintenance and operation. No reserve figure is included, Sterling said.

The budget includes the salary of one part-time assistant plant operator to conduct effluent testing under the self-monitoring program.

Petaluma High Has War Protest

About 200 students turned out yesterday for a spontaneous antiwar rally at Petaluma High School, although many in the crowd were observers and some were hecklers.

Cries of "peace now" were mixed with "fight for your country" during the 90-minute morning rally on the school quad.

Principal Dan Montgomery said it appeared to him most of the students were interested more in getting out of classes than in the rally. The school has about 1,500 students, and most stayed in class.

Montgomery said permission for the rally was granted to an ad hoc committee of antiwar students. He said a group which supports President Richard M. Nixon's stand on the war has been given permission to hold its own rally at a future date.

The principal said that group also wishes to pay tribute to Indochina veterans, especially those who have been wounded.

Eastern Air Line Signs Pact For Lockheed Plane

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. officials announced Wednesday that Eastern Air Lines has signed a conditional agreement to reaffirm its purchase of 50 L1011 Tristar aircraft.

A spokesman said the agreement, signed by Eastern Chairman Floyd D. Hall and Lockheed Chairman Daniel Haughton in New York, was necessary because of the financial problems of the RollsRoyce Co., which makes the RB211 engines for the Tristar.

He said the agreement included conditions assuring the airline of financial liability and long-term commitment to the program by both Lockheed and Rolls-Royce.

Allende Gaining Support In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)— Marxist President Salvador Allende, who took office six months ago pledging to "start Chile down the road to socialism," has done just that— and increased his popular following considerably in the bargain.

Socialist Allende, 62, squeaked to victory last Nov. 3 in the three-way presidential election with a 1.4 per cent plurality and only 36 per cent of the popular vote. He headed a coalition of his own socialists, the communists, the radicals and three small non-Marxist parties.

In April's municipal elections these forces won 48 per cent of the popular vote (50 per cent with a little government fudging of the official results to eliminate independents and blank ballots). Allende's Socialist party vaulted into second place with 22 per cent of the votes, behind the reformist Christian Democrats (25 per cent) passing the hemisphere's oldest Communist party for the first time.

Despite a great outlay of effort and money the Communists moved up only one per cent to 17. The rightist National Party got 18 per cent, a decline of four per cent from the 1969 parliamentary elections. The extreme left, but non-Marxist, Radical party which gave Allende his narrow election, plunged to eight per cent.

Allende's popular support increased, his opposition remained apparently hopelessly divided between rightists and christian Democrats —the same division of non-Marxist forces which gave him the presidency by default.

Allende listed four major goals for his "road to socialism" government: nationalization of foreign commerce and internal distribution; nationalization of banks and credits; and completion of the agrarian reform with expropriation of every farm in Chile over 250 acres.

He has made great strides in all but the agrarian sector where illegal seizures of farms by leftist extremist have diverted the government effort.

Some Communists and Sociaplists have participated in the squatter movements, but those government parties quickly quelled this extracurricular activity, and Allende finally warned publicly in his May Day speech that the seizures must cease "because they threaten the agrarian reform with chaos."

On the positive side of the ledger for Allende was assurance that his copper nationalization bill will be enacted into law, probably this month, with Christian Democrat support. Indemnization for the Kennecott, Anaconda, and Cerro Corportation installations would be at initial investment, less depreciation and amortizations to be paid in 30 annual installments at 3 per cent annual interest.

Copper produces 80 per cent of Chile's foreign exchange earnings, and nationalization is so popular that the rightist National Party has not even opposed the measure except to predict dire marketing consequence.

Allende has had mixed success so far in achieving his goal of state control of banks and credits. Under the threat of nationalization legislation — which has never been presented —the government has bought, at premium prices, the controlling shares of nine of Chile's 22 private commercial banks.

The effort continues.

Allende put further pressure on the hold-out banks last week, restricting foreign exchange transactions to seven of the state banks. This deprives the private banks of a traditional source of commission inome.

The Socialist president virtually achieved his objective of a state monopoly on imports last week by applying 10,000 per cent deposit requirements on virtually all imports.

In foreign affairs, Allende has established relations with Cuba, Red China, and East Germany, and has announced he will do so with North Korea and North Vietnam. Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has promised to visit Chile, which is trading beans, garlic and onions for Cuban sugar.

Relations with the United States have been cold but correct.

Measures which have increased Allende's popularity with Chile's proletariat majority have included:

—Effective attempts to deliver a free half-liter measure of powdered milk to each child daily; a reduction of 10 per cent in the price of men's clothing; annullment of an electricity rate increase conceded by the past administrations; dissolution of the riot police squad which used to break up strikers and demonstrating students; priority for the popular neighborhoods in construction of the projected metropolitan subway; a minimum wage for domestic servants.

Allende's only major legislative setback was the government withdrawal in face of certain defeat of the projected "Popular Tribunals" a project aimed at creating neighborhood courts to try "antisocials."

Wanda Ramey Heading Dinner

Television personality Wanda Ramey will be mistress of ceremonies at a testimonial dinner for Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht on May 13, Mrs. Frank McClain, dinner chairman, announced today.

The veteran Marin County health officer will be honored by associates and the public at the dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael.

Members of the sponsoring committee, besides Mrs. McClain, are Mrs. Elmer A. Wedden and County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell. Reservations may be made with Mrs. McClain at 2 Shell Court, Mill Valley.

RAP SESSION

Novato Student Leader Sees 'Confused' Nation

By FRANK FARRARA
(10th in a series of 24 raps)

The United States today "is more confused than anything else," in the view of an 18-year-old student leader from Novato.

John Briggs, a member of the student body council at San Marin High School and of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission, cited changing views toward marriage, work and religion.

But in the long run, he said, "I don't think our generation will do anything drastically different" than has been done by past generations.

No matter how idealistic people are when they are young, they "always mature to the point where they stagnate," he commented.

There are some politicians who "carry on the young vitality," such as expressing concern for environment, "a big bandwagon that most are getting on, and some are getting off early because it's too hot," he said.

Briggs expressed concern about the middle-aged man, with children to support, who is a "slave to his job," and doesn't have a chance to change his way of life.

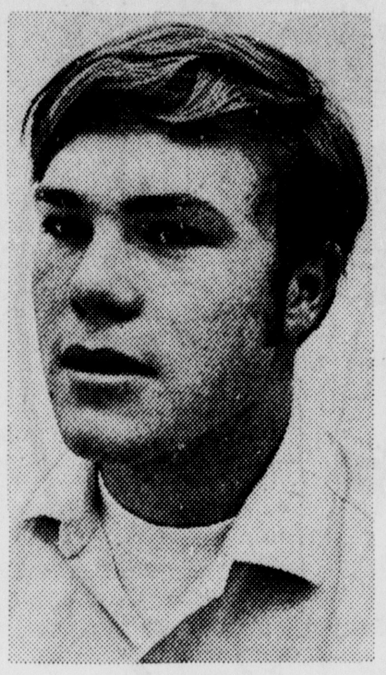
"Society doesn't allow for change by an individual," he said. The man trapped in his job can't risk breaking the mold if he wanted to because "he couldn't risk not feeding his children."

More and more young people "are interested in getting in a line of work they can mold to their own character instead of molding their character to the job, and they would like to have a freedom of choice," Briggs said.

Before then, there are worries about having enough money to attend college, and being accepted at the college of one's choice, he said.

Briggs advocated a "sabbatical for students," between high school and the end of college "just to get away from the doldrums of classes."

Traveling and talking to others during that year would aid them in years ahead, give them another year to determine which way they are headed in life, before they were committed, he said.



JOHN BRIGGS
"Maturity equals stagnation"

Schools teach the three r's, but "the problem I see is it really doesn't help you to find out where you really want to be pointed to . . . there are so many opportunities.

On marriage, Briggs said "more and more young people are feeling the marriage license really doesn't constitute marriage . . . more and more wish they could have a loose marriage, but still a great number would rather go through the ceremony."

Either way, Briggs said, it was up to the person involved, and he hoped that "society won't pressure them to conform."

Some young people are trying a communal living, "a type of living many tried in generations before," and some leave "either dissatisfied or can't take it," he said.

Briggs also said there is a new approach to religion on the part of some youths. "Religion is really exciting now. It's exciting to be around the kids called 'Jesus Freaks," but that name doesn't seem to fit. I think it's really a good movement."

These youths, he believed, "are more sincere abut God in their own way," than many who go to church one day a week.

The idea of "one hour, dressed quite well . . . that automatically shuts out some people right there . . . that's disillusioning for most people," he said.

Concerning the Vietnam War, Briggs commented: "Just a few years ago I was for the war because my brother was in it. Now I look upon in as a rotting piece of meat hung around our neck. I think more and more kids are just ignoring the war, ignoring that it exists."

Instead of the youth concern and involvement of the recent past, there is now indifference, he said.

Briggs described prejudice as a "human reaction" that has existed for ages. "It's a kind of disease that's been passed down," he said. "I do believe many of the parents have passed down a great deal of hate; more than kids deserve to receive about blacks."

He said he felt sorry for San Marin High School students, "mostly middle class kids" who lack interracial experience, because there are few black students there.

"They faintly realize poverty, but of course, what can a group of students do?" he asked.

On drugs, Briggs said they are "definitely in use. No matter where you go, you'll find them." Those who think they will enrich themselves by drug use "are fooling themselves," he said.

Briggs felt the "hair and dress" debate is now a "dead issue, with people finally letting them go their own way. It's the kids's mind that's important."

As for the future, he believed "there are a lot more fields open for people to travel along, different things to get involved in."

He hoped that "the government could be a little more concerned about this country and our welfare than someone else's, but I'd hate to see isolationism." The government, he said, unfortunately "is trying to make friends at the expense of the people of the United States."

Briggs also felt that "corruption in government needs looking into."

Teen-Agers Put New Franchise To Test With Sample Balloting

By JEFF GREER

Some 200 Terra Linda High School seniors were welcomed to the ranks of the electorate yesterday.

The 18-year-olds tried out Marin County's punch-card ballot system to vote on three sample measures, registered to vote in future elections and heard speeches by city and county officials and spokesmen for partisan and nonpartisan political groups. It was the first such teen-age voter rally in California, its sponsors said.

Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections clerk, gave the 18-year-old voters copies of "Why Bother," a voter information pamphlet produced by his office with the cooperation of a wide spectrum of Marin County partisans and the League of Women Voters.

The students balloted on three measures. The 196 teenagers who visited official polling booths in the school gymnasium voted 178 to 13 in favor of giving 18, 19 and 20-year-olds the right to vote in state and local elections as well as federal.

They voted 160 to 22 in favor of extending all other adult privileges and responsibilities to 18-year-olds.

The closest vote was on a measure asking the students whether they would vote for a womn for president of the United States. The result, 113 to 75 in favor, was almost exactly in the ratio of female to male voters participating.

Besides Meyer, the students heard Judy Ainsworth of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin; Lotte Schiller, Democratic Party spokesman; Bert D. Inman, Republican Party; San Rafael City Councilman John A. Miskimen, and Mrs. Harry R. Luchetta, field representative for State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Terra Linda Student Body President Gordon Walker was master of ceremonies.

Meyer explained that the new voters' booklet resulted from his office's survey of attitudes among teen-agers who could be voters. "Your attitude was, 'why bother?'," he reported.

The booklet was produced after some "hotly debated but very productive meetings," he said, with all political factions in Marin. It is entirely nonpartisan, Meyer declared.

He urged teen-agers to take advantage of the book's advice on how to take active political roles on all levels.

Meyer read a letter from Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who said he regretted inability to attend the rally.

Bagley said he hoped that the necessary 38 states soon would ratify the constitutional amendment giving 18-year-olds the vote in local and state elections, in addition to their new right to vote on federal issues. California and 19 other states have ratified the amendment, he noted.

Republican Inman joined Democrat Mrs. Schiller in urging the students to become active in partisan work. Inman noted that to the beginner, "the political arena is somewhat frightening... all of us went through it. But he told the young people, "you'll discover you're part of government when your first income tax bill arrives."

Mrs. Ainsworth explained the women voters' program, tracing it back to suffragettes who locked their bedroom doors as part of their campaign for the vote. But the league members are not necessarily part of Women's Liberation, she said. "On the 50th anniversary of the women's francise," she answered a questioner, "Women's Lib was picketing in the Civic Center; we were registering voters."

Councilman Miskimen urged young voters not to forget that they will have "great influence" in local government, and pointed out that "local government had great influence on you — your schools, whether your neighborhood has homes or apartments, whether Pepperland (a San Rafael rock hall) is open."

Meyer said he plans to have similar school assemblies for teen-age voters in all Marin County schools next fall.

Meyer and the political volunteers met with government classes in Sir Francis Drake High School last week, and were to meet today with three sets of government classes in Redwood High School.

Meyer said the "Why Bother?" booklet was produced from election department voter education funds, and would be available in quantity at cost, which is 45 cents per copy. He said it is the only such pamphlet for teen-age and other new voters.

Firecracker Blast At Bank Of America

CHICO, CALIF. (UPI)—A powerful firecracker blasted a 10-inch hole in a door Wednesday in the 29th attack on a Bank of America branch in California during the past 16 months.

The cherry bomb explosion shattered the glass door of the suburban branch three miles east of Chico State College. Police said the small explosive apparently had been taped to the door.

Since February, 1970, branches of the world's largest commercial bank have been hit by explosions and firebombings. The bank is criticized regularly in the underground and radical press as a Vietnam War profiteer and a symbol of the American business establishment.

Marinite To Serve On Federal Jury

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Marin County woman was among those chosen yesterday to serve on the new federal grand jury.

She is Ann B. Cook of 7 Echo Avenue, Corte Madera. She was chosen by Judge Samuel Conti to serve on the jury until September.

Magee Again Halts Hearing

By MARY LEYDECKER

It looked for a while yesterday as if Angela Y. Davis were finally going to get a hearing on motions in her case, but the court session came to another halt when her codefendant Ruchell Magee challenged the latest judge.

Judge Alan A. Lindsay of Alameda County, sitting in Marin Superior Court, then recessed the case until Monday.

A challenge of Judge Lindsay for cause, in which Miss Davis claimed he was a racist, was denied, but Magee yesterday finally succeeded in getting the court to recognize a peremptory challenge which he made first on his own..

Magee has attempted to get rid of every judge assigned to the case, usually on the same grounds he used yesterday. He charged Judge Lindsay with "driving over my rights" because the judge would not halt proceedings pending the outcome of petitions for removal of his case to federal court.

(Magee has been denied this transfer in the past but has attempted to file new petitions which federal judges in San Francisco refused to consider.

Yesterday, Magee told Lindsay he "would spend anything" to get the judge out of the case when Lindsay asked him if he wanted to use his one peremptory challenge. Magee's court-appointed attorney, Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles, at first refused to join Magee's challenge but finally agreed reluctantly to do so. Judge Lindsay had said he would not recognize the challenge unless made by Graves.

Magee also said that Graves, appointed by the judge earlier in the day, had been picked by Lindsay to keep him from getting rid of the judge. The judge was not going to recognize the challenge unless made by the attorney.

Magee was also backed by Graves yesterday in his desire to represent himself, with Graves asking for an early hearing on Magee's competency. (Magee was ruled not capable of defending himself at a hearing last year.)

In addition to deciding whether Magee still has a peremptory challenge, Judge Lindsay asked the lawyers to present arguments Monday on whether if Magee uses his challenge, Miss Davis will also have one.

He cited a Los Angeles case, where it was ruled that two defendants had but one peremptory challenge between them.

Howard Moore, chief counsel for Miss Davis, tried yesterday after the challenge was raised, to have Lindsay listen to a motion that Miss Davis be released on bail.

The judge said he would if Moore would agree to be bound by his decision even with the challenge issue unsettled. When Moore refused to make such an agreement, the case was continued to Monday.

It also came out in court yesterday that the five Marin Superior Court judges have never officially disqualified themselves from the case, even though an outside judge was asked to hear motions.

Apparently, although the Marin judges have said privately they would not hear the case because of their friendship with the late Judge Harold J. Haley, killed in the shoot-out, they have never taken the necessary steps to withdraw legally.

73 Works Owned By Simon Sold: $6.5 Million

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American record for a single session auction of art work was set Wednesday night when 73 paintings and sculptures from Los Angeles tycoon Norton Simon's collection sold for $6,506,300.

The sale at Parke-Bernet Galleries set a world auction record of $380,000 for a sculpture —a Degas bronze of a ballet dancer —and another world auction record of $420,000 for a Gauguin oil, a self-portrait painted just before the artist left Paris for Tahiti.

The previous auction record, set last year, was $5,852,250 for another 73-lot sale of the same 19th and 20th century masters at the same gallery. It also featured works from a West Coast collection, that of the late San Francisco banker, W.W. Crocker.

Tiburon Sanitary Panel Studies Budget

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has begun studying a preliminary 1971-72 budget of $123,458, a 25 per cent increase over last year's spending program.

There was no estimate of the effect on the district's tax rate, which stands this fiscal year at 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Most of the increase is attributable to a self-monitoring program installed by the district on order of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

President Robert A. Sterling said the budget includes $18,000 to monitor the district's effluent to determine if it is polluting San Francisco Bay, and another $10,000 for emergency generators to maintain plant operations in case of power failure. Both expenditures were ordered by the regional board.

If these two items, totalling $28,000, are deducted from the budget, Sterling said, the result is a $95,458 budget, only a $1,355 increase over 1970-71.

The preliminary budget, which will be studied by the board, includes $28,410 for salaries and benefits and $67,038 for plant maintenance and operation. No reserve figure is included, Sterling said.

The budget includes the salary of one part-time assistant plant operator to conduct effluent testing under the self-monitoring program.

Petaluma High Has War Protest

About 200 students turned out yesterday for a spontaneous antiwar rally at Petaluma High School, although many in the crowd were observers and some were hecklers.

Cries of "peace now" were mixed with "fight for your country" during the 90-minute morning rally on the school quad.

Principal Dan Montgomery said it appeared to him most of the students were interested more in getting out of classes than in the rally. The school has about 1,500 students, and most stayed in class.

Montgomery said permission for the rally was granted to an ad hoc committee of antiwar students. He said a group which supports President Richard M. Nixon's stand on the war has been given permission to hold its own rally at a future date.

The principal said that group also wishes to pay tribute to Indochina veterans, especially those who have been wounded.

Eastern Air Line Signs Pact For Lockheed Plane

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. officials announced Wednesday that Eastern Air Lines has signed a conditional agreement to reaffirm its purchase of 50 L1011 Tristar aircraft.

A spokesman said the agreement, signed by Eastern Chairman Floyd D. Hall and Lockheed Chairman Daniel Haughton in New York, was necessary because of the financial problems of the RollsRoyce Co., which makes the RB211 engines for the Tristar.

He said the agreement included conditions assuring the airline of financial liability and long-term commitment to the program by both Lockheed and Rolls-Royce.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, May 6, the 126th day of 1971 with 239 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1816 the American Bible Association was organized in New York City.

In 1935 the Works Progress Administration (WPA) was set up by Congress to provide work for the unemployed.

In 1941 Josef Stalin replaced V. M. Molotov as premier of the Soviet Union.

In 1960 Princess Margaret Rose of England was married to a commoner, Anthony Armstrong-Jones. He was elevated to the titled rank of earl 17 months later.

A thought for the day: Washington Irving said, "A woman's whole life is a history of affections."

Deer Attacks Widow At Grave

RIEGELSBERG, Germany (UPI) — A 70-year-old widow grappled with a deer for more than 15 minutes today after the animal attacked her while she visited the grave of her husband, police said.

Passersby heard her shouts and managed to subdue the buck, which was shot later by a forest ranger. The woman suffered serious arm injuries and lost several teeth.

Police said the deer may have had rabies.

20 YEARS AGO

When today's hand was played almost 20 years ago in a New York tournament, Dr. Kalman Apfel played a low club from dummy and captured the ten with the king. He could make the slam by leading toward the king of hearts if East had the ace, but another play was surer to work.

Apfel ran dummy's diamonds, discarding a club, and then ran the spades, coming down to a heart and two clubs in the dummy and a club and two hearts in his own hand. Meanwhile, Dr. Apfel kept a calm clinical eye on the patient at his right.

COLD SWEAT

East had no trouble with his early discards, throwing some spades on the diamonds, and then a club and a couple of hearts on the spades. On the last spade East broke out into a cold sweat when he had to discard from two hearts and two clubs. He finally discarded a heart, saving just the queen of hearts and the Q-6 of clubs.

Dr. Apfel was wondering whether East Would have the nerve to discard a club early if he had started with only three clubs, but he felt sure that he could diagnose the situation when East displayed such emotion.

LOW HEART

Declarer simply led the low heart from his hand. If East won, he would have to lead clubs and give dummy a free finesse. If West put up the ace of hearts, he would have to lead a heart back to South's king; and then declarer would lead a club to dummy's ace for his 12th trick.

Studio Site To Become Store

The studio announced Tuesday it has leased the eight-acre site, which contains obsolete studio facilities unused for years, to the Harrfield-Zodys discount chain for $4.375 million.

The spokesman said a commemorative plaque will be placed on the $1.5 million store to be built on the site. The plaque will be a reminder of the lot's place in Hollywood's history.

RAP SESSION

Novato Student Leader Sees 'Confused' Nation

By FRANK FARRARA
(10th in a series of 24 raps)

The United States today "is more confused than anything else," in the view of an 18-year-old student leader from Novato.

John Briggs, a member of the student body council at San Marin High School and of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission, cited changing views toward marriage, work and religion.

But in the long run, he said, "I don't think our generation will do anything drastically different" than has been done by past generations.

No matter how idealistic people are when they are young, they "always mature to the point where they stagnate," he commented.

There are some politicians who "carry on the young vitality," such as expressing concern for environment, "a big bandwagon that most are getting on, and some are getting off early because it's too hot," he said.

Briggs expressed concern about the middle-aged man, with children to support, who is a "slave to his job," and doesn't have a chance to change his way of life.

"Society doesn't allow for change by an individual," he said. The man trapped in his job can't risk breaking the mold if he wanted to because "he couldn't risk not feeding his children."

More and more young people "are interested in getting in a line of work they can mold to their own character instead of molding their character to the job, and they would like to have a freedom of choice," Briggs said.

Before then, there are worries about having enough money to attend college, and being accepted at the college of one's choice, he said.

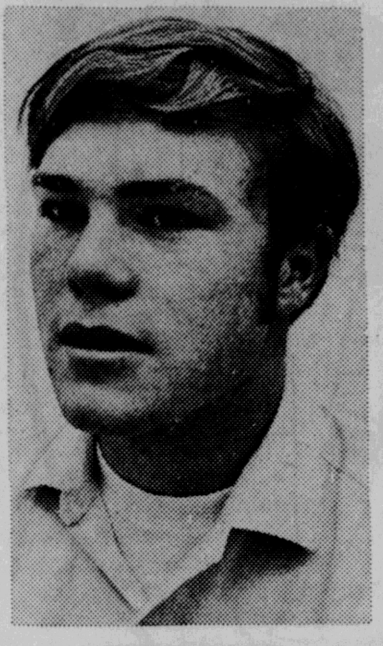
Traveling and talking to others during that year would aid them in years ahead, give them another year to determine which way they are headed in life, before they were committed, he said.



JOHN BRIGGS

Schools teach the three r's, but "the problem I see is it really doesn't help you to find out where you really want to be pointed to . . . there are so many opportunities.

On marriage, Briggs said "more and more young people are feeling the marriage license really doesn't constitute marriage . . . more and more wish they could have a loose marriage, but still a great number would rather go through the ceremony."

Either way, Briggs said, it was up to the person involved, and he hoped that "society won't pressure them to conform."

Some young people are trying a communal living, "a type of living many tried in generations before," and some leave "either dissatisfied or can't take it," he said.

Briggs also said there is a new approach to religion on the part of some youths. "Religion is really exciting now. It's exciting to be around the kids called 'Jesus Freaks," but that name doesn't seem to fit. I think it's really a good movement."

These youths, he believed, "are more sincere abut God in their own way," than many who go to church one day a week.

The idea of "one hour, dressed quite well . . . that automatically shuts out some people right there . . . that's disillusioning for most people," he said.

Concerning the Vietnam War, Briggs commented: "Just a few years ago I was for the war because my brother was in it. Now I look upon in as a rotting piece of meat hung around our neck. I think more and more kids are just ignoring the war, ignoring that it exists."

Instead of the youth concern and involvement of the recent past, there is now indifference, he said.

Briggs described prejudice as a "human reaction" that has existed for ages. "It's a kind of disease that's been passed down," he said. "I do believe many of the parents have passed down a great deal of hate; more than kids deserve to receive about blacks."

He said he felt sorry for San Marin High School students, "mostly middle class kids" who lack interracial experience, because there are few black students there.

"They faintly realize poverty, but of course, what can a group of students do?" he asked.

On drugs, Briggs said they are "definitely in use. No matter where you go, you'll find them." Those who think they will enrich themselves by drug use "are fooling themselves," he said.

Briggs felt the "hair and dress" debate is now a "dead issue, with people finally letting them go their own way. It's the kids's mind that's important."

As for the future, he believed "there are a lot more fields open for people to travel along, different things to get involved in."

He hoped that "the government could be a little more concerned about this country and our welfare than someone else's, but I'd hate to see isolationism." The government, he said, unfortunately "is trying to make friends at the expense of the people of the United States."

Briggs also felt that "corruption in government needs looking into."

Teen-Agers Put New Franchise To Test With Sample Balloting

By JEFF GREER

Some 200 Terra Linda High School seniors were welcomed to the ranks of the electorate yesterday.

The 18-year-olds tried out Marin County's punch-card ballot system to vote on three sample measures, registered to vote in future elections and heard speeches by city and county officials and spokesmen for partisan and nonpartisan political groups. It was the first such teen-age voter rally in California, its sponsors said.

Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections clerk, gave the 18-year-old voters copies of "Why Bother," a voter information pamphlet produced by his office with the cooperation of a wide spectrum of Marin County partisans and the League of Women Voters.

The students balloted on three measures. The 196 teenagers who visited official polling booths in the school gymnasium voted 178 to 13 in favor of giving 18, 19 and 20-year-olds the right to vote in state and local elections as well as federal.

They voted 160 to 22 in favor of extending all other adult privileges and responsibilities to 18-year-olds.

The closest vote was on a measure asking the students whether they would vote for a womn for president of the United States. The result, 113 to 75 in favor, was almost exactly in the ratio of female to male voters participating.

Besides Meyer, the students heard Judy Ainsworth of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin; Lotte Schiller, Democratic Party spokesman; Bert D. Inman, Republican Party; San Rafael City Councilman John A. Miskimen, and Mrs. Harry R. Luchetta, field representative for State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Meyer explained that the new voters' booklet resulted from his office's survey of attitudes among teen-agers who could be voters. "Your attitude was, 'why bother?'," he reported.

The booklet was produced after some "hotly debated but very productive meetings," he said, with all political factions in Marin. It is entirely nonpartisan, Meyer declared.

He urged teen-agers to take advantage of the book's advice on how to take active political roles on all levels.

Meyer read a letter from Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who said he regretted inability to attend the rally.

Bagley said he hoped that the necessary 38 states soon would ratify the constitutional amendment giving 18-year-olds the vote in local and state elections, in addition to their new right to vote on federal issues. California and 19 other states have ratified the amendment, he noted.

Republican Inman joined Democrat Mrs. Schiller in urging the students to become active in partisan work. Inman noted that to the beginner, "the political arena is somewhat frightening. . . all of us went through it. But he told the young people, "you'll discover you're part of government when your first income tax bill arrives."

Mrs. Ainsworth explained the women voters' program, tracing it back to suffragettes who locked their bedroom doors as part of their campaign for the vote. But the league members are not necessarily part of Women's Liberation, she said. "On the 50th anniversary of the women's francise," she answered a questioner, "Women's Lib was picketing in the Civic Center; we were registering voters."

Councilman Miskimen urged young voters not to forget that they will have "great influence" in local government, and pointed out that "local government had great influence on you — your schools, whether your neighborhood has homes or apartments, whether Pepperland (a San Rafael rock hall) is open."

Meyer said he plans to have similar school assemblies for teen-age voters in all Marin County schools next fall.

Meyer and the political volunteers met with government classes in Sir Francis Drake High School last week, and were to meet today with three sets of government classes in Redwood High School.

Meyer said the "Why Bother?" booklet was produced from election department voter education funds, and would be available in quantity at cost, which is 45 cents per copy. He said it is the only such pamphlet for teen-age and other new voters.

Firecracker Blast At Bank Of America

CHICO, CALIF. (UPI)—A powerful firecracker blasted a 10-inch hole in a door Wednesday in the 29th attack on a Bank of America branch in California during the past 16 months.

The cherry bomb explosion shattered the glass door of the suburban branch three miles east of Chico State College. Police said the small explosive apparently had been taped to the door.

Since February, 1970, branches of the world's largest commercial bank have been hit by explosions and firebombings. The bank is criticized regularly in the underground and radical press as a Vietnam War profiteer and a symbol of the American business establishment.

Marinite To Serve On Federal Jury

SAN FRANCISCO — A Marin County woman was among those chosen yesterday to serve on the new federal grand jury.

She is Ann B. Cook of 7 Echo Avenue, Corte Madera. She was chosen by Judge Samuel Conti to serve on the jury until September.

Magee Again Halts Hearing

By MARY LEYDECKER

It looked for a while yesterday as if Angela Y. Davis were finally going to get a hearing on motions in her case, but the court session came to another halt when her codefendant Ruchell Magee challenged the latest judge.

Judge Alan A. Lindsay of Alameda County, sitting in Marin Superior Court, then recessed the case until Monday.

A challenge of Judge Lindsay for cause, in which Miss Davis claimed he was a racist, was denied, but Magee yesterday finally succeeded in getting the court to recognize a peremptory challenge which he made first on his own..

Magee has attempted to get rid of every judge assigned to the case, usually on the same grounds he used yesterday. He charged Judge Lindsay with "driving over my rights" because the judge would not halt proceedings pending the outcome of petitions for removal of his case to federal court.

(Magee has been denied this transfer in the past but has attempted to file new petitions which federal judges in San Francisco refused to consider.

Yesterday, Magee told Lindsay he "would spend anything" to get the judge out of the case when Lindsay asked him if he wanted to use his one peremptory challenge. Magee's court-appointed attorney, Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles, at first refused to join Magee's challenge but finally agreed reluctantly to do so. Judge Lindsay had said he would not recognize the challenge unless made by Graves.

Magee also said that Graves, appointed by the judge earlier in the day, had been picked by Lindsay to keep him from getting rid of the judge. The judge was not going to recognize the challenge unless made by the attorney.

Magee was also backed by Graves yesterday in his desire to represent himself, with Graves asking for an early hearing on Magee's competency. (Magee was ruled not capable of defending himself at a hearing last year.)

In addition to deciding whether Magee still has a peremptory challenge, Judge Lindsay asked the lawyers to present arguments Monday on whether if Magee uses his challenge, Miss Davis will also have one.

He cited a Los Angeles case, where it was ruled that two defendants had but one peremptory challenge between them.

Howard Moore, chief counsel for Miss Davis, tried yesterday after the challenge was raised, to have Lindsay listen to a motion that Miss Davis be released on bail.

The judge said he would if Moore would agree to be bound by his decision even with the challenge issue unsettled. When Moore refused to make such an agreement, the case was continued to Monday.

It also came out in court yesterday that the five Marin Superior Court judges have never officially disqualified themselves from the case, even though an outside judge was asked to hear motions.

Apparently, although the Marin judges have said privately they would not hear the case because of their friendship with the late Judge Harold J. Haley, killed in the shoot-out, they have never taken the necessary steps to withdraw legally.

Insurance Gap

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Only about 60,000 persons, or 3 per cent of Singapore's 2,070,000 population, are covered by life insurance, says Finance Minister Tan See Shim.

73 Works Owned By Simon Sold: $6.5 Million

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American record for a single session auction of art work was set Wednesday night when 73 paintings and sculptures from Los Angeles tycoon Norton Simon's collection sold for $6,506,300.

The sale at Parke-Bernet Galleries set a world auction record of $380,000 for a sculpture —a Degas bronze of a ballet dancer —and another world auction record of $420,000 for a Gauguin oil, a self-portrait painted just before the artist left Paris for Tahiti.

The previous auction record, set last year, was $5,852,250 for another 73-lot sale of the same 19th and 20th century masters at the same gallery. It also featured works from a West Coast collection, that of the late San Francisco banker, W.W. Crocker.

No Recall Move Now In Bolinas

A Bolinas group, unsuccessful last week in a move to get one of its members appointed to a vacancy on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board, said today it will not attempt to recall the district board members at this time.

The Bolinas Future Society had threatened action against the board when it failed to appoint William E. Niman to a vacant seat, even though the 26-year-old teacher at Bolinas School had been supported for the board by a petition signed by more than 200 residents of the district.

Niman said the society decided against moving on the recall now "because we don't want to cause any wars and further polarize the community. He went on to say he is still hoping to obtain a seat on the five-member board and said the society plans to ask for a meeting with directors of the district "as soon as possible, so we can try to arrive at a compromise."

Concert To Benefit School Scholarships

San Rafael High School's annual scholarships benefit concert will be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the San Rafael High School Auditorium.

Byron Jones, head of vocal music for San Rafael Schools, will conduct most of the six groups of numbers sung by five San Rafael High School choral groups.

The A Cappella choir will open the concert with the credo from Palestrina's "Assumpta Est Maria" and close it with a medley from Kern's musical "Roberta."

Group II will consist of three songs by the chamber choir conducted by Parker Lee and three selections, including a song setting of a Stephen Crane poem with Diane Sipkin as narrator, and a J.S. Bach-Swingle canon in which Nancy Thelen will play the contrabass viol.

The women's chorus will perform six songs in Group III, featuring Cindy Hill and Nancy Thelen as duo pianists.

A feature of three songs in Group IV by the men's chorus will be one having as bass soloist the father of Byron Jones, Oliver Jones of Richmond, a professional opera singer in the Bay Area for many years.

Group V will consist of selections by a barbershop quartet composed of Jim Armington, first tenor; Parker Lee, second tenor-director; Richard Klarkowski, baritone; and Brian Park, bass.

Burglars Hit Two Schools

Two schools were burglarized during the weekend, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A typewriter valued at $540 was taken between 11 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday from Davidson Junior High School at 280 Woodland Avenue, Principal Laurence D. Breeze reported to police.

Municipal Lot Fees Increased

The Sausalito City Council has adopted an ordinance raising the parking fees in Municipal Lot No. 1 from 50 to 75 cents an hour and extending the lot closing time from 6 to 10 p.m.

It passed the ordinance Tuesday, forbidding advertising displays, including vehicles used for advertising purposes in public streets.

He succeeds Leo Verhoeven. Harville begins his duties in Portland, Ore., early in July.

More Study Is Asked In Housing Agency Plan

Directors of the Marin County Housing Authority have asked for further study of a proposal to centralize administration of the authority, executive director Wallace K. Shepherd reported yesterday.

He said the board declined to act on the proposal he presented at its Tuesday meeting and asked him to present a more complete plan for review at its May 19 meeting.

The proposal by Shepherd would involve combining some administrative positions and moving all authority records and clerical personnel to the main office at 429 Drake Avenue in Marin City.

The leased housing office would remain in San Rafael under the new plan, he said, but much of the leased housing paperwork would be taken care of in Marin City and the director of the program would report to the main office each day, then go to San Rafael to handle lease negotiations and contract work.

The authority currently has a full-time manager for the county's four senior citizens's housing projects (Novato, Homestead Valley, Northgate and Santa Venetia), according to Shepherd.

If his plan is adopted, Shepherd said the housing manager would become a roving trouble shooter for all public housing in the county, checking records and collections and handling problems.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, May 6, the 126th day of 1971 with 239 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1816 the American Bible Association was organized in New York City.

In 1935 the Works Progress Administration (WPA) was set up by Congress to provide work for the unemployed.

In 1941 Josef Stalin replaced V. M. Molotov as premier of the Soviet Union.

In 1960 Princess Margaret Rose of England was married to a commoner, Anthony Armstrong-Jones. He was elevated to the titled rank of earl 17 months later.

A thought for the day: Washington Irving said, "A woman's whole life is a history of affections."

Deer Attacks Widow At Grave

RIEGELSBERG, Germany (UPI) — A 70-year-old widow grappled with a deer for more than 15 minutes today after the animal attacked her while she visited the grave of her husband, police said.

Passersby heard her shouts and managed to subdue the buck, which was shot later by a forest ranger. The woman suffered serious arm injuries and lost several teeth.

Police said the deer may have had rabies.

20 YEARS AGO

When today's hand was played almost 20 years ago in a New York tournament, Dr. Kalman Apfel played a low club from dummy and captured the ten with the king. He could make the slam by leading toward the king of hearts if East had the ace, but another play was surer to work.

Apfel ran dummy's diamonds, discarding a club, and then ran the spades, coming down to a heart and two clubs in the dummy and a club and two hearts in his own hand. Meanwhile, Dr. Apfel kept a calm clinical eye on the patient at his right.

COLD SWEAT

East had no trouble with his early discards, throwing some spades on the diamonds, and then a club and a couple of hearts on the spades. On the last spade East broke out into a cold sweat when he had to discard from two hearts and two clubs. He finally discarded a heart, saving just the queen of hearts and the Q-6 of clubs.

Dr. Apfel was wondering whether East Would have the nerve to discard a club early if he had started with only three clubs, but he felt sure that he could diagnose the situation when East displayed such emotion.

LOW HEART

Declarer simply led the low heart from his hand. If East won, he would have to lead clubs and give dummy a free finesse. If West put up the ace of hearts, he would have to lead a heart back to South's king; and then declarer would lead a club to dummy's ace for his 12th trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 6 5 2
♥- A 10 8 7 2
♦- 10 5 4 3
♣- 7.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

The trump support is very meager, but the ace and the side singleton are just about enough to warrant a bid.

Studio Site To Become Store

The studio announced Tuesday it has leased the eight-acre site, which contains obsolete studio facilities unused for years, to the Harrfield-Zodys discount chain for $4.375 million.

The spokesman said a commemorative plaque will be placed on the $1.5 million store to be built on the site. The plaque will be a reminder of the lot's place in Hollywood's history.

No Recall Move Now In Bolinas

A Bolinas group, unsuccessful last week in a move to get one of its members appointed to a vacancy on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board, said today it will not attempt to recall the district board members at this time.

The Bolinas Future Society had threatened action against the board when it failed to appoint William E. Niman to a vacant seat, even though the 26-year-old teacher at Bolinas School had been supported for the board by a petition signed by more than 200 residents of the district.

Niman said the society decided against moving on the recall now "because we don't want to cause any wars and further polarize the community. He went on to say he is still hoping to obtain a seat on the five-member board and said the society plans to ask for a meeting with directors of the district "as soon as possible, so we can try to arrive at a compromise."

Concert To Benefit School Scholarships

San Rafael High School's annual scholarships benefit concert will be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the San Rafael High School Auditorium.

Byron Jones, head of vocal music for San Rafael Schools, will conduct most of the six groups of numbers sung by five San Rafael High School choral groups.

The A Cappella choir will open the concert with the credo from Palestrina's "Assumpta Est Maria" and close it with a medley from Kern's musical "Roberta."

Group II will consist of three songs by the chamber choir conducted by Parker Lee and three selections, including a song setting of a Stephen Crane poem with Diane Sipkin as narrator, and a J.S. Bach-Swingle canon in which Nancy Thelen will play the contrabass viol.

The women's chorus will perform six songs in Group III, featuring Cindy Hill and Nancy Thelen as duo pianists.

A feature of three songs in Group IV by the men's chorus will be one having as bass soloist the father of Byron Jones, Oliver Jones of Richmond, a professional opera singer in the Bay Area for many years.

Group V will consist of selections by a barbershop quartet composed of Jim Armington, first tenor; Parker Lee, second tenor-director; Richard Klarkowski, baritone; and Brian Park, bass.

Burglars Hit Two Schools

Two schools were burglarized during the weekend, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A typewriter valued at $540 was taken between 11 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday from Davidson Junior High School at 280 Woodland Avenue, Principal Laurence D. Breeze reported to police.

Municipal Lot Fees Increased

The Sausalito City Council has adopted an ordinance raising the parking fees in Municipal Lot No. 1 from 50 to 75 cents an hour and extending the lot closing time from 6 to 10 p.m.

It passed the ordinance Tuesday, forbidding advertising displays, including vehicles used for advertising purposes in public streets.

Californian To Pacific Panel

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— San Jose State College Professor Dr. John P. Harville has been named executive director of the Pacific Marine Fisheries Commission.

Harville, director of the National Sea Grant program at Moss Landing Marine Laboratories in Monterey County, was picked Monday from 23 candidates.

He succeeds Leo Verhoeven. Harville begins his duties in Portland, Ore., early in July.

More Study Is Asked In Housing Agency Plan

Directors of the Marin County Housing Authority have asked for further study of a proposal to centralize administration of the authority, executive director Wallace K. Shepherd reported yesterday.

He said the board declined to act on the proposal he presented at its Tuesday meeting and asked him to present a more complete plan for review at its May 19 meeting.

The proposal by Shepherd would involve combining some administrative positions and moving all authority records and clerical personnel to the main office at 429 Drake Avenue in Marin City.

The leased housing office would remain in San Rafael under the new plan, he said, but much of the leased housing paperwork would be taken care of in Marin City and the director of the program would report to the main office each day, then go to San Rafael to handle lease negotiations and contract work.

The authority currently has a full-time manager for the county's four senior citizens's housing projects (Novato, Homestead Valley, Northgate and Santa Venetia), according to Shepherd.

If his plan is adopted, Shepherd said the housing manager would become a roving trouble shooter for all public housing in the county, checking records and collections and handling problems.

Rummage Sale

A rummage sale, sponsored by the Lions Club of San Anselmo, will take place Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at 40 Greenfield Avenue, San Anselmo, to benefit the Lions Club Fund for the Blind and other charities.

Free parts for 5 full years!
Free labor to replace them for 5 full years!
Read this warranty. It's clear. Concise. And best warranty a freezer ever had!
Amana. 5-YEAR WARRANTY
Amana warrants for 5 years from date of original purchase in U.S., replacement or repair of parts found defective as to workmanship or material under normal use. This includes labor required for replacement of defective parts. Defective parts are to be returned through Amana's dealer-distributor organization.
Owner is responsible for serviceman's travel charges, local cartage, replacement of gaskets, rubber or plastic parts and light bulbs. Any product subjected to accident, misuse, negligence, abuse, defacement of serial plate or alteration shall void the warranty.
In Canada, the warranty applies as above except that it does not cover taxes, duties, assessments levied at time of part export.
The biggest Amana® freezer sale we've ever held!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Way In Which Teeth Appear Is Example Of Nature's Harmony

GROWTH, a complex phenomenon, consists of a number of processes that must work in harmony to produce a normal creature. The various parts of the body seldom grow at the same rate or at the same time. Some organs complete their development before others have begun to do so. The thymus gland, for example, attains its maximum size in early childhood, whereas the sex organs do not stir until puberty. The way in which teeth appear is an excellent example of nature's harmony. Teeth erupt, at the precise moment the jaw has room for them.

ALL SPECIES of life begin as a single cell be it man, mouse, elephant or whale. Thereafter, the rate of growth varies considerably and at birth, some animals are more developed than others. Following birth, milk is the natural food for all mammals. The quantity ingested determines the rate of early growth and each type of milk meets the genetic growth requirements of the particular animal. The ultimate size of a species depends upon heredity and the pituitary gland.

MUCH HAS BEEN written on how nutrition affects growth. Since most research is done on laboratory animals, we are not always sure that the findings are applicable to man. The diet may be adequate but for a number of good reasons is not completely absorbed. Many facets of nutrition seldom are considered.

DURING INFANCY, for example, nutrition contributes to the growth and development of the child. Food is a source of energy and if the room temperature is far below normal, some of the edibles used to maintain body temperature are not devoted to growth. This is a small point but demonstrates the complex facets of nutrition.

THE EFFECT of undernutrition of growth varies with the stage of development the body has reached when the diet is inadequate. It is here that growth harmony is disturbed because certain organs have very high priorities for the available nutrients at different periods of life.

HEART DISEASE, PREGNANCY

D.O.P writes: Can a woman with a rapid pulse due to rheumatic fever safely bear a child?

REPLY

A specific reply to a question of this type cannot be made without a thoro examination. Most women with this kind of heart trouble can go thru pregnancy safely. Those without symptoms do better than women who are short of breath or dropsical.

SORE SHOULDER

REPLY

"Dry socket" is not a mdeical term but if you refer to stiffness or "frozen" shoulder joint, you may be helped by the usual remedies for arthritis or bursitis, such as hydrocortisone or prednisolone. Manipulation of the shoulder, (while anesthetized) and physical therapy may be needed.

IMMUNITY TO VIRUS

D.K. wirtes: Does one attack of infectious hepatitis leave you immune for life?

REPLY

Yes, provided the liver infection is viral hepatitis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this condition.

$3.25 Million In Additional Air Crash Suits

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two more suits have been filed in superior court asking a total of $3.25 million for the deaths of two Air Force personnel killed in a plane crash in the Sears Point area of Sonoma County.

A suit for $3 million was filed Tuesday for the wife and child of T/Sgt. Julius Ryland of Los Angeles. A $250,000 suit was filed for the father of Capt. Ralph Knowles of Norton, Mass. They were filed against Convair division of General Dynamics Corp. of Delaware.

This brings to 12 the suits filed for a total of $23.4 million against General Dynamics Corp. as a result of the plane crash last May when 13 of the 14 persons on board were killed.

The plane crashed minutes after taking off from Hamilton Air Force Base bound for Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash.

Reed School Trustees Get Outlines For Salary Increases

Salary increases of 8.8 per cent for teachers and 8.5 per cent for non-teaching personnel have been submitted to the Reed School District board.

Trustees took the requests under consideration, Tuesday night, according to Supt. Ralph Giovanniello, and will begin negotiating with representatives of both groups soon.

The superintendent said board members hope to arrive at a contract agreement with non-teachers personnel before July 1. No target date for agreement with teachers was mentioned, he said.

Teachers based their salary request on the median of five school districts in Marin: Kentfield, Mill Valley, Ross, San Rafael and Sausaltio.

The total teacher salary budget for next year would go up 8.8 per cent over this year if the teachers' proposal were accepted, although individual teachers may receive more or less than that amount.

Giovanniello said teachers also asked that health care and dental plans, which now cover only the employee himself, be extended to include his dependents.

In addition, teachers asked that three additional steps be added to the salary schedule for those teaching more than 15 years in the district.

The teachers said they hope for a contract settlement before September and that in the event of a late settlement — such as occurred this year, when agreement was reached April 6 — the district should pay interest on retroactive salary increases.

Non-teaching employees submitted two proposed salary schedules to trustees, one calling for 3.5 per cent raises and the other for an added 5 per cent cost-of-living increase which would bring salaries to 8.5 per cent above this year.

The two proposals were presented to trustees last night under a new provision of the state Education Code, which stipulates that contract and salary proposals must be presented to the board in open session before closed negotiations can begin.

The Reed School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Accepted resignation of Arlene Thomas, teacher aide at Reed School, and hired Donna Ferris to replace her. Miss Ferris will be paid $2.41 per hour.

GIFT — Accepted a cress ceramic kiln for Del Mar School from Mrs. Henry Edar of Belvedere.

GRANTS — Hired Donald G. Perry to conduct a one-day audit of three foundation grants to determine if any improper credit card expenditures were made. Perry will charge $17 per hour.

POLICIES — Accepted a list of policies under which disagreements between teachers and the board will be settled.

LIMIT — Set a $500 limit on how much Giovannielo may spend without seeking board approval.

LEASE — Authorized leasing of a car for Giovanniello for no more than $86 per month.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Denied that it would not hold summer school this year because of lack of interest.

Bids On Slide Repair Sought

Bids to repair a slide caused by storm damage on Shoreline Highway south of Panoramic Highway near Stinson Beach have been called for by the California Division of Highways.

The division has $66,000 earmarked for the project. Bids will be opened June 2 in Sacramento.

Bids will also be opened at the same time on installing electronic vehicle detectors on Highway 37 in Marin County just inside the Sonoma County line and on Highway 101 at the Lucas Valley Road undercrossing north of San Rafael.

Speed Limit On Shoreline Reduced

The speed limit for a section of Shoreline Highway just north of Bodega Bay in Sonoma County has been reduced from 65 to 35 miles an hour by the state Division of Highways.

The new reduced speed zone starts 2,000 feet north of Doran State Park entrance to 2,000 feet south of Kent Avenue where it joins the present 25 miles per hour speed zone north from that point through the town. The speed reduction was requested in the Bodega Bay Master Plan Committee.

San Marin High Concert Set Sunday

Five soloists and five ensembles, rated superior at a recent festival, will perform at San Marin High School's third annual spring concert at the school gymnasium at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The concert band will perform a special arrangement of "House of the Rising Sun" by Holcomb and a concert version of the "Henderson Festival March" by Williams.

Soloists will be Richard Tuck, flutist; John Henderson, bass vocalits; Candie Yardas, clarinetist; John Briggs, French horn, and Steve Salgo, trumpet.

The concert choir will sing "Windmills of Your Mind" by Bergmann and the spiritual 'In's That Mornin," by Ehert.

Ensembles performing will include the saxophone quartet of Beverly Hamman, Shawn Cole, Gerald Fountain and John Klater; the clarinet trio of Candie Yardas, Tim Hesla and Pete Sorensen; the vocal octette of Valerie Knowles, Jennifer Womack, Joyce Beedle, Lorrie Trevino, Marguertie Smith, Kevin Karkalla, Ralph Purtill and John Henderson; the flute quartet of Richard Tuck, Paula White, Melinda Kelley and Jan Trevino, and the trumpet trio of Steve Salgo, Paul Hesla and Mark O'Connell.

IF YOU'RE GOING TO SPEND AROUND $3000 FOR A CAR THIS YEAR WHY NOT SPEND AN EXTRA $30 AND GET A BUICK.

In some cases, Skylark is a little more than $30. In others, it doesn't even cost as much.

In fact, the 1971 Buick Skylark costs about the same as any medium-priced car.

But there's nothing medium-priced about its style. Or quality.

With standard equipment like an advanced ventilation system. A semi-closed cooling system that should never overheat. And Buick's magic-mirror finish that never needs waxing.

So, before you put upwards of $3000 into a medium-priced car, look into Buick's Skylark at your local Bay Area Buick/Opel Dealers.

They've been in the Bay Area long enough for you to feel secure when it comes to guaranteeing and servicing a new car.

They also have a lot of new Skylarks. Right now.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Way In Which Teeth Appear Is Example Of Nature's Harmony

GROWTH, a complex phenomenon, consists of a number of processes that must work in harmony to produce a normal creature. The various parts of the body seldom grow at the same rate or at the same time. Some organs complete their development before others have begun to do so. The thymus gland, for example, attains its maximum size in early childhood, whereas the sex organs do not stir until puberty. The way in which teeth appear is an excellent example of nature's harmony. Teeth erupt, at the precise moment the jaw has room for them.

ALL SPECIES of life begin as a single cell be it man, mouse, elephant or whale. Thereafter, the rate of growth varies considerably and at birth, some animals are more developed than others. Following birth, milk is the natural food for all mammals. The quantity ingested determines the rate of early growth and each type of milk meets the genetic growth requirements of the particular animal. The ultimate size of a species depends upon heredity and the pituitary gland.

MUCH HAS BEEN written on how nutrition affects growth. Since most research is done on laboratory animals, we are not always sure that the findings are applicable to man. The diet may be adequate but for a number of good reasons is not completely absorbed. Many facets of nutrition seldom are considered.

DURING INFANCY, for example, nutrition contributes to the growth and development of the child. Food is a source of energy and if the room temperature is far below normal, some of the edibles used to maintain body temperature are not devoted to growth. This is a small point but demonstrates the complex facets of nutrition.

THE EFFECT of undernutrition of growth varies with the stage of development the body has reached when the diet is inadequate. It is here that growth harmony is disturbed because certain organs have very high priorities for the available nutrients at different periods of life.

HEART DISEASE, PREGNANCY

REPLY

A specific reply to a question of this type cannot be made without a thoro examination. Most women with this kind of heart trouble can go thru pregnancy safely. Those without symptoms do better than women who are short of breath or dropsical.

SORE SHOULDER

REPLY

"Dry socket" is not a mdeical term but if you refer to stiffness or "frozen" shoulder joint, you may be helped by the usual remedies for arthritis or bursitis, such as hydrocortisone or prednisolone. Manipulation of the shoulder, (while anesthetized) and physical therapy may be needed.

IMMUNITY TO VIRUS

D.K. wirtes: Does one attack of infectious hepatitis leave you immune for life?

REPLY

Yes, provided the liver infection is viral hepatitis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this condition.

$3.25 Million In Additional Air Crash Suits

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two more suits have been filed in superior court asking a total of $3.25 million for the deaths of two Air Force personnel killed in a plane crash in the Sears Point area of Sonoma County.

A suit for $3 million was filed Tuesday for the wife and child of T/Sgt. Julius Ryland of Los Angeles. A $250,000 suit was filed for the father of Capt. Ralph Knowles of Norton, Mass. They were filed against Convair division of General Dynamics Corp. of Delaware.

This brings to 12 the suits filed for a total of $23.4 million against General Dynamics Corp. as a result of the plane crash last May when 13 of the 14 persons on board were killed.

The plane crashed minutes after taking off from Hamilton Air Force Base bound for Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash.

Juan Marichal Winning Again But He's Not Satisfied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Juan Marichal is winning again but he isn't satisfied.

Wednesday he stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates on three hits for his fourth victory of the year compared to two losses as the Giants scored a 2-1 victory to stay comfortably atop the National League West.

"I didn't have good control at the start," said Marichal. "I missed too many pitches and I walked too many men."

Marichal walked three batters in all, which for him is some sort of tragedy. The Marichal of old—before the 1970 collapse—hardly ever walked a batter, let alone three in one game. For example, he walked only 54 batters in 300 innings in 1969. Over his big league career of nearly 3,000 innings before this season, the high-kicking righthander walked a total of 551 men, which figures out roughly to one pass every six innings.

"All my pitches were working in this game," Marichal said, "but my best pitch was my fastball."

Still, it was a fastball which "got away" that Bob Robertson hit for a long home run in the second inning for the only run Marichal gave up.

"That was a bad pitch," Juan said. "I never should have made it."

A single by Willie Stargell and a double by Bob Oliver in the sixth were the only other hits Marichal gave up. Over the last three innings, he faced only 10 men and in the eighth and ninth the Pirates failed to get the ball out of the infield.

While most N.L. pitchers dislike working in Candlestick Park with its tricky winds and cold drafts, Marichal, a native of the Dominican Republic, feels right at home.

"It's my No. 1 park," he said. "I like pitching in Candlestick better than in any other park I know of. You get used to the wind and I prefer the cool weather to heat."

His victory over the Pirates snapped a personal two-game losing streak. Marichal lost at home to the Cardinals on April 20 after winning his first three starts and then dropped a 6-2 decision to the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Ken Henderson gave Marichal all the help he needed Wednesday. His fifth inning single drove in San Francisco's first run for a 1-1 tie and his infield out in the seventh scored what proved to be the winning run.

"It's about time I help a little," said Henderson, another modest fellow who now has 11 rbi's on the season. Henderson is still hurting and at times is unable to grip the bat the way he'd like. It all goes back last month to when he injured his right thumb sliding into third. Even though the thumb throbs at times, Henderson is playing.

"The way we are going," he says, "it's no time to sit down."

Today is an off day in the schedule and all the Giants sit down to dinner with about 850 other folks to help teammate Willie Mays celebrate his 40th birthday.

The San Francisco-Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America is sponsoring the party at a Nob Hill hotel. Proceeds from the party—with each person in attendance paying $24 for the privilege—will go to a boys club in San Francisco in keeping with Mays' wishes.

DONOHUE ZIPS

High Speed Indy Testing

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Mark Donohue apparently has scrapped his high-speed testing and started to work on his plans for the 500-mile auto race itself.

But some of the drivers would like to have the extra miles per hour the Media, Pa., speedster is registering even with a full load of fuel.

Donohue toured the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2 1-2mile track Wednesday for 20 laps unofficially over 170 miles per hour. Eighteen were over 172 m.p.h.—faster than the official one and four-lap average set by Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., in a turbocar in 1968. Donohue later said he was checking car handling with a full fuel load.

Donohue, who paced to an unofficial 174.757 m.p.h. on Monday, was caught at 174.622 for his quickest circuit Wednesday.

Two more drivers joined the 170 m.p.h. category in practice. Denis Hulme of New Zealand, driving a McLaren racer identical to the one of Donohue, registered a 172.944 unofficially on the electric eye. Leonard roared to a 170.1 speed.

Hulme's teammate, Peter Revson of New York City, and 1968 "500" champ Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., registered 170.4 Tuesday.

A.J. Foyt Jr., Houston, Tex., made his first appearance on the track this year in his newly designed rear-engine Ford. But the runs only were for shakedowns.

Rain interrupted practice twice Wednesday. The second yellow light kept the track closed the last three hours. The course also was shut down two hours at noon.

Two speedway "rookies" completed their drivers tests. They were Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., and Sam Posey, Sharon, Conn. Al Loquastro, Eaton, Pa., passed the first two phases of his test before the rains came.

Officials report 52 cars were in "gasoline alley" late Wednesday and exactly half had passed the USAC technical inspection. Twenty one of those approved had been on the track by Wednesday afternoon.

Physical examinations had been approved for 43 drivers.

MATTER OF MONEY

Pro Basketball Merger Possible

NEW YORK (UPI)—Merger committees of the National and American Basketball Associations met separately today to discuss the feasibility of an immediate amalgamation that could end the escalating money war for college players.

An NBA committee headed by Abe Pollin, president of the Baltimore Bullets, and its ABA counterpart, chaired by Wendell Cherry, Kentucky Colonels' owner, have been meeting for the last four weeks in an effort to secure peace in the pros and present a united front that would bid for congressional approval of a merger.

It was reported several weeks ago that all but two of the NBA owners were gung-ho for a merger. Their pocket books were emptying because of the telephone number contracts being signed and they are all aware of the uproar that will be created when fans hear mention of ticket price increases to make up the deficit in the club treasuries.

Sam Schulman, owner of the Seattle SuperSonics and a member of the NBA merger committee, has been predicting all along that a merger was forthcoming, now and not in the distant future.

All the ABA owners are for the consolidation that, if effected, would create a 28-team league — 17 from the NBA and 11 from the ABA.

"Frankly, we're not far apart from what I hear, said an ABA spokesman.

The one huge roadblock that must be circumvented is the players' feelings that a merger would cut into their chances for fat salaries. The NBA Players Association contends a merger would be an anti-trust violation and injurious to their livlihood.

For a time, the Boards of Governors of both leagues were fearful Congress would be sympathetic to the players' charge and if the situation were presented before the legislature it would not grant basketball the immunity from anti-trust laws that pro football and baseball enjoy.

Apparently, the owners are prepared to risk congressional disapproval since it may be their only chance for many of them to emerge from the red. Only a few of the NBA clubs are said to be making money, including the New York Knicks and Milwaukee Bucks who played before sellout crowds all season. The ABA is hurting, too, at the gate and trying desperately to recover through the signing of big name collegians.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph refused to portray a positive viewpoint today over a possible merger. He did say, "I have always felt that a consolidation of the NBA and ABA was inevitable and I anticipate a move in that direction in the near future."

An indication that merger committees are working overtime toward a common solution was emphasized by Ben Kerner, owner of the old St. Louis Hawks, who said he had an opportunity to buy into one of the top attendance-drawing NBA teams but shelved a decision because, "if a merger comes about, I may not want any part of it."

"If I owned a franchise, I'd vote against the merger," Kerner said. "I just can't see a 28-team league."

In addition to paying big prices for college players, both leagues have been hurt by player jumpings. Zelmo Beaty gave the Utah Stars a boost toward the ABA title when he jumped from the Atlanta Hawks. Rick Barry, a former NBA scoring champion, hurt San Francisco's title hopes when he signed an ABA contract. Joe Caldwell put spark into the Carolina Cougars when he slipped away from the Hawks.

Conversely, Connie Hawkins made Phoenix an NBA contender when he jumped from the ABA.

Marin '9' Loses 3rd Straight

The College of Marin Tars are staggering through the final week of the Camino Norte Conference baseball season. Yesterday they dropped to fourth place by suffering their third straight loss, 7-5 to Solano J.C. in Vacaville.

With just two games left on the schedule, today against Santa Rosa and Saturday against Canada of Redwood City, the Tars trail those teams plus West Valley of Campbell in the CNC standings. Marin's record is 11-8.

Yesterday's loss went to Chris Rowland, a superb relief pitcher who was forced into a starting assignment when coach Vic Petreshene ran through his normal starters early in the week. Rowland got relief from Stu Kneeland in the seventh, but by that time Solano had all their runs. The Tars betrayed both pitchers with seven errors along the way.

Marin's Larry Brazda, the leading hitter in the league, improved his average to nearly .450 with two hits in four trips, including a double. Second baseman Mike Parnow also had a single and double, liefting his average toward .325.

Group Bids $6 Million For Indians

CLEVELAND (UPI) —A group of businessmen here has offered $6.5 million for the Cleveland Indians.

David Brunswick, owner of Brunswick & Son Florists here, revealed Wednesday he and a small group of other businessmen had asked club owner Vernon Stouffer for a letter of intent to sell the team.

Jim Stouffer, vice president of the Indians, said late Wednesday he had no comment on the offer. He said he had been out of town and not seen it.

Most of the businessmen are Clevelanders, Brunswick said, and they plan to keep the franchise here with "one of the most famous pitchers in history" as manager.

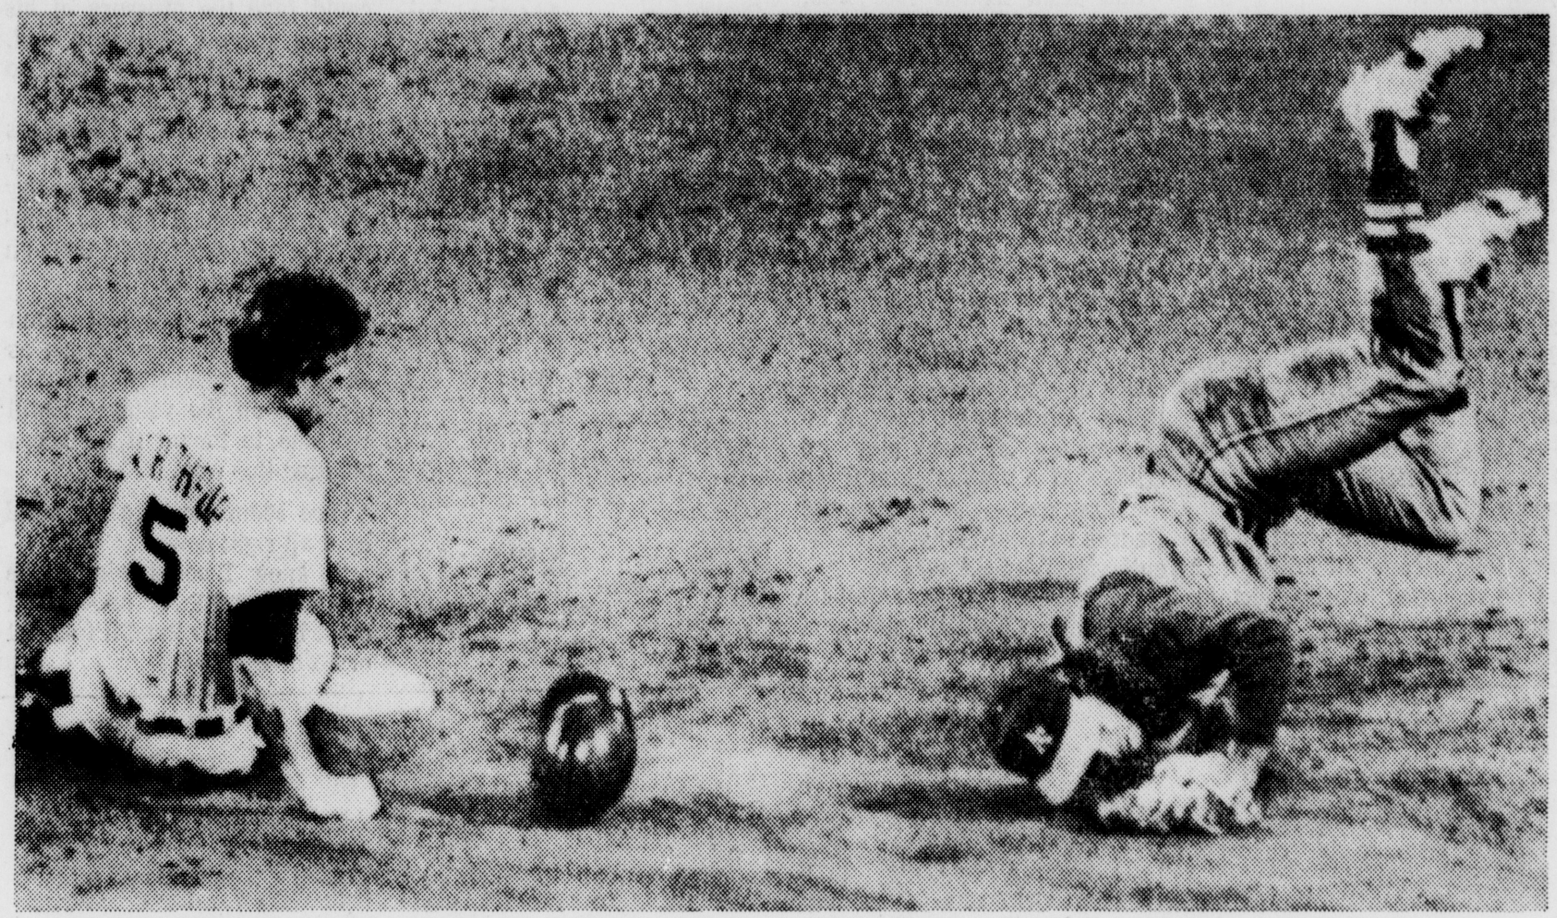
Brunswick said the same group had made an offer for the team in 1969, but that Stouffer had not considered it.

Stouffer said last week he was not actively seeking to sell the team but that he would consider a $9 million offer.

Brunswick said his group arrived at the $6 1-2 million offer after hearing reports that shipping magnate George Steinbrunner was offering Stouffer about $6 million for the franchise.

Steinbrunner said he has made no such offer.

Fantastic Vida Stymies Tigers



PUT OUT THE HARD WAY — Oakland A's second baseman Dick Green sprawled in the dirt after tagging Tigers' sliding Jim Northrup in the fourth inning last night in Detroit. Northrup tried to stretch a single into a double, but Rick Monday made a perfect throw to Green for the out. Oakland won, 5-0.

Sparkling 7-1 Record For Blue

He knows today that the lucky 20 cents he's keeping in his trousers is now worth 13 cents. He keeps the two dimes as a constant reminder he wants 20 victories this season.

Blue registered his seventh straight victory by shutting out Detroit 5-0 on four hits Wednesday night to reduce value of the two dimes to 13 cents. Since losing the season's opener to Washington, the 21year-old flame-throwing pitcher has been unbeatable.

"I can't believe it," he said. "I knew I could pitch in the majors but 7-1...? I'll take 8-1, 8-2 or even 8-8."

Vida, who has not allowed more than six hits in a game since the opener, started off slowly. He threw 84 pitches in the first four innings but settled down to tossing 54 in the last five and retiring 13 of the final 14 batters.

Blue fanned 11 batters to run his major-league leading strikeout total to 70.

On the night before, the A's dropped a one-run decision to the Tigers when rightfielder Reggie Jackson erred in the bottom of the ninth. But Jackson showed he was made of sterner stuff Wednesday night.

He singled off starter and loser Dean Chance, now 0-5, in the fourth inning, stole second and tallied the A's first run on a single by Sal Bando.

That run would have been enough for Blue. But Oakland came back with four more runs in the fifth inning to route Chance and ice the victory.

Dick Green opened the inning when he was hit by a pitch. Green was sacrificed to second by Blue and scored on singles by Bert Campaneris and Joe Rudi. Jackson beat out an infield hit and continued to third when the third baseman fired the ball past first base.

The A's have an off day today before opening a three-game weekend series in Baltimore Friday night.

Watch Out For Schroeder In Byron Nelson Golf Play

DALLAS (UPI) — John Schroeder ranks 87th among touring golf's money winners, but he must—at least for the moment—rank as one of the gallery favorites in the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic starting its 72-hole run today.

The 24-year-old Schroeder, who is—but would like to make people forget it—the son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder, has earned but $9,500 on the golf trail this season.

Schroeder owns, however, the lowest scoring average of any of the 147 players lashing out at Preston Trail Golf Club's 7,031yard, par 35-35—70 layout.

He has played Preston Trail in an average of 68.75 strokes per round compared with a 69.13 average for Jack Nicklaus, 69.50 for Arnold Palmer and Dan Sikes, 69.88 for Dave Stockton and even par 70 for Lee Trevino—all of them in the field here.

It must be taken into consideration that Schroeder has played only one tournament here, while Nicklaus and Stockton have played it twice and Palmer and Trevino all three times the Nelson has called the course home.

But, Schroeder's performance earned the respect of the galleries and his pro contemporaries because of the circumstances.

He was the "third man" in last year's memorable 36-hole final day head-to-head duel between Nicklaus and Palmer in which the two greats wound up tied for the lead with Nicklaus winning on the first extra hole.

Despite the tremendous gallery storming along with the day's final threesome, Schroeder refused to buckle under the pressures. He outshot both Nicklaus and Palmer with a 6967—136 finish that earned him $5,900 in a tie for third with Trevino.

That drew such comments as "John kept coming at us" and "John kept his cool when he might have lost it" from Nicklaus and Palmer.

Schroeder went on to earn $32,000 in his rookie year.

That isn't much when you consider both Nicklaus and Palmer have each already pocketed more than $100,000 this year.

But, Schroeder hadn't done well up to this point a year ago. Now, here he is again and he feels last year's experience here will help him over the hump.

"I certainly think it will help," he said. "I definitely have some positive thoughts about it. I know I can play this course."

'A Goal Tenders' Series

CHICAGO (UPI)—The rival coaches, Billy Reay of the Chicago Black Hawks and Al MacNeil of the Montreal Canadiens, declared "it's a goal tenders' series," so the Hawks should be favored to continue their winning way in the final series for hockey's prized Stanley Cup.

The Hawks hold a one-game lead going into tonight's second game of the best-of-seven series, as much by virtue of the goal tending of Tony Esposito as the game-winning goal Tuesday night by Jim Pappin in the 2-1 Hawks' overtime victory.

But while Esposito kept the Hawks alive, Ken Dryden did almost as well for the Canadiens. Esposito faced only 37 Montreal shots and saved 36 of them, while Dryden was the target for 58 Chicago shots and two slipped by.

A Near Sellout For Mays' Party

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Willie Mays' 40th birthday party, to be held Thursday at a mid-town hotel, is a near sellout.

A crowd of about 900 is expected for the party, sponsored by the San Francisco-Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. All proceeds from the party will be donated to an underprivileged boys club in San Francisco.

A spokesman for the writers' chapter said Wednesday some tickets remain and can be purchased at the door.

The party gets underway at 7 p.m. at the Fairmont Hotel with tickets selling for $24.00 each

ABA PLAYOFFS

Utah Stars Take 2-0 Lead

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah coach Bill Sharman glanced at the sheet of statistics and said, "We've got to slow Dan Issel down."

You might think those the words of a loser. However, Sharman and his Utah Stars will be carrying a 2-0 advantage in the best-of-seven championship series for the American Basketball Association title back to Louisville, Ky., Friday night and Saturday afternoon against the Kentucky Colonels.

Utah's Zelmo Beaty ran like a gazelle and scored 40 points to propel the Stars to a 138-125 win over the Colonels before a sellout home crowd of 13,208 at the Salt Palace Wednesday night.

What bothered Sharman was the 40 points scored by Issel which nearly helped Kentucky pull out the second game.

Issel, a 6-9 rookie forward, combined with Darel Carrier and Walt Simon in a torrid second period that saw the Colonels leading 40-39 about nine minutes before the half. The score changed hands seven times and was tied four times in the final four minutes of the second period before the Stars pulled away to a 65-62 halftime bulge. The Stars tightened their defense in the second half and pulled away from the Colonels.

Beaty got lots of help from forward Willie Wise in the second half. Wise hauled down 24 rebounds and scored 26 points.

Reed School Trustees Get Outlines For Salary Increases

Salary increases of 8.8 per cent for teachers and 8.5 per cent for non-teaching personnel have been submitted to the Reed School District board.

Trustees took the requests under consideration, Tuesday night, according to Supt. Ralph Giovanniello, and will begin negotiating with representatives of both groups soon.

The superintendent said board members hope to arrive at a contract agreement with non-teachers personnel before July 1. No target date for agreement with teachers was mentioned, he said.

Teachers based their salary request on the median of five school districts in Marin: Kentfield, Mill Valley, Ross, San Rafael and Sausaltio.

The total teacher salary budget for next year would go up 8.8 per cent over this year if the teachers' proposal were accepted, although individual teachers may receive more or less than that amount.

Giovanniello said teachers also asked that health care and dental plans, which now cover only the employee himself, be extended to include his dependents.

In addition, teachers asked that three additional steps be added to the salary schedule for those teaching more than 15 years in the district.

The teachers said they hope for a contract settlement before September and that in the event of a late settlement — such as occurred this year, when agreement was reached April 6 — the district should pay interest on retroactive salary increases.

Non-teaching employees submitted two proposed salary schedules to trustees, one calling for 3.5 per cent raises and the other for an added 5 per cent cost-of-living increase which would bring salaries to 8.5 per cent above this year.

The two proposals were presented to trustees last night under a new provision of the state Education Code, which stipulates that contract and salary proposals must be presented to the board in open session before closed negotiations can begin.

The Reed School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Accepted resignation of Arlene Thomas, teacher aide at Reed School, and hired Donna Ferris to replace her. Miss Ferris will be paid $2.41 per hour.

GIFT — Accepted a cress ceramic kiln for Del Mar School from Mrs. Henry Edar of Belvedere.

GRANTS — Hired Donald G. Perry to conduct a one-day audit of three foundation grants to determine if any improper credit card expenditures were made. Perry will charge $17 per hour.

POLICIES — Accepted a list of policies under which disagreements between teachers and the board will be settled.

LIMIT — Set a $500 limit on how much Giovannielo may spend without seeking board approval.

LEASE — Authorized leasing of a car for Giovanniello for no more than $86 per month.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Denied that it would not hold summer school this year because of lack of interest.

Bids On Slide Repair Sought

Bids to repair a slide caused by storm damage on Shoreline Highway south of Panoramic Highway near Stinson Beach have been called for by the California Division of Highways.

The division has $66,000 earmarked for the project. Bids will be opened June 2 in Sacramento.

Bids will also be opened at the same time on installing electronic vehicle detectors on Highway 37 in Marin County just inside the Sonoma County line and on Highway 101 at the Lucas Valley Road undercrossing north of San Rafael.

Speed Limit On Shoreline Reduced

The speed limit for a section of Shoreline Highway just north of Bodega Bay in Sonoma County has been reduced from 65 to 35 miles an hour by the state Division of Highways.

The new reduced speed zone starts 2,000 feet north of Doran State Park entrance to 2,000 feet south of Kent Avenue where it joins the present 25 miles per hour speed zone north from that point through the town. The speed reduction was requested in the Bodega Bay Master Plan Committee.

San Marin High Concert Set Sunday

Five soloists and five ensembles, rated superior at a recent festival, will perform at San Marin High School's third annual spring concert at the school gymnasium at 3 p.m. Sunday.

IF YOU'RE GOING TO SPEND AROUND $3000 FOR A CAR THIS YEAR WHY NOT SPEND AN EXTRA $30 AND GET A BUICK.

In some cases, Skylark is a little more than $30. In others, it doesn't even cost as much.

In fact, the 1971 Buick Skylark costs about the same as any medium-priced car.

But there's nothing medium-priced about its style. Or quality.

With standard equipment like an advanced ventilation system. A semi-closed cooling system that should never overheat. And Buick's magic-mirror finish that never needs waxing.

So, before you put upwards of $3000 into a medium-priced car, look into Buick's Skylark at your local Bay Area Buick/Opel Dealers.

They've been in the Bay Area long enough for you to feel secure when it comes to guaranteeing and servicing a new car.

They also have a lot of new Skylarks. Right now.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

A Little Lineup Juggling Pays Off For Cincy Reds

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Cincinnati Reds have finally gotten a taste of last season.

The Reds, who ran away with the National League West and stormed to the NL pennant last season, have had their problems this year. After winning only nine of their first 23 games and being lodged in fifth place, the Reds needed a change.

Manager Sparky Anderson took care of that Wednesday night with a little lineup juggling and it paid off handsomely. Anderson moved Tony Perez into the No. 4 slot and Perez delivered a tiebreaking three-run homer in the seventh inning to boost the Reds to an 8-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Perez' homer, his third of the season, came after Jimmy Stewart led off with a pinch-hit double and Ty Cline walked. Lee May added a solo homer in the seventh to complete the Cincinnati scoring.

"This is sort of what it was like last year," said Anderson. "I moved Perez to the fourth spot last year and dropped Johnny Bench to third when we ran into a bad streak and it paid off then."

In other NL games, San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 2-1, Chicago niped New York 5-4, St. Louis ripped Philadelphia 5-1, Montreal downed Houston 5-1 and Atlanta beat San Diego 3-1 after losing the doubleheader opener 3-1.

Danny Breeden's two-run singled capped a four-run fifth inning that carried the Cubs past New York. Breeden's two-out single scored Billy Williams and Ron Santo with the tie-breaking runs after Santo's two-run single had tied the score at 3-3.

Ferguson Jenkins went all the way for Chicago, striking out 12 as he recorded his fifth victory against two defeats. He was touched for three runs in the first inning, two on Ed Kranepool's homer, before allowing only five hits over the last seven innings. Rookie Charlie Williams took the loss.

Lou Brock and Jose Cardenal hit eighth-inning home runs to break open a tie game and lead the Cardinals over Philadelphia. Brock opened the inning with his homer off Joe Hoerner and Cardenal hit his after Matty Alou doubled and Ted Sizemore walked.

Ron Hunt lashed four hits, including his first homer of the season in the first inning, to lift Montreal past the Astros. Bill Stoneman allowed only six hits to gain his third victory in four decisions.

Winning pitcher Jim Nash and Gil Garrido each singled in a run in the sixth inning of the second game to lead the Braves past San Diego. Al Severinsen, making his 16th relief appearance of the season, induced Henry Aaron to hit into an inning-ending double play to choke off a Braves' rally in the first game and enable the Padres to record only their seventh victory of the season.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Will Success Spoil Vida?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Will success spoil Vida Blue?

That's the only worry Oakland A's Manager Dick Williams has these days as Blue, a 21-year-old left-hander, continues to be the pitching sensation of the young baseball season.

"I'd like to keep him in a glass cage and just send him out when it's his turn," Williams smiled Wednesday night after Blue won his seventh straight to boost his record to 7-1 on a four-hitter as the A's downed Detroit 5-0.

When he was asked if Blue could face the pressure of his sudden success, Williams said, "I don't think he's going to have any problems. He's very intelligent and he's assumed his responsibilities without any problems. He's got a pretty good guy around him in Tommy Davis, who's been through all this himself."

But Blue has only just begun to cope with his new status as an instant celebrity and the pressure on the youngster will continue to mount if he keeps pitching this way.

"I knew I could win in the majors, but 7-1...?" he said. "I can't believe it. But I'll take 8-1 or 8-2 or even 8-8."

He added, "it's great to be compared to a Koufax or a McDowell but I just try to be Vida Blue."

Williams was asked how many games Blue will win and he said, "somebody just asked me that and I said how many starts does he have. I just hope he stays healthy and can pitch when it's his turn." Williams has been alternating Blue with three and four days rest.

Blue's statistics are somewhat staggering. He was knocked out on opening day in Washington but he's pitched seven straight complete games since including four shutouts. He leads the league with 69 strikeouts in 62 innings pitched and with a 1.02 ERA.

In the other games, Minnesota beat New York 5-3, Milwaukee edged Washington 43 and Kansas City topped Cleveland 4-2. The California at Baltimore and Boston at Chicago games were rained out.

Leo Cardenas drove in all five Minnesota runs—three with his first homer in the second inning—as the Twins beat New York. Jim Perry, 5-2, went 7 2-3 innings to get the victory and Stan Bahnsen lasted two innings while suffering the defeat.

A bases-loaded pinch single by Andy Kosco highlighted a rhubarb-filled seventh inning as Milwaukee edged Washington. The rhubarb started when Andy Kosco went to the at bat circle and Washington Manager Ted Williams switched pitchers. Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol then aruged he never actually sent Kosco in as a pinch-hitter and tried to put starter Johnny Briggs back into the game. Bristol was thrown out and Kosco made it all academic by driving in two runs to win the game.

Amos Otis hit a two-run homer in the four-run sixth inning as Kansas City beat slumping Cleveland. Dick Drago, 4-1, went 8 1-3 innings to get the victory and Steve Dunning took the loss.

20-Game Winner

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Bob Gibson, the 1970 National League Cy Young Award winner, has won 20 games five times during his career with the St. Louis Cardinals. Gibson's first try in professional sports was a tour with the Harlem Globetrotter Basketball Team.

SPORTS SHORTS

Giants To Sign Two Japanese

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants announced Wednesday they will sign a pair of Japanese pitchers Thursday upon their arrival in town.

The pitchers, both of whom played for Japanese teams last year, will be signed to contracts with the Giants' Pacific Coast League Phoenix farm club.

Basketball

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Baltimore Bullets forward Gus Johnson had lateral cartilage removed from both knees Wednesday at Kernan Childrens' Hospital in Baltimore.

Team physician, Dr. Kenneth Spence, said the surgery was successful and said Johnson, 32, was in satisfactory condition after the 90-minute operation.

Golf

DALLAS (UPI)—Houston golfer Homero Blancas whipped—around the par-72 Preston Trail Golf Course in 65 Wednesday to win the pro-am division of the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Blancas, a former star at the University of Houston, will receive $500 for having the low round for the professionals.

Football

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel has cast his lot with the Los Angeles Rams for at least the next four years and possibly as long as he remains in the National Football League.

The star quarterback's decision to accept a four-year contract with the Rams instead of playing out his option was announced Wednesday by assistant general manager Johnny Sanders.

There had been fears in some quarters that Gabriel might play out his option and join the exodus of performers who followed deposed coach George Allen to the Washington Redskins.

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Chicago Bears owner George S. Halas said he gave a federal grand jury investigating the National Football League "a lot of information and some laughs" during his two hours of testimony.

Halas, 75, one of the founders of the NFL, testified Wednesday afternoon before the federal panel, which has been investigating possible anti-trust violations by the NFL since last November.

He said he is sure the NFL has done nothing illegl, because, if it had "I would have been the first to raise questions about it."

Horse Racing

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Good Behaving, an impressive winner in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Aqueduct, has been withdrawn from the Preakness.

Trainer John Campo, who also trains Jim French, the runnerup in this year's Kentucky Derby, said he decided to withdraw Good Behaving because "he doesn't run so good when shipped out of town."

Tennis

ROME (UPI)—Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe, both of whom struggled past lesser second round competition, led a four-man United States contingent into today's third round of the $50,000 Italian tennis championships.

Juan Marichal Winning Again But He's Not Satisfied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Juan Marichal is winning again but he isn't satisfied.

Wednesday he stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates on three hits for his fourth victory of the year compared to two losses as the Giants scored a 2-1 victory to stay comfortably atop the National League West.

"I didn't have good control at the start," said Marichal. "I missed too many pitches and I walked too many men."

Marichal walked three batters in all, which for him is some sort of tragedy. The Marichal of old—before the 1970 collapse—hardly ever walked a batter, let alone three in one game. For example, he walked only 54 batters in 300 innings in 1969. Over his big league career of nearly 3,000 innings before this season, the high-kicking righthander walked a total of 551 men, which figures out roughly to one pass every six innings.

"All my pitches were working in this game," Marichal said, "but my best pitch was my fastball."

Still, it was a fastball which "got away" that Bob Robertson hit for a long home run in the second inning for the only run Marichal gave up.

"That was a bad pitch," Juan said. "I never should have made it."

A single by Willie Stargell and a double by Bob Oliver in the sixth were the only other hits Marichal gave up. Over the last three innings, he faced only 10 men and in the eighth and ninth the Pirates failed to get the ball out of the infield.

While most N.L. pitchers dislike working in Candlestick Park with its tricky winds and cold drafts, Marichal, a native of the Dominican Republic, feels right at home.

"It's my No. 1 park," he said. "I like pitching in Candlestick better than in any other park I know of. You get used to the wind and I prefer the cool weather to heat."

His victory over the Pirates snapped a personal two-game losing streak. Marichal lost at home to the Cardinals on April 20 after winning his first three starts and then dropped a 6-2 decision to the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Ken Henderson gave Marichal all the help he needed Wednesday. His fifth inning single drove in San Francisco's first run for a 1-1 tie and his infield out in the seventh scored what proved to be the winning run.

"It's about time I help a little," said Henderson, another modest fellow who now has 11 rbi's on the season. Henderson is still hurting and at times is unable to grip the bat the way he'd like. It all goes back last month to when he injured his right thumb sliding into third. Even though the thumb throbs at times, Henderson is playing.

"The way we are going," he says, "it's no time to sit down."

Today is an off day in the schedule and all the Giants sit down to dinner with about 850 other folks to help teammate Willie Mays celebrate his 40th birthday.

The San Francisco-Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America is sponsoring the party at a Nob Hill hotel. Proceeds from the party—with each person in attendance paying $24 for the privilege—will go to a boys club in San Francisco in keeping with Mays' wishes.

DONOHUE ZIPS

High Speed Indy Testing

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Mark Donohue apparently has scrapped his high-speed testing and started to work on his plans for the 500-mile auto race itself.

But some of the drivers would like to have the extra miles per hour the Media, Pa., speedster is registering even with a full load of fuel.

Donohue toured the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2 1-2mile track Wednesday for 20 laps unofficially over 170 miles per hour. Eighteen were over 172 m.p.h.—faster than the official one and four-lap average set by Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., in a turbocar in 1968. Donohue later said he was checking car handling with a full fuel load.

Donohue, who paced to an unofficial 174.757 m.p.h. on Monday, was caught at 174.622 for his quickest circuit Wednesday.

Two more drivers joined the 170 m.p.h. category in practice. Denis Hulme of New Zealand, driving a McLaren racer identical to the one of Donohue, registered a 172.944 unofficially on the electric eye. Leonard roared to a 170.1 speed.

Hulme's teammate, Peter Revson of New York City, and 1968 "500" champ Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., registered 170.4 Tuesday.

A.J. Foyt Jr., Houston, Tex., made his first appearance on the track this year in his newly designed rear-engine Ford. But the runs only were for shakedowns.

Rain interrupted practice twice Wednesday. The second yellow light kept the track closed the last three hours. The course also was shut down two hours at noon.

Two speedway "rookies" completed their drivers tests. They were Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., and Sam Posey, Sharon, Conn. Al Loquastro, Eaton, Pa., passed the first two phases of his test before the rains came.

Officials report 52 cars were in "gasoline alley" late Wednesday and exactly half had passed the USAC technical inspection. Twenty one of those approved had been on the track by Wednesday afternoon.

Physical examinations had been approved for 43 drivers.

MATTER OF MONEY

Pro Basketball Merger Possible

NEW YORK (UPI)—Merger committees of the National and American Basketball Associations met separately today to discuss the feasibility of an immediate amalgamation that could end the escalating money war for college players.

An NBA committee headed by Abe Pollin, president of the Baltimore Bullets, and its ABA counterpart, chaired by Wendell Cherry, Kentucky Colonels' owner, have been meeting for the last four weeks in an effort to secure peace in the pros and present a united front that would bid for congressional approval of a merger.

It was reported several weeks ago that all but two of the NBA owners were gung-ho for a merger. Their pocket books were emptying because of the telephone number contracts being signed and they are all aware of the uproar that will be created when fans hear mention of ticket price increases to make up the deficit in the club treasuries.

Sam Schulman, owner of the Seattle SuperSonics and a member of the NBA merger committee, has been predicting all along that a merger was forthcoming, now and not in the distant future.

All the ABA owners are for the consolidation that, if effected, would create a 28-team league — 17 from the NBA and 11 from the ABA.

"Frankly, we're not far apart from what I hear, said an ABA spokesman.

The one huge roadblock that must be circumvented is the players' feelings that a merger would cut into their chances for fat salaries. The NBA Players Association contends a merger would be an anti-trust violation and injurious to their livlihood.

For a time, the Boards of Governors of both leagues were fearful Congress would be sympathetic to the players' charge and if the situation were presented before the legislature it would not grant basketball the immunity from anti-trust laws that pro football and baseball enjoy.

Apparently, the owners are prepared to risk congressional disapproval since it may be their only chance for many of them to emerge from the red. Only a few of the NBA clubs are said to be making money, including the New York Knicks and Milwaukee Bucks who played before sellout crowds all season. The ABA is hurting, too, at the gate and trying desperately to recover through the signing of big name collegians.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph refused to portray a positive viewpoint today over a possible merger. He did say, "I have always felt that a consolidation of the NBA and ABA was inevitable and I anticipate a move in that direction in the near future."

An indication that merger committees are working overtime toward a common solution was emphasized by Ben Kerner, owner of the old St. Louis Hawks, who said he had an opportunity to buy into one of the top attendance-drawing NBA teams but shelved a decision because, "if a merger comes about, I may not want any part of it."

"If I owned a franchise, I'd vote against the merger," Kerner said. "I just can't see a 28-team league."

In addition to paying big prices for college players, both leagues have been hurt by player jumpings. Zelmo Beaty gave the Utah Stars a boost toward the ABA title when he jumped from the Atlanta Hawks. Rick Barry, a former NBA scoring champion, hurt San Francisco's title hopes when he signed an ABA contract. Joe Caldwell put spark into the Carolina Cougars when he slipped away from the Hawks.

Conversely, Connie Hawkins made Phoenix an NBA contender when he jumped from the ABA.

Marin '9' Loses 3rd Straight

The College of Marin Tars are staggering through the final week of the Camino Norte Conference baseball season. Yesterday they dropped to fourth place by suffering their third straight loss, 7-5 to Solano J.C. in Vacaville.

With just two games left on the schedule, today against Santa Rosa and Saturday against Canada of Redwood City, the Tars trail those teams plus West Valley of Campbell in the CNC standings. Marin's record is 11-8.

Yesterday's loss went to Chris Rowland, a superb relief pitcher who was forced into a starting assignment when coach Vic Petreshene ran through his normal starters early in the week. Rowland got relief from Stu Kneeland in the seventh, but by that time Solano had all their runs. The Tars betrayed both pitchers with seven errors along the way.

Marin's Larry Brazda, the leading hitter in the league, improved his average to nearly .450 with two hits in four trips, including a double. Second baseman Mike Parnow also had a single and double, liefting his average toward .325.

Group Bids $6 Million For Indians

CLEVELAND (UPI) —A group of businessmen here has offered $6.5 million for the Cleveland Indians.

David Brunswick, owner of Brunswick & Son Florists here, revealed Wednesday he and a small group of other businessmen had asked club owner Vernon Stouffer for a letter of intent to sell the team.

Jim Stouffer, vice president of the Indians, said late Wednesday he had no comment on the offer. He said he had been out of town and not seen it.

Most of the businessmen are Clevelanders, Brunswick said, and they plan to keep the franchise here with "one of the most famous pitchers in history" as manager.

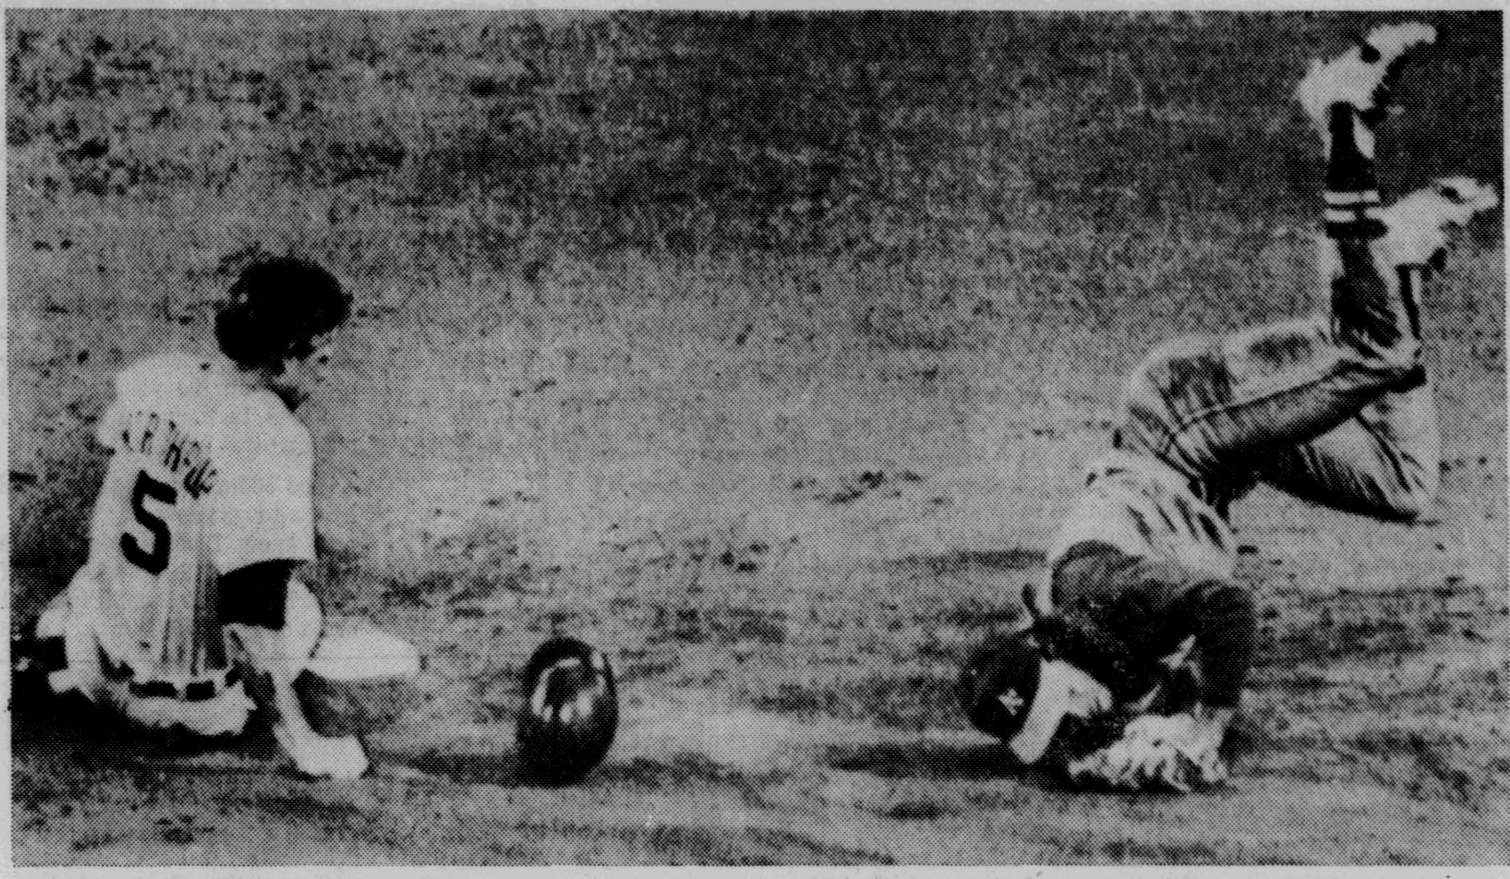
Brunswick said the same group had made an offer for the team in 1969, but that Stouffer had not considered it.

Stouffer said last week he was not actively seeking to sell the team but that he would consider a $9 million offer.

Brunswick said his group arrived at the $6 1-2 million offer after hearing reports that shipping magnate George Steinbrunner was offering Stouffer about $6 million for the franchise.

Steinbrunner said he has made no such offer.

Fantastic Vida Stymies Tigers



PUT OUT THE HARD WAY — Oakland A's second baseman Dick Green sprawled in the dirt after tagging Tigers' sliding Jim Northrup in the fourth inning last night in Detroit. Northrup tried to stretch a single into a double, but Rick Monday made a perfect throw to Green for the out. Oakland won, 5-0.

(UPI Telephoto)

Sparkling 7-1 Record For Blue

He knows today that the lucky 20 cents he's keeping in his trousers is now worth 13 cents. He keeps the two dimes as a constant reminder he wants 20 victories this season.

Blue registered his seventh straight victory by shutting out Detroit 5-0 on four hits Wednesday night to reduce value of the two dimes to 13 cents. Since losing the season's opener to Washington, the 21year-old flame-throwing pitcher has been unbeatable.

"I can't believe it," he said. "I knew I could pitch in the majors but 7-1...? I'll take 8-1, 8-2 or even 8-8."

Vida, who has not allowed more than six hits in a game since the opener, started off slowly. He threw 84 pitches in the first four innings but settled down to tossing 54 in the last five and retiring 13 of the final 14 batters.

Blue fanned 11 batters to run his major-league leading strikeout total to 70.

On the night before, the A's dropped a one-run decision to the Tigers when rightfielder Reggie Jackson erred in the bottom of the ninth. But Jackson showed he was made of sterner stuff Wednesday night.

He singled off starter and loser Dean Chance, now 0-5, in the fourth inning, stole second and tallied the A's first run on a single by Sal Bando.

That run would have been enough for Blue. But Oakland came back with four more runs in the fifth inning to route Chance and ice the victory.

Dick Green opened the inning when he was hit by a pitch. Green was sacrificed to second by Blue and scored on singles by Bert Campaneris and Joe Rudi. Jackson beat out an infield hit and continued to third when the third baseman fired the ball past first base.

The A's have an off day today before opening a three-game weekend series in Baltimore Friday night.

Watch Out For Schroeder In Byron Nelson Golf Play

DALLAS (UPI) — John Schroeder ranks 87th among touring golf's money winners, but he must—at least for the moment—rank as one of the gallery favorites in the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic starting its 72-hole run today.

The 24-year-old Schroeder, who is—but would like to make people forget it—the son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder, has earned but $9,500 on the golf trail this season.

Schroeder owns, however, the lowest scoring average of any of the 147 players lashing out at Preston Trail Golf Club's 7,031yard, par 35-35—70 layout.

He has played Preston Trail in an average of 68.75 strokes per round compared with a 69.13 average for Jack Nicklaus, 69.50 for Arnold Palmer and Dan Sikes, 69.88 for Dave Stockton and even par 70 for Lee Trevino—all of them in the field here.

It must be taken into consideration that Schroeder has played only one tournament here, while Nicklaus and Stockton have played it twice and Palmer and Trevino all three times the Nelson has called the course home.

But, Schroeder's performance earned the respect of the galleries and his pro contemporaries because of the circumstances.

He was the "third man" in last year's memorable 36-hole final day head-to-head duel between Nicklaus and Palmer in which the two greats wound up tied for the lead with Nicklaus winning on the first extra hole.

Despite the tremendous gallery storming along with the day's final threesome, Schroeder refused to buckle under the pressures. He outshot both Nicklaus and Palmer with a 6967—136 finish that earned him $5,900 in a tie for third with Trevino.

That drew such comments as "John kept coming at us" and "John kept his cool when he might have lost it" from Nicklaus and Palmer.

Schroeder went on to earn $32,000 in his rookie year.

That isn't much when you consider both Nicklaus and Palmer have each already pocketed more than $100,000 this year.

But, Schroeder hadn't done well up to this point a year ago. Now, here he is again and he feels last year's experience here will help him over the hump.

"I certainly think it will help," he said. "I definitely have some positive thoughts about it. I know I can play this course."

'A Goal Tenders' Series

CHICAGO (UPI)—The rival coaches, Billy Reay of the Chicago Black Hawks and Al MacNeil of the Montreal Canadiens, declared "it's a goal tenders' series," so the Hawks should be favored to continue their winning way in the final series for hockey's prized Stanley Cup.

The Hawks hold a one-game lead going into tonight's second game of the best-of-seven series, as much by virtue of the goal tending of Tony Esposito as the game-winning goal Tuesday night by Jim Pappin in the 2-1 Hawks' overtime victory.

But while Esposito kept the Hawks alive, Ken Dryden did almost as well for the Canadiens. Esposito faced only 37 Montreal shots and saved 36 of them, while Dryden was the target for 58 Chicago shots and two slipped by.

ABA PLAYOFFS

Utah Stars Take 2-0 Lead

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah coach Bill Sharman glanced at the sheet of statistics and said, "We've got to slow Dan Issel down."

You might think those the words of a loser. However, Sharman and his Utah Stars will be carrying a 2-0 advantage in the best-of-seven championship series for the American Basketball Association title back to Louisville, Ky., Friday night and Saturday afternoon against the Kentucky Colonels.

Utah's Zelmo Beaty ran like a gazelle and scored 40 points to propel the Stars to a 138-125 win over the Colonels before a sellout home crowd of 13,208 at the Salt Palace Wednesday night.

What bothered Sharman was the 40 points scored by Issel which nearly helped Kentucky pull out the second game.

Issel, a 6-9 rookie forward, combined with Darel Carrier and Walt Simon in a torrid second period that saw the Colonels leading 40-39 about nine minutes before the half. The score changed hands seven times and was tied four times in the final four minutes of the second period before the Stars pulled away to a 65-62 halftime bulge. The Stars tightened their defense in the second half and pulled away from the Colonels.

Beaty got lots of help from forward Willie Wise in the second half. Wise hauled down 24 rebounds and scored 26 points.

A Near Sellout For Mays' Party

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Willie Mays' 40th birthday party, to be held Thursday at a mid-town hotel, is a near sellout.

A crowd of about 900 is expected for the party, sponsored by the San Francisco-Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. All proceeds from the party will be donated to an underprivileged boys club in San Francisco.

A spokesman for the writers' chapter said Wednesday some tickets remain and can be purchased at the door.

The party gets underway at 7 p.m. at the Fairmont Hotel with tickets selling for $24.00 each

Tar Stars Lead Loop Statistics

College of Marin baseball players lead the Camino Norte Conference in six of eight offensive catagories, according to statistics released yesterday.

Four of the top marks belong to the Tars' power hitting first baseman, Rafael Gallardo, while outfielder Larry Brazda leads the league in hitting with a .434 average. He, second baseman Mike Parnow and Brazda are all hitting above .300.

Gallardo's credentials include league leading figures in runs scored, 16; triples, 3; home runs, 4; and runs batted in, 16. He is hitting at a .314 clip.

Brazda all but has the hitting title sewed up as he leads the next best batter by .42 points. He also holds the top mark in total hits with 23, but teammate Parnow is close on his heels in that department. Parnow has 21 safeties in a league-leading 64 at bats, for a .328 average.

The only catagories where Marin players do not lead are doubles and stolen bases.

The Tars also have the league's two top pitchers, from the point of innings worked. Dennis Bueler has pitched 55 innings, and Gerry Goodrick 53 and one third. Bueler has the seventh best earned run average, 2.62.

There is only one way to pick up the 5-7 split. That is to roll to the right of the 5. Move slightly left on the alley and aim your ball to the right. Even if you're off a little and the 5 misses the 7, it may bounce off the sideboard and still be picked up.

MARIN-SONOMA GOLF

12 Area Players In Norcal Tourney

Last week's Division A record for entries in the Northern California Golf Association four ball stroke play tournament has been shattered by Division B, in which 216 two-man teams will compete today through Saturday at Spyglass Hill in Pebble Beach.

Twelve Marin and Sonoma County golfers are entered in the tourney, which drew 190 teams including 23 players from Marin for its A Division competition last week. Half the local players entered in the B Division event are from Marin Country Club in Novato: Richard Hunter, Frank King, Kelly Gearety, Emil Renati, Alex Kazakoff and Elwood Frink. Also entered are Terry Jarcik, Graham Young and Dallas Pack of Rohnert Park, Albert Hahn and Victor Regalia of Meadow Club in Fairfax, and Keeler Nash of Mill Valley.

In spring handicap finals, Mrs. William McVickers defeated Mrs. Rowe Waller for the Indian Valley crown, and Mrs. Fred Greenland shot a three-round net total of 189 to win the Mill Valley crown.

Decker Mowing 'Em Down

Former Marin County high school baseball stars now playing in the minor leagues are off to so-so starts this year, but Joe Decker, one time pitching wonder for Petaluma High in Sonoma County, is mowing them down in the Pacific Coast League.

John Dolinsek of Novato, the only ex-Marin player in AAA ball, is hitting .233 after two weeks with Oklahoma City of the American Association. Three of his 10 hits are home runs, however, and three more are doubles, which should please the Houston Astros, parent club of Oklahoma City.

Decker, now in Tacoma after spending much of last year with the Chicago Cubs, is leading the PCL with a 1.45 earned run average. For 31 innings of work he has a 2-0 record, with 33 strikeouts.

Early season reports on other Marin players in the minors; Tom Corder of Novato, playing for the Dodgers' class A Bakersfield farm team, went two for four in his first game of the season, one of his hits was a double. Another class A player, Dewey Forrey of Terra Linda, is off to a horrible start with the Dodgers' Daytona Beach, Fla, club. He has only two hits in 20 at bats.

On the AA level, Ken Johnson, former Redwood star, was hitting .286, with four hits in 14 trips.

Can an $18 tire REALLY be as good as a $30 tire?

GOODSTONE
TRIPLE 'S' TIRES

$18.00
DiVito

At TRIPLE 'S' it can!

We buy all our tires in rail car lots directly from the big tire factories. Go out and unload the cars ourselves. Eliminates a bundle of overhead expenses.

If you've ever been in a TRIPLE 'S' store, you know it's clean. The people are friendly. BUT . . . it's not fancy and there aren't any big expensive fixtures for YOU to pay for.

So, quite honestly, at TRIPLE 'S', we CAN sell the same tire for $18 that you'd buy somewhere else for $30.

The tire we're featuring this week for $18 is a double belted premium quality tire made by one of the oldest tire manufacturers in the United States. It's a dual white-wall of the latest design. It's NOT a second. If you bought it with the manufacturer's name on it you'd have to pay $30. But our tire is called a Harvard . . . not a Goodyear or Firestone.

You've probably never heard of a Harvard tire. Quite frankly, neither had we until a couple of months ago. But, you'll know the manufacturer when we tell you who it is.

The Harvard tire is every bit as good as the tire that carries the manufacturer's name. But much less expensive. After all, you can't put costly TV advertising on your car. What you want is safety and, the most miles per dollar. That's exactly what we sell.

When you come and buy this tire for $18, we GUARANTEE it'll go 30,000 miles. We'll give you a written guarantee telling you exactly what we will do. And what we won't do. Give us a try.

Why spend $30 for an $18 tire?

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

A Little Lineup Juggling Pays Off For Cincy Reds

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Cincinnati Reds have finally gotten a taste of last season.

The Reds, who ran away with the National League West and stormed to the NL pennant last season, have had their problems this year. After winning only nine of their first 23 games and being lodged in fifth place, the Reds needed a change.

Manager Sparky Anderson took care of that Wednesday night with a little lineup juggling and it paid off handsomely. Anderson moved Tony Perez into the No. 4 slot and Perez delivered a tiebreaking three-run homer in the seventh inning to boost the Reds to an 8-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Perez' homer, his third of the season, came after Jimmy Stewart led off with a pinch-hit double and Ty Cline walked. Lee May added a solo homer in the seventh to complete the Cincinnati scoring.

"This is sort of what it was like last year," said Anderson. "I moved Perez to the fourth spot last year and dropped Johnny Bench to third when we ran into a bad streak and it paid off then."

In other NL games, San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 2-1, Chicago niped New York 5-4, St. Louis ripped Philadelphia 5-1, Montreal downed Houston 5-1 and Atlanta beat San Diego 3-1 after losing the doubleheader opener 3-1.

Danny Breeden's two-run singled capped a four-run fifth inning that carried the Cubs past New York. Breeden's two-out single scored Billy Williams and Ron Santo with the tiebreaking runs after Santo's two-run single had tied the score at 3-3.

Ferguson Jenkins went all the way for Chicago, striking out 12 as he recorded his fifth victory against two defeats. He was touched for three runs in the first inning, two on Ed Kranepool's homer, before allowing only five hits over the last seven innings. Rookie Charlie Williams took the loss.

Lou Brock and Jose Cardenal hit eighth-inning home runs to break open a tie game and lead the Cardinals over Philadelphia. Brock opened the inning with his homer off Joe Hoerner and Cardenal hit his after Matty Alou doubled and Ted Sizemore walked.

Ron Hunt lashed four hits, including his first homer of the season in the first inning, to lift Montreal past the Astros. Bill Stoneman allowed only six hits to gain his third victory in four decisions.

Winning pitcher Jim Nash and Gil Garrido each singled in a run in the sixth inning of the second game to lead the Braves past San Diego. Al Severinsen, making his 16th relief appearance of the season, induced Henry Aaron to hit into an inning-ending double play to choke off a Braves' rally in the first game and enable the Padres to record only their seventh victory of the season.

Giants To Sign Two Japanese

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants announced Wednesday they will sign a pair of Japanese pitchers Thursday upon their arrival in town.

The pitchers, both of whom played for Japanese teams last year, will be signed to contracts with the Giants' Pacific Coast League Phoenix farm club.

Basketball

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Baltimore Bullets forward Gus Johnson had lateral cartilage removed from both knees Wednesday at Kernan Childrens' Hospital in Baltimore.

Team physician, Dr. Kenneth Spence, said the surgery was successful and said Johnson, 32, was in satisfactory condition after the 90-minute operation.

Golf

DALLAS (UPI)—Houston golfer Homero Blancas whipped—around the par-72 Preston Trail Golf Course in 65 Wednesday to win the pro-am division of the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Blancas, a former star at the University of Houston, will receive $500 for having the low round for the professionals.

Football

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel has cast his lot with the Los Angeles Rams for at least the next four years and possibly as long as he remains in the National Football League.

The star quarterback's decision to accept a four-year contract with the Rams instead of playing out his option was announced Wednesday by assistant general manager Johnny Sanders.

There had been fears in some quarters that Gabriel might play out his option and join the exodus of performers who followed deposed coach George Allen to the Washington Redskins.

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Chicago Bears owner George S. Halas said he gave a federal grand jury investigating the National Football League "a lot of information and some laughs" during his two hours of testimony.

Halas, 75, one of the founders of the NFL, testified Wednesday afternoon before the federal panel, which has been investigating possible anti-trust violations by the NFL since last November.

He said he is sure the NFL has done nothing illegl, because, if it had "I would have been the first to raise questions about it."

Horse Racing

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Good Behaving, an impressive winner in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Aqueduct, has been withdrawn from the Preakness.

Trainer John Campo, who also trains Jim French, the runnerup in this year's Kentucky Derby, said he decided to withdraw Good Behaving because "he doesn't run so good when shipped out of town."

Tennis

ROME (UPI)—Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe, both of whom struggled past lesser second round competition, led a four-man United States contingent into today's third round of the $50,000 Italian tennis championships.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Will Success Spoil Vida?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Will success spoil Vida Blue?

That's the only worry Oakland A's Manager Dick Williams has these days as Blue, a 21-year-old left-hander, continues to be the pitching sensation of the young baseball season.

"I'd like to keep him in a glass cage and just send him out when it's his turn," Williams smiled Wednesday night after Blue won his seventh straight to boost his record to 7-1 on a four-hitter as the A's downed Detroit 5-0.

When he was asked if Blue could face the pressure of his sudden success, Williams said, "I don't think he's going to have any problems. He's very intelligent and he's assumed his responsibilities without any problems. He's got a pretty good guy around him in Tommy Davis, who's been through all this himself."

But Blue has only just begun to cope with his new status as an instant celebrity and the pressure on the youngster will continue to mount if he keeps pitching this way.

"I knew I could win in the majors, but 7-1...?" he said. "I can't believe it. But I'll take 8-1 or 8-2 or even 8-8."

He added, "it's great to be compared to a Koufax or a McDowell but I just try to be Vida Blue."

Williams was asked how many games Blue will win and he said, "somebody just asked me that and I said how many starts does he have. I just hope he stays healthy and can pitch when it's his turn." Williams has been alternating Blue with three and four days rest.

Blue's statistics are somewhat staggering. He was knocked out on opening day in Washington but he's pitched seven straight complete games since including four shutouts. He leads the league with 69 strikeouts in 62 innings pitched and with a 1.02 ERA.

In the other games, Minnesota beat New York 5-3, Milwaukee edged Washington 43 and Kansas City topped Cleveland 4-2. The California at Baltimore and Boston at Chicago games were rained out.

Leo Cardenas drove in all five Minnesota runs—three with his first homer in the second inning—as the Twins beat New York. Jim Perry, 5-2, went 7 2-3 innings to get the victory and Stan Bahnsen lasted two innings while suffering the defeat.

A bases-loaded pinch single by Andy Kosco highlighted a rhubarb-filled seventh inning as Milwaukee edged Washington. The rhubarb started when Andy Kosco went to the at bat circle and Washington Manager Ted Williams switched pitchers. Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol then aruged he never actually sent Kosco in as a pinch-hitter and tried to put starter Johnny Briggs back into the game. Bristol was thrown out and Kosco made it all academic by driving in two runs to win the game.

Amos Otis hit a two-run homer in the four-run sixth inning as Kansas City beat slumping Cleveland. Dick Drago, 4-1, went 8 1-3 innings to get the victory and Steve Dunning took the loss.

20-Game Winner

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Bob Gibson, the 1970 National League Cy Young Award winner, has won 20 games five times during his career with the St. Louis Cardinals. Gibson's first try in professional sports was a tour with the Harlem Globetrotter Basketball Team.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

A Vote For Mid-Season All-Star Game

By DAVID EINSTEIN

This year two post season all-star baseball games will be played involving Marin County high school students, which brings up a good question. Why, when the major leagues stage their all-star game as a celebration of the season's halfway point, must high school wait until the season is over, including the shouting, to hold theirs?

The answer can be found in the archaic and hypocritical reasoning of the California Interscholastic Federation, which like Avery Brundage and the IOC means well but as often as not screws things up. In the area of all-star competition, the CIF demands that games be limited to the post season, during which time, because of an NCAA rule, only graduating seniors are eligible to play.

There is little doubt that, say, a mid season all-star game between the northern and southern teams of the Marin County Athletic League would pack Albert Park with more than 2,000 fans. And there would be tremendous advantages to such a game, for players, fans and the general public.

In the first place, it would give players who are doing well at mid year, including underclassmen (the only restriction on them is that they cannot play after the school year is over), a chance for all-star recognition. Those who continue to play well the rest of the way would also get the customary all-league nod at season's end.

Secondly, such a game would generate fan interest, an expecially important factor if one team is running away with the championship. And lastly, money raised from ticket sales could go to charity.

But there are grave objections by the authorities to all-star games. Phil Hempler, commissioner of the North Coast Section (NCS), says, "Neither the CIF nor the NCAA approve of all-star competition for which there would be no control whatsoever. There's so much all-star competition that could be set up around the country which would bring all-stars together during the school year."

Presumably, that refers to hypothetical situations such as Ford or some other large company sponsoring an All-American all-star game, in the same mold as the punt, pass and kick competition. That line of Quixotic thought seems more than a trifle absurd when you consider that your Little League son has the name of a town merchant on the back of his uniform. If that isn't promotion, what is?

The rules against underclassmen playing in post season games are just as specious. As a matter of fact, they are based on the same logic. As Hempler says, "It would be the type of thing that would be so completely open, thse outstanding boys would be used in promotions which the amateur rules just do not approve of.

To use Little League as the heavy once more, how can you restrict high school boys on the one hand, while allowing a Little League World Series on the other? Granted, the NCAA has nothing to do with the latter, but shouldn't the ethics involved be the same at all levels?

The fact is, most people — coaches, players and fans — would love to see an all-star game during the mid season lull. The problem is that so much red tape is involved in trying to get the rules changed, that by the time you reach the CIF, you forgot what you came for.

A major problem seems to be that the officers of the CIF, composed mostly of old-guard types, don't communicate well with coaches, who think of going up against them as something akin to talking to a wall. Al Endriss, Redwood's coach who was instrumental in organizing the upcoming MCAL vs. North Bay League all-star game, says, "I guess the CIF does a good job, but I really believe that they're always looking at the negative end of things. They think somebody's always going to use the kids for monetary reasons."

Endriss, who traditionally gives his team a break at mid season even though there is no game, cites as an example of the CIF's rigidity a situation that came up regarding the Marin-Sonoma contest. The original date for the game happened to be before San Rafael High's graduation ceremony, and because of that, the CIF said no dice. After a protracted and fruitless argument, Endriss moved the game back a week.

Marin Catholic coach Gary Hughes, who was responsible in large part for the first MCAL all-star game last year, says, "I would be for anything that would promote baseball, and I think an all-star game would. I'd like to see anything to get the people out to watch baseball, because baseball in this county is great."

Hughes also offers another innovation post season playoffs, which might go hand in hand with an all-star game.

"I think if you could get a mid season all-star game, then you should come back with a playoff system at the end," he says. Such a system would possibly involve the top four teams in the league, and would last a week or so.

The CIF, fortunately, has nothing against playoffs, but, once again, red tape has kept any proposals from getting off the ground. Like all-star games, playoffs have never gotten beyond the idea stage.

Hunting Threatened

KENTVILLE, N.S. (UPI)— Illegal moose slaughter has reached such proportions it could adversely affect the future of moose hunting in Nova Scotia, says Arthur Patton of the provincial Department of Lands and Forests. Patton said the legal kill last season was 308, compared with 318 the previous season but the illegal kill was much higher.

Most Host Gets 13th Career Win

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)— Seven-year-old Most Host went to the outside and passed favored Dizzy Babe entering the stretch Wednesday to win the $12,000 Sirs Purse by a length and a half at Golden Gate Fields.

It was the 13th victory for the gray gelding to run his lifetime earnings to $281,598. During his lengthy career, the son of My Host started 88 races and finished second 28 times and third six times.

Ridden by 56-year-old Mel Lewis, Most Host ranged up on the outside of Dizzy Babe at the head of the stretch and then drew out to pass Dizzy Babe.

Most Host covered the mile in 1.36 1-5 and paid $6.40, $2.80 and $2.40. Dizzy Babe returned $2.80 and $2.20 while Shakazu, the third-place finisher, paid $2.60.

Tar Stars Lead Loop Statistics

College of Marin baseball players lead the Camino Norte Conference in six of eight offensive catagories, according to statistics released yesterday.

Four of the top marks belong to the Tars' power hitting first baseman, Rafael Gallardo, while outfielder Larry Brazda leads the league in hitting with a .434 average. He, second baseman Mike Parnow and Brazda are all hitting above .300.

Gallardo's credentials include league leading figures in runs scored, 16; triples, 3; home runs, 4; and runs batted in, 16. He is hitting at a .314 clip.

Brazda all but has the hitting title sewed up as he leads the next best batter by .42 points. He also holds the top mark in total hits with 23, but teammate Parnow is close on his heels in that department. Parnow has 21 safeties in a league-leading 64 at bats, for a .328 average.

The only catagories where Marin players do not lead are doubles and stolen bases.

The Tars also have the league's two top pitchers, from the point of innings worked. Dennis Bueler has pitched 55 innings, and Gerry Goodrick 53 and one third. Bueler has the seventh best earned run average, 2.62.

FOUL LINE
STARTING POINT FOR PICKING 5-7
NORMAL 1ST BALL STARTING POINT.
5-6

There is only one way to pick up the 5-7 split. That is to roll to the right of the 5. Move slightly left on the alley and aim your ball to the right. Even if you're off a little and the 5 misses the 7, it may bounce off the sideboard and still be picked up.

MARIN-SONOMA GOLF

12 Area Players In Norcal Tourney

Last week's Division A record for entries in the Northern California Golf Association four ball stroke play tournament has been shattered by Division B, in which 216 two-man teams will compete today through Saturday at Spyglass Hill in Pebble Beach.

Twelve Marin and Sonoma County golfers are entered in the tourney, which drew 190 teams including 23 players from Marin for its A Division competition last week. Half the local players entered in the B Division event are from Marin Country Club in Novato: Richard Hunter, Frank King, Kelly Gearety, Emil Renati, Alex Kazakoff and Elwood Frink. Also entered are Terry Jarcik, Graham Young and Dallas Pack of Rohnert Park, Albert Hahn and Victor Regalia of Meadow Club in Fairfax, and Keeler Nash of Mill Valley.

In spring handicap finals, Mrs. William McVickers defeated Mrs. Rowe Waller for the Indian Valley crown, and Mrs. Fred Greenland shot a three-round net total of 189 to win the Mill Valley crown.

Decker Mowing 'Em Down

Former Marin County high school baseball stars now playing in the minor leagues are off to so-so starts this year, but Joe Decker, one time pitching wonder for Petaluma High in Sonoma County, is mowing them down in the Pacific Coast League.

John Dolinsek of Novato, the only ex-Marin player in AAA ball, is hitting .233 after two weeks with Oklahoma City of the American Association. Three of his 10 hits are home runs, however, and three more are doubles, which should please the Houston Astros, parent club of Oklahoma City.

Decker, now in Tacoma after spending much of last year with the Chicago Cubs, is leading the PCL with a 1.45 earned run average. For 31 innings of work he has a 2-0 record, with 33 strikeouts.

Early season reports on other Marin players in the minors; Tom Corder of Novato, playing for the Dodgers' class A Bakersfield farm team, went two for four in his first game of the season, one of his hits was a double. Another class A player, Dewey Forrey of Terra Linda, is off to a horrible start with the Dodgers' Daytona Beach, Fla, club. He has only two hits in 20 at bats.

On the AA level, Ken Johnson, former Redwood star, was hitting .286, with four hits in 14 trips.

GOODSTONE
TRIPLE 'S' TIRES
$30.00
$18.00
DeVito

Can an $18 tire REALLY be as good as a $30 tire?

At TRIPLE 'S' it can!

We buy all our tires in rail car lots directly from the big tire factories. Go out and unload the cars ourselves. Eliminates a bundle of overhead expenses.

If you've ever been in a TRIPLE 'S' store, you know it's clean. The people are friendly. BUT . . . it's not fancy and there aren't any big expensive fixtures for YOU to pay for.

So, quite honestly, at TRIPLE 'S', we CAN sell the same tire for $18 that you'd buy somewhere else for $30.

The tire we're featuring this week for $18 is a double belted premium quality tire made by one of the oldest tire manufacturers in the United States. It's a dual white-wall of the latest design. It's NOT a second. If you bought it with the manufacturer's name on it you'd have to pay $30. But our tire is called a Harvard . . . not a Goodyear or Firestone.

You've probably never heard of a Harvard tire. Quite frankly, neither had we until a couple of months ago. But, you'll know the manufacturer when we tell you who it is.

The Harvard tire is every bit as good as the tire that carries the manufacturer's name. But much less expensive. After all, you can't put costly TV advertising on your car. What you want is safety and, the most miles per dollar. That's exactly what we sell.

When you come and buy this tire for $18, we GUARANTEE it'll go 30,000 miles. We'll give you a written guarantee telling you exactly what we will do. And what we won't do. Give us a try.

Why spend $30 for an $18 tire?

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Key Canadian Oil Firm Has Appeal

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am thinking of investing in Pacific Petroleum for my children who will need the money in 6-10 years for college. Would appreciate your opinion. — H.H.

A. Pacific Petroleums, 48 per cent owned by Phillips Petroleum, is an attractive means of participating in one of Canada's most important industries. Company boasts an impressive record of past performance combined with the potential for above-average future gains. Pacific Pete's sales and earnings have continued to grow uninterrupted since 1961, moving up a total of 397 per cent and 1,043 per cent respectively.

Although the firm is involved in every phase of the petroleum business, its key area is natural gas. In fact, Pacific Pete's gas reserves exceed those of any other Canadian controlled concern.

Aggressive exploratory activity, rapid development of known productive areas, plus the spiraling demand for energy in the U.S. and Canada augur well for continued progress. Shares have long-term growth appeal.

Q. I own shares of Teledyne bought at about $53. What is your advice? — S.M.

A. Teledyne is a leading conglomerate (fiscal '70 sales of $1.2 billion) possessing a strong fundamental picture. Operations are largely electronics-oriented, but recent acquisitions, its majority interest in Continental Motors plus entry into insurance, has broadened the industrial base.

Sales declined 6.1 per cent in fiscal 1970. However, fully diluted earnings advanced 1.5 per cent to $1.91 per share. A generally rising earnings pattern, anticipated for the balance of 1971, plus renewed investor interest in conglomerate issues should aid further recovery. Hold.

Q. I bought 500 shares of EG&G at $25. Should I buy, hold or stand pat? — J.W.

A. In view of the massive government cutbacks experienced by EG&G, the company managed to turn in a creditable performance in 1970, earning 22 cents a share (versus a 33 cent deficit in fiscal 1969) on sales of $112 million.

The improved earnings, coupled with an attractive technical position as well as the realization that EG&G is successfully entering commercial markets has buoyed up the stock substantially in the past few weeks. Shares have speculative appeal; hold, but do not add to.

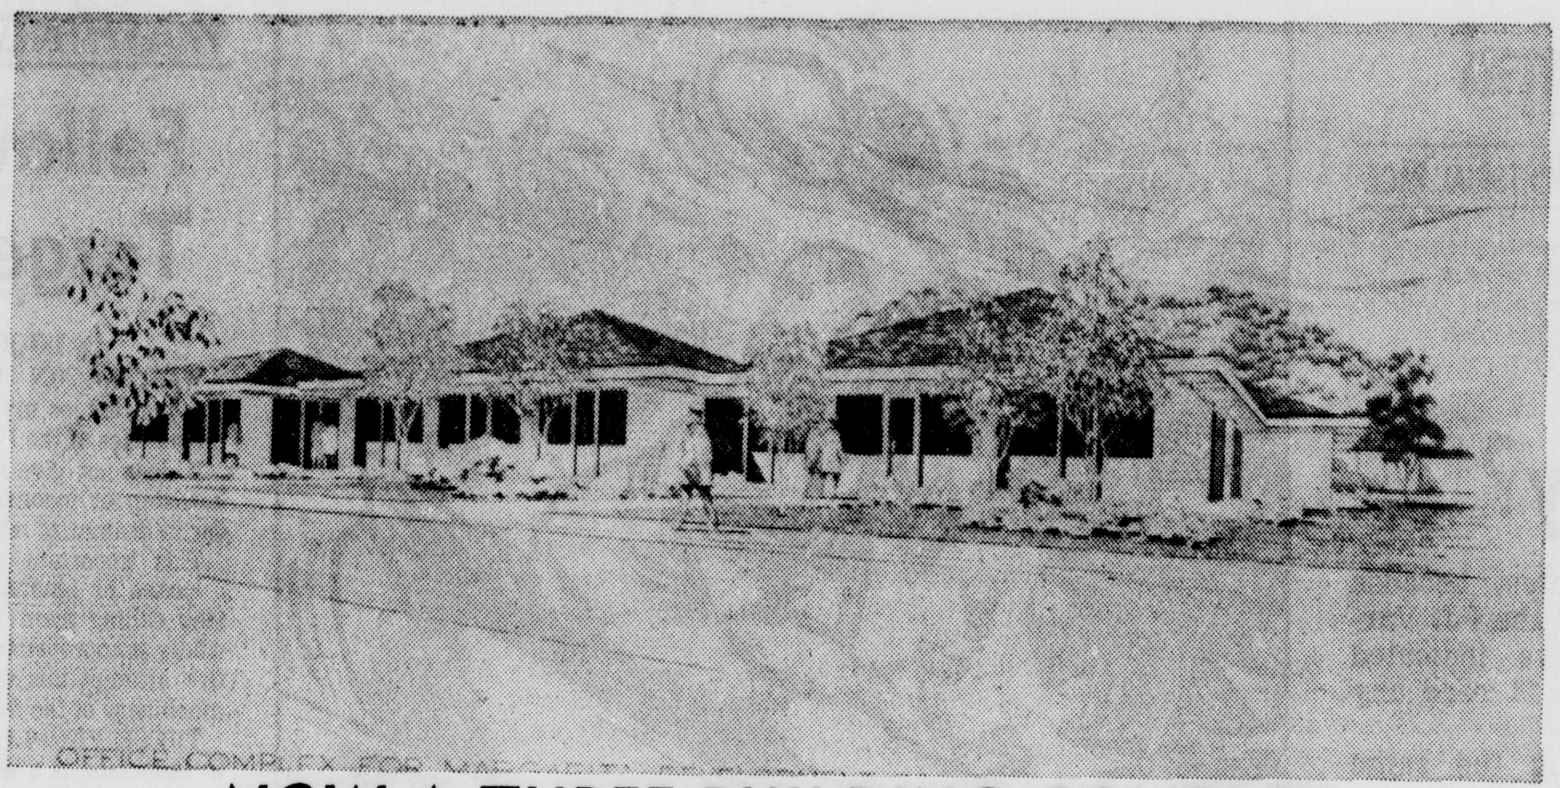
Pacific Far East Cuts Its Dividend

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., declared a 15-cent second quarter dividend Tuesday on its $5 common stock, a drop of 45 cents from the previous quarter.

President Leo. C. Ross said the decrease was necessary to conserve cash and improve cash flow.



NOW A THREE-BUILDING COMPLEX

A third building in Margarita Plaza at Northgate Industrial Park will be completed in August and expand this office complex to 30,000 square feet. Some of the present tenants will use the extra space to enlarge their offices. Leases are now being taken on the remainder of the 10,000 square foot addition. Dohemann and Co. is the developer.

U.S. Steel Hikes Prices On Sheet, Strip Steel

NEW YORK (UPI) —U.S. Steel Corp. Wednesday increased its prices for large volume steel sheet and strip products by $8.50 to $13 a ton, effective with shipments June 16 and July 1.

The increases, which U.S. Steel said averaged 6 1-4 per cent, affects products used by the auto, appliance and other industries.

The boosts generally had been expected because the steel industry has been boosting prices on most of its products this year as fast as the 12month price freeze guarantees attached to the 1970 price hike round expired.

In Washington, a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the price increases were "not particularly surprising" and the steel industry "apparently considers this their annual increase.'' He said a much greater worry to econmic planners is the possibility of further increases this year to offset higher wage costs.

The price boosts on flat rolled products are close to the level which the Nixon administration apparently found acceptable when construction steel products went up last March. One producer had posted increases of $16 to $17 per ton on construction steels, but later substituted increases of $9 to $12 per ton after U.S. Steel came in at that level.

The price freeze guarantee on most flat rolled steel products was due to expire June 1, but major producers extended it for 15 days, reportedly at the request of the auto makers to give them more time to lay in stocks at the old price.

Athough the steel industry is preparing to negotiate new wage pacts with the United Steelworkers of America to replace a contract expiring Aug. 1, steel industry officials have emphasized that the price boosts posted so far are a "catching-up" operation and are not designed to compensate for any additional wage cost increases they may incur.

Industry sources also have indicated that a second rouund of price boosts is possible in the second half of this year to compensate for any wage hike.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer, has calculated that, should the USW win a settlement like the three-year, 30 per cent-plus pact won from the can makers in March, it would have to boost its steel prices across the board by eight per cent a year for three years "just to stay even."

The price boosts posted by Big Steel Wednesday, which other producers are expected to follow include:

—A $9 a ton increase on hot rolled sheet and strip, effective June 16.

—An $8.50 a ton increase on hot rolled bands, effective June 16,

—$13 a ton increases on galvanized sheet, aluminum coated and long terne sheets, also effective June 16.

U.S. Steel said the products affected account for about a third of all steel industry shipments.

Steel producers this year already have increased prices for railroad steel products, steels used by the construction, shipbuilding and oil and gas industries, bar, rod and wire products.

Lockheed Dividend: Sixth Straight Cut

BURBANK, (BW) — The board of directors of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have voted to omit the dividend on common stock for the first quarter of 1971.

This is the sixth consecutive quarter in which no dividend has been issued.

Trading At Active Pace On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were mixed in fairly active trading through the first two hours today.

Although a normal amount of caution guided investors who had an eye on world monetary disturbances, it appeared to be more than matched by the general optimism about longterm prospects for both the stock market and the nation's economy.

In addition, one analyst noted that institutional traders still have funds to invest and apparently are doing so regardless of the current uncertainty.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones Industrial Average was ahead. Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index, however, was off 0.03 at 103.75. Advances and declines were running about even.

Prices also were mixed in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange of the 968 issues on the tape 374 pointed lower, while 305 advanced.

Among some early Big Board features were General Foods trading a block of 316,000 shares at 37 1-2, unchanged in a cross-transaction, and 129,700 shares traded at 25, down 1 1-4.

Less active but firm were Bausch & Lomb up 3, and Du Pont 2 1-2 higher. Up a point or more were U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, Louisville & Nashville Railroad, and IBM. Fairchild Camera gained around 2.

Motors, oils, airlines and aircrafts were fractionally mixed.

Brandt Rutledge

THE THIRD BUILDING of the Margarita Plaza office complex at the entrance of Northgate Industrial Park is now under construction by Herrero Bros. and is scheduled for completion early in August.

Like the other buildings, it will have 10,000 square feet of floor space and follow the same architectural styling. Dohemann and Co. is now taking leases.

Margarita Plaza now has 12 occupants, including an office of Dohemann, the developer. Some of the firms there plan on expanding their offices after the new building is completed.

Dohemann and Co., which has been headquartered in San Francisco for the past couple of years, has extended its real estate investment and syndication operations into other areas besides Marin. In addition to Margarita Plaza the company has purchased over $15 million of income producing real estate.

Recent projects are a joint venture with the government of Cyprus to develop agricultural land, two office buildings at the San Francisco International Airport and a 1,000-acre ranch on the Napa River planted in pears and grapes and also used for cattle.

W. JACK VAN DYKE of Novato has been appointed vice president of operations for San Francisco Life Insurance Co. Active in the insurance business for 20 years, he was vice president of operations at Pacific National Assurance Co. before joining San Francisco Life.

Silvestri Acciari

NOW CELEBRATING their 25th year as principals in Marin Products Co., Inc. are George Silvestri and Fred Acciari of San Rafael. Silvestri is presently recuperating at home from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile recently.

Plans are being made to expand the 200,000-cubic foot frozen food plant at Ignacio, both as a modernization move and to provide increased capacity.

WALTER PATRICK SMITH of San Rafael, general manager of the Northgate Mall, will attend the annual convention of the International Council of Shopping Centers in New York May 16-19.

ADVERTISING: Richard R. Rojas of Marinwood will serve as account executive and Stanford Raymond of Mill Valley will be creative director of the Topps and Trowsers retail chain account recently acquired by Ronald Wren Advertising, Inc. of San Francisco.

Northrup Buys Olson For Antismog Work

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Northrup Corporation announced Wednesday that it had acquired controlling interest in Olson Laboratories of Dearborn, Mich., for a total investment of $1 million.

A Northrup spokesman said that Olson will be working with Northrup's electro-mechanical division in Anaheim to study the feasibility and benefits of a vehicle emission inspection program as a means of reducing air pollution.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

A Vote For Mid-Season All-Star Game

By DAVID EINSTEIN

This year two post season all-star baseball games will be played involving Marin County high school students, which brings up a good question. Why, when the major leagues stage their all-star game as a celebration of the season's halfway point, must high school wait until the season is over, including the shouting, to hold theirs?

The answer can be found in the archaic and hypocritical reasoning of the California Interscholastic Federation, which like Avery Brundage and the IOC means well but as often as not screws things up. In the area of all-star competition, the CIF demands that games be limited to the post season, during which time, because of an NCAA rule, only graduating seniors are eligible to play.

There is little doubt that, say, a mid season all-star game between the northern and southern teams of the Marin County Athletic League would pack Albert Park with more than 2,000 fans. And there would be tremendous advantages to such a game, for players, fans and the general public.

In the first place, it would give players who are doing well at mid year, including underclassmen (the only restriction on them is that they cannot play after the school year is over), a chance for all-star recognition. Those who continue to play well the rest of the way would also get the customary all-league nod at season's end.

Secondly, such a game would generate fan interest, an expecially important factor if one team is running away with the championship. And lastly, money raised from ticket sales could go to charity.

But there are grave objections by the authorities to all-star games. Phil Hempler, commissioner of the North Coast Section (NCS), says, "Neither the CIF nor the NCAA approve of all-star competition for which there would be no control whatsoever. There's so much all-star competition that could be set up around the country which would bring all-stars together during the school year."

Presumably, that refers to hypothetical situations such as Ford or some other large company sponsoring an All-American all-star game, in the same mold as the punt, pass and kick competition. That line of Quixotic thought seems more than a trifle absurd when you consider that your Little League son has the name of a town merchant on the back of his uniform. If that isn't promotion, what is?

The rules against underclassmen playing in post season games are just as specious. As a matter of fact, they are based on the same logic. As Hempler says, "It would be the type of thing that would be so completely open, thse outstanding boys would be used in promotions which the amateur rules just do not approve of.

To use Little League as the heavy once more, how can you restrict high school boys on the one hand, while allowing a Little League World Series on the other? Granted, the NCAA has nothing to do with the latter, but shouldn't the ethics involved be the same at all levels?

The fact is, most people — coaches, players and fans — would love to see an all-star game during the mid season lull. The problem is that so much red tape is involved in trying to get the rules changed, that by the time you reach the CIF, you forgot what you came for.

A major problem seems to be that the officers of the CIF, composed mostly of old-guard types, don't communicate well with coaches, who think of going up against them as something akin to talking to a wall. Al Endriss, Redwood's coach who was instrumental in organizing the upcoming MCAL vs. North Bay League all-star game, says, "I guess the CIF does a good job, but I really believe that they're always looking at the negative end of things. They think somebody's always going to use the kids for monetary reasons."

Endriss, who traditionally gives his team a break at mid season even though there is no game, cites as an example of the CIF's rigidity a situation that came up regarding the Marin-Sonoma contest. The original date for the game happened to be before San Rafael High's graduation ceremony, and because of that, the CIF said no dice. After a protracted and fruitless argument, Endriss moved the game back a week.

Marin Catholic coach Gary Hughes, who was responsible in large part for the first MCAL all-star game last year, says, "I would be for anything that would promote baseball, and I think an all-star game would. I'd like to see anything to get the people out to watch baseball, because baseball in this county is great."

Hughes also offers another innovation post season playoffs, which might go hand in hand with an all-star game.

"I think if you could get a mid season all-star game, then you should come back with a playoff system at the end," he says. Such a system would possibly involve the top four teams in the league, and would last a week or so.

The CIF, fortunately, has nothing against playoffs, but, once again, red tape has kept any proposals from getting off the ground. Like all-star games, playoffs have never gotten beyond the idea stage.

Most Host Gets 13th Career Win

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)— Seven-year-old Most Host went to the outside and passed favored Dizzy Babe entering the stretch Wednesday to win the $12,000 Sirs Purse by a length and a half at Golden Gate Fields.

It was the 13th victory for the gray gelding to run his lifetime earnings to $281,598. During his lengthy career, the son of My Host started 88 races and finished second 28 times and third six times.

Ridden by 56-year-old Mel Lewis, Most Host ranged up on the outside of Dizzy Babe at the head of the stretch and then drew out to pass Dizzy Babe.

Most Host covered the mile in 1.36 1-5 and paid $6.40, $2.80 and $2.40. Dizzy Babe returned $2.80 and $2.20 while Shakazu, the third-place finisher, paid $2.60.

Hunting Threatened

KENTVILLE, N.S. (UPI)— Illegal moose slaughter has reached such proportions it could adversely affect the future of moose hunting in Nova Scotia, says Arthur Patton of the provincial Department of Lands and Forests. Patton said the legal kill last season was 308, compared with 318 the previous season but the illegal kill was much higher.

What Is It That Youth Has To Say?

Over and over again, we are told that youth has something to say, and adulthood must listen.

Wherever the youth revolution, generation gap, or whatever you wish to call it is discussed, this advice pops up: Listen to what youth has to tell you! Often it is accompanied by the assurance that "you'd be surprised" at the excellent ideas of youth.

This same theme has occurred repeatedly in letters to the Independent-Journal's "rap session" contest. But almost without exception, it has been in letters from those over 30 — the generations that, according to the Tom Haydens of the youth revolution, are not to be trusted.

FEW OF THE YOUNG people under 21 have even submitted letters. And those letters received have suggested "establishment-type" approaches to bridging the so-called generation gap: Community "rap sessions," publicity for youth activities, including young people in decision-making bodies.

These are scarcely new ideas. Getting together to "rap" has certainly been tried repeatedly. Newspapers, radio stations and other media have been going out of their way to publicize youth activities for as long as we can remember. Putting young people on decision-making bodies is a newer approach, but so far has not appeared to make a lot of difference.

It may be, of course, that the I-J's "rap letter contest" is not a fair gauge. It may be that few under 21 have written their ideas to the contest because few under 21 read the I-J. Various surveys have indicated that few under 21 read any newspaper.

However, during the same period we have heard from high school students in the dispute over disqualification of a Redwood High School track team member, which escalated into resignations of a couple of the track coaches. On matters that closely concern them, it seems, young people write letters to the editor and state their feelings quite plainly.

WE ARE LEFT wondering how much truth there is to the often-heard admonition that we must listen to youth to receive its pearls of wisdom.

Does youth really have something to say — something, that is, beyond shouted generalities such as "Nixon is a hawk," "the war is immoral," or "do your own thing"?

We know that a lot of people do have something to say, for we've heard them say it. But generally it has turned out to be not so very different from what their elders are saying, or at least thinking.

COULD IT BE that the generation gap, like some other things, really is an invention of spotlight-hungry people who find satisfaction to their egos by setting up a din for any "cause" that appears likely to attract a following?

Maybe further letters in the "rap" contest — which runs until May 24 — will prove otherwise. Maybe the youth revolution really has more substance than sound.

We're listening.

CAPITOL REPORT

Sharp Increase In Abortions Spurs Attempt To Change Law

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Since Nov. 8, 1967, there have been approximately 90,000 murders in California. Wilfull, premeditated murders. But no one was indicted. No one stands convicted. The murders were legal.

Furthermore, it is predicted that during 1971 there will be another 116,000 murders. These, too, will be legal. The law says they are.

They are not called murder. They are called abortions. The purposeful, clinical termination of a pregnancy. Termination of a life. What one cannot do with a gun, or a switch blade or a club, the law allows with a suction tube or a 10-inch currette.

ALL OF THIS CAME with the passage of the California Therapeutic Abortion Act.

Under certain situations — such as rape, or incest, or when the life of the woman might be lost if pregnancy went the full term — in these cases, there is a strong argument for abortion.

But liberalized abortion laws which permit abortions on request? This mocks the sanctity of human life.

Perhaps it's all a part of liberating women. Liberating them from the responsibilities of their deeds — or, misdeeds. Now you can have the sizzle. Without the steak.

AT THE TIME the bill was being debated, proponents argued it would not result in any great increase in abortions. It's main purpose, they claimed, was to permit those who were then seeking illegal abortions to have abortions in medically approved and sterile conditions.

Here is the record, so far: 1968 — 5,000 legal abortions; 1969 — 15,000; 1970 — 70,000; 1971 — (est.) 116,000.

For 1970 the State Department of Public Health reported that 99 per cent were for reason of rape or incest or because full-term pregnancy would gravely impair the physical health of the woman.

In 98 per cent of the cases, the reason for the abortion was listed as "mental health." There are those who feel that it is too easy to get away with the "mental health" bit; that "mental health" is to abortions as "mental cruelty" is to divorce — a quick and easy way out of a mistake. And so a life is taken. Legally.

There were more abortions than births in the age group 15 to 19. And, more than one-third of all abortions were paid for by the taxpayer — through Medi-Cal.

AN INCREASING number of Californians are upset about all of this.

One of these is Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach. Burke recently introduced a series of bills which would tighten provisions of the 1967 law.

Among other things, Burke's bill would:

— prohibit abortions after the 10th week of pregnancy

— allow mental health as a bonafide reason only if the woman had been receiving psychiatric treatment prior to her pregnancy.

He also has introduced a resolution calling for a study of abortion practices since the 1967 law went into effect.

Already Burke has been treated to a storm of virulent and organized opposition. Which is not so strange in this strange day and age.

TODAY ONLY NATURAL law protects the unborn child. And in a society where legalese is often a substitute for morality, natural law is lost in a haze of permissiveness, irresponsibility and mixed-up values.

Ecology. That's the big thing today. Save the trees and fish, the birds and bees. For future generations.

And, those future generations? Those who would inherit the earth — with the trees and birds and bees. They are disposable. In the bottom of a surgical bucket.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Council Will Cut Its Salary — Naturally

When the Fairfax City Council voted themselves a salary a few years ago, the rationale was that they deserved it was they had to take over the duties of the departed city administrator.

Now that we have a new administrator, the council will naturally vote to forego this money. That is, they will if they have any political sense at all for this will be a beautiful campaign issue next time if they don't.

Remembering Youth Includes No 'Gap'

After reading Edgar N. Jacobs ("Readers Say," April 29) I feel that I should speak my piece. Fifty years ago I came to America. I could not speak the American language. My mother and father never learned to talk very good but we had a Swedish newspaper and the Minneapolis Tribune, which of course was American, in the house. We had one language outside of our home and that was English, and no special law to teach the land from where we came.

We got by somehow, dad carried cement blocks for 10 hours for $1.75 per day, too tired to raise hell and so we got by till dad got a better job. I sold papers for two cents and was happy. Never went to college, learned to break windows without going to college, but when I did dad made it hard for me to sit down. Dad was not a person to lie, never said it hurt him more than me and he could sit down.

How we have changed! In 1916 I took my sister's hand to cross the street in Kenmare, North Dakota, after being away for some years in Canada and Alaska. There was no traffic, but wouldn't you take your sister's hand to cross the street? She was only 14 years old.

Perhaps us old guys are stupid but . . . I wonder how long since Mr. Jacobs took his sister's hand and helped her across the street?

Official Report Bears Out No Arson

Time is supposed to heal all wounds, but judging from the Independent-Journal headline "Arson Suspected in UCSC Blaze" on April 8, I think we can expect at the very least a long-lived scar.

Actually, there was no arson involved in the fire, a fact verified in the official fire investigation report just released. It details the findings of the state fire marshal's office, as well as the exhaustive detection work involved . . .

In view of the alarming nature of the original fire stories, we would greatly appreciate an editorial comment on the final outcome of the investigation.

The initial report from Santa Cruz said arson was suspected. Result of the investigation was reported in the Independent-Journal of April 13 under the headline, "No Arson in UC Santa Cruz Blaze." — Editor.)

Some Things More Important Than Trial

To many of us here in Mill Valley, a new fire station and sewers are a lot more important than the Davis trial. Isn't there some way that this Davis can have a more economic day in court?

It might make for an interesting editorial to show the actual dollar costs for a person owning a $30,000 home in Marin County to conduct this trial and for the additional security requirements.

Welfare Destroying American Society

Public welfare is the greatest failure of modern liberalism. Welfare has become a cancer that is slowly eating away the foundations of our American way of life. The greed of those who receive welfare is destroying their will to work. The productive, who provide the money for welfare, are being drowned in a sea of debt engendered by inflation and high taxes. The liberal apologists, who created welfare, are being liquidated along with the rest in compliance with a secret death wish to atone for some imagined guilt that lies buried in the depths of their subconscious minds.

Unless we stem the flow of this torrential flood the greatest experiment in human liberty and self-government in the history of man will cease to exist. To be constructive any program must recognize that the purpose of welfare is to eliminate welfare. It must revive the will to work among the economically disabled. It must build their characters as well as feed their bodies. This means that the state must provide a job for all the ablebodied people who receive welfare benefits.

If freedom lives, this will encourage them to seek a job they choose to do rather than to accept a job they are forced to do. Job opportunities are always available to anyone who is willing to persevere in their search to find them. You must never forget that America is the land of the "second chance." If you fail you don't give up, you start all over again. If you win you don't stop trying, you start all over again. This is the rythmn of America. If it is ever broken, the heart of America will cease to beat.

Objections To Plan For School Properties

Your editorial of April 28 (Reed District Eyes An Old Revenue Plan) requires some clarification. The proposal for constructing condominiums on unused school property may have some merit as a concept. However, if you are proposing this for the Reed District, the taxpayers of the district deserve an explanation of the problems involved which you passed over as "some objections."

The properties are zoned by the City of Tiburon for single-family, one-acre sites. The possibility of the planning commission and the city council approving a rezoning request for condominiums defies my imagination.

Although there is no immediate requirement for schools at these sites, it is shortsighted to commit them to another use. The current population of the district is approximately half of its potential and additional schools will be necessary in the future. Appropriate sites were difficult to find at the time these were purchased. Even if acceptable alternate sites are available in the future, the cost of same is certain to exceed the profit from this proposal . . .

The North Central site is also an important part of the Tiburon Open Sapce Plan. Considerable effort is being expended to preserve the Tiburon Ridge, and a condominium project would do much to negate these efforts.

Mr. Noble is to be commended for his interest in reducing the tax burden. However, I feel that this proposal is neither feasible nor in the best interest of the community.

Party-Goers Should Disqualify Selves

As a former member of the Fairfax Planning Commission, I was distressed to read (I-J, May 1) of the promotional party staged by Kaiser-Aetna to tout its interesting in developing the Town and Country Club property, prior to submission of any plans to the Fairfax Planning Commission.

It would appear that any future decision rendered by those city officials in attendance at the party would be subject to question. And further, those city fathers who have accepted campaign assistance from the owner of the property Kaiser-Aetna is considering developing, would be doubly suspect.

Should this project eventually come before any of these gentlemen for consideration, I would hope that they have the integrity to disqualify themselves from voting on that issue.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Fellow Citizens Real Targets Of Dissidents

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Constitution guarantees my right to dissent from the policies of the U. S. government.

It does not give me the right to inflict hardship or inconvenience on you in order to dramatize my discontent.

This important distinction was overlooked or ignored by the people (let's stop calling them "kids" — the term is wildly inappropriate) who made an abortive attempt this week to shut down the machinery of the federal government.

THESE PEOPLE believe that the war in Indochina is a wicked waste of human life. That is a perfectly legitimate point of view. It is shared, according to the latest public opinion polls, by a clear majority of Americans.

They also feel—with reason— that President Nixon has been unresponsive, and even openly contemptuous, of peaceful demonstrations of opposition to the war.

So, they say, the time has come to resort to direct action to disrupt the functioning of the government and compel it to halt the war.

It is this third step in their logic which calls for careful consideration.

THERE CERTAINLY may be circumstances in which moral duty may drive a person to take hostile action against his government. Our forefathers felt that such circumstances existed in 1776, and most of us would be highly sympathetic with any Russian, Czech, Pole or mainland Chinese who felt that such circumstances exist in his country today.

But let us be very clear on the point: any deliberate attempt to disrupt the functioning of a government, for whatever motive, is by definition an act of revolution. To argue that the U. S. government should be disrupted is exactly tantamount to saying that its authority is illegitimate and should be overthrown. Undoubtedly, many of the disruptionists who assembled in Washington this week are prepared to make just that argument. But when they do, they part company with the vast majority of Americans who are opposed to the Vietnam war.

THE WAR IN VIETNAM may be a disastrous mistake, but it would be a far greater disaster to undermine, paralyze or overthrow a system of government which, for all its defects, remains the best guarantor of social order and human freedom man ever has been ablt to devise.

Of course, there was never any real danger that this raggledy-taggledy band of bluejeaned protesters would overthrow or seriously disrupt the U.S. government. The one thing they could and did accomplish was to inflict a lot of harassment, inconvenience and some real hardship on individuals who live in Washington and have to go on getting to work and making a living even when the streets are filled with trash cans and tear gas.

So their real target, in the end, was not the war, or the government, or the Nixon administration, but their fellow citizens —many of whom disapprove of the war as strongly as they.

It seems a poor way to make your point.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

'Two Chinas' Policy Doomed While Chiang And Mao Live

By ARNOLD DIBBLE

HONG KONG (UPI)—There is one thing that the Republic of China (Taipei) and the Peoples Republic of China (Peking) agree upon 100 per cent—Taiwan is an integral part of China.

Also Tibet and areas under dispute with the Soviet Union.

But which China? The China of President Chiang Kai-shek of the Republic of China or the China of Chairman Mao Tsetung of the Peoples Republic of China?

There's the rub.

IT IS CLEAR that the United States is moving closer to some accommodation with the Communist regime now ruling the 700-million people on the mainland of China.

The Henry Cabot Lodge commission has recommended the admission of Red China to the United Nations and the State Department has suggested that the question of Taiwan might be settled by negotiating between Chiang's government and the Communist Peoples Republic of China.

At the same time, the United States has said time and again it has no intention of reneging on its treaty commitments to defend Chiang's government against "aggression" nor its support of the Taiwan regime.

SO LONG AS Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tse-tung are alive, the two-China policy stands almost no chance, Both leaders have said they will not join or remain in the United Nations so long as the other is recognized.

If anything, Red China is more intransigent than Chiang's Republic of China where winds of change are whispering through the membership of the ruling Kuomingtang Party and the halls of the various Yuans which form the legislative branch of the Taiwan government.

Up to now, Taiwan has broken diplomatic relations and sent its ambassadors packing by the first available plane as soon as any nation recognized Red China, although the Nationalists have left a trade mission in Italy.

But recently, according to advices from Taiwan, a growing number of Kuomingtang Party members are agitating for more flexibility. There is no indication that the 84-year-old Chiang is bending before this agitation.

WITH THE DEATHS of Chiang and Mao there are bound to be changes. There have been recurrent reports — always emphatically denied — that Chaing's son and heir apparent, Chiang Ching-Kuo, is more receptive to negotiations than his father.

One thing is certain, the new generation of mainland Chinese and Taiwanese on Taiwan want more than anything else to be left alone.

The ultimate settlement may well be an independent Taiwan backed by big-power guarantees. But it won't come tomorrow.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Key Canadian Oil Firm Has Appeal

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am thinking of investing in Pacific Petroleum for my children who will need the money in 6-10 years for college. Would appreciate your opinion. — H.H.

A. Pacific Petroleums, 48 per cent owned by Phillips Petroleum, is an attractive means of participating in one of Canada's most important industries. Company boasts an impressive record of past performance combined with the potential for above-average future gains. Pacific Pete's sales and earnings have continued to grow uninterrupted since 1961, moving up a total of 397 per cent and 1,043 per cent respectively.

Although the firm is involved in every phase of the petroleum business, its key area is natural gas. In fact, Pacific Pete's gas reserves exceed those of any other Canadian controlled concern.

Aggressive exploratory activity, rapid development of known productive areas, plus the spiraling demand for energy in the U.S. and Canada augur well for continued progress. Shares have long-term growth appeal.

Q. I own shares of Teledyne bought at about $53. What is your advice? — S.M.

A. Teledyne is a leading conglomerate (fiscal '70 sales of $1.2 billion) possessing a strong fundamental picture. Operations are largely electronics-oriented, but recent acquisitions, its majority interest in Continental Motors plus entry into insurance, has broadened the industrial base.

Sales declined 6.1 per cent in fiscal 1970. However, fully diluted earnings advanced 1.5 per cent to $1.91 per share. A generally rising earnings pattern, anticipated for the balance of 1971, plus renewed investor interest in conglomerate issues should aid further recovery. Hold.

Q. I bought 500 shares of EG&G at $25. Should I buy, hold or stand pat? — J.W.

A. In view of the massive government cutbacks experienced by EG&G, the company managed to turn in a creditable performance in 1970, earning 22 cents a share (versus a 33 cent deficit in fiscal 1969) on sales of $112 million.

The improved earnings, coupled with an attractive technical position as well as the realization that EG&G is successfully entering commercial markets has buoyed up the stock substantially in the past few weeks. Shares have speculative appeal; hold, but do not add to.

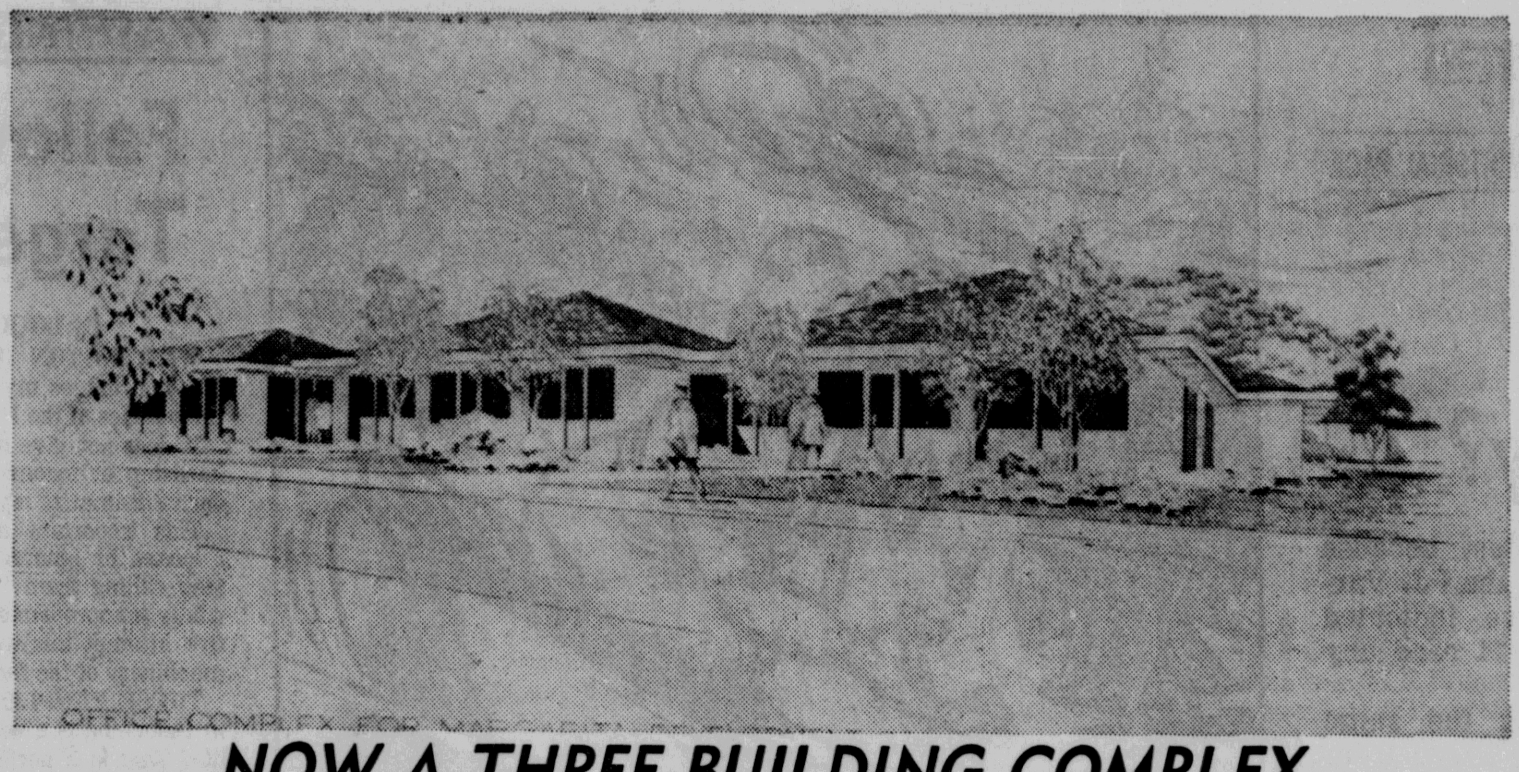
Pacific Far East Cuts Its Dividend

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., declared a 15-cent second quarter dividend Tuesday on its $5 common stock, a drop of 45 cents from the previous quarter.

President Leo. C. Ross said the decrease was necessary to conserve cash and improve cash flow.



NOW A THREE-BUILDING COMPLEX

A third building in Margarita Plaza at Northgate Industrial Park will be completed in August and expand this office complex to 30,000 square feet. Some of the present tenants will use the extra space to enlarge their offices. Leases are now being taken on the remainder of the 10,000 square foot addition. Dohemann and Co. is the developer.

U.S. Steel Hikes Prices On Sheet, Strip Steel

NEW YORK (UPI) —U.S. Steel Corp. Wednesday increased its prices for large volume steel sheet and strip products by $8.50 to $13 a ton, effective with shipments June 16 and July 1.

The increases, which U.S. Steel said averaged 6 1-4 per cent, affects products used by the auto, appliance and other industries.

The boosts generally had been expected because the steel industry has been boosting prices on most of its products this year as fast as the 12month price freeze guarantees attached to the 1970 price hike round expired.

In Washington, a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the price increases were "not particularly surprising" and the steel industry "apparently considers this their annual increase." He said a much greater worry to econmic planners is the possibility of further increases this year to offset higher wage costs.

The price boosts on flat rolled products are close to the level which the Nixon administration apparently found acceptable when construction steel products went up last March. One producer had posted increases of $16 to $17 per ton on construction steels, but later substituted increases of $9 to $12 per ton after U.S. Steel came in at that level.

The price freeze guarantee on most flat rolled steel products was due to expire June 1, but major producers extended it for 15 days, reportedly at the request of the auto makers to give them more time to lay in stocks at the old price.

Athough the steel industry is preparing to negotiate new wage pacts with the United Steelworkers of America to replace a contract expiring Aug. 1, steel industry officials have emphasized that the price boosts posted so far are a "catching-up" operation and are not designed to compensate for any additional wage cost increases they may incur.

Industry sources also have indicated that a second rouund of price boosts is possible in the second half of this year to compensate for any wage hike.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer, has calculated that, should the USW win a settlement like the three-year, 30 per cent-plus pact won from the can makers in March, it would have to boost its steel prices across the board by eight per cent a year for three years "just to stay even."

The price boosts posted by Big Steel Wednesday, which other producers are expected to follow include:

—A $9 a ton increase on hot rolled sheet and strip, effective June 16.

—An $8.50 a ton increase on hot rolled bands, effective June 16,

—$13 a ton increases on galvanized sheet, aluminum coated and long terne sheets, also effective June 16.

—A $13 a ton increase on cold rolled sheet, effective July 1.

U.S. Steel said the products affected account for about a third of all steel industry shipments.

Steel producers this year already have increased prices for railroad steel products, steels used by the construction, shipbuilding and oil and gas industries, bar, rod and wire products.

Lockheed Dividend: Sixth Straight Cut

BURBANK, (BW) — The board of directors of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have voted to omit the dividend on common stock for the first quarter of 1971.

This is the sixth consecutive quarter in which no dividend has been issued.

Trading At Active Pace On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were mixed in fairly active trading through the first two hours today.

Although a normal amount of caution guided investors who had an eye on world monetary disturbances, it appeared to be more than matched by the general optimism about longterm prospects for both the stock market and the nation's economy.

In addition, one analyst noted that institutional traders still have funds to invest and apparently are doing so regardless of the current uncertainty.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones Industrial Average was ahead. Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index, however, was off 0.03 at 103.75. Advances and declines were running about even.

Prices also were mixed in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange of the 968 issues on the tape 374 pointed lower, while 305 advanced.

Among some early Big Board features were General Foods trading a block of 316,000 shares at 37 1-2, unchanged in a cross-transaction, and 129,700 shares traded at 25, down 1 1-4.

Less active but firm were Bausch & Lomb up 3, and Du Pont 2 1-2 higher. Up a point or more were U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, Louisville & Nashville Railroad, and IBM. Fairchild Camera gained around 2.

Motors, oils, airlines and aircrafts were fractionally mixed.

UAL'S Quarter Losses Down

OAKLAND (BW) — Universal Airlines has reported a loss of $754,000, or 38 cents per share, for the quarter ended March 31, compared to a loss of $858,000, or 44 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1970.

Total revenues for the quarter were $9,840,000, compared to $9,964,000 in the first quarter of 1970.

Commercial revenues increased 20 per cent in the first quarter over the same 1970 period reflecting increased cargo charter business.

THE THIRD BUILDING of the Margarita Plaza office complex at the entrance of Northgate Industrial Park is now under construction by Herrero Bros. and is scheduled for completion early in August.

Like the other buildings, it will have 10,000 square feet of floor space and follow the same architectural styling. Dohemann and Co. is now taking leases.

Margarita Plaza now has 12 occupants, including an office of Dohemann, the developer. Some of the firms there plan on expanding their offices after the new building is completed.

Dohemann and Co., which has been headquartered in San Francisco for the past couple of years, has extended its real estate investment and syndication operations into other areas besides Marin. In addition to Margarita Plaza the company has purchased over $15 million of income producing real estate.

Recent projects are a joint venture with the government of Cyprus to develop agricultural land, two office buildings at the San Francisco International Airport and a 1,000-acre ranch on the Napa River planted in pears and grapes and also used for cattle.

W. JACK VAN DYKE of Novato has been appointed vice president of operations for San Francisco Life Insurance Co. Active in the insurance business for 20 years, he was vice president of operations at Pacific National Assurance Co. before joining San Francisco Life.

Just Break The News To Mother: There's No New Car This Year

Down with Mother's Day — or at least the commercial rape of it!

Gone are the days when a bouquet of daisies or a pan of homemade fudge would put a sparkle in mother's eye. No more does a "Let me help you, mother," mean anything.

Instead, money-hungry promoters spouting, "Tell Mother you love her with . . . " (choose one: flowers, candy, lingerie, a trip to Hawaii, dinner out, clothing, a new car, a fur coat, ad infinitum), urge children of all ages to express love for mother in terms of dollars and cents. However, since the majority of people love more than they can afford, it can be a most frustrating experience.

BUT WORSE than that. This corruption has spread to mother herself! That formerly sweet angel-on-a-pedestal has come to expect — yes, expect —such lavish treatment.

Mother would never be so crass as to look at, or even guess, the price tag of a present, but how can she feel pleased with your selection when her own sister announces dramatically, "The kids are giving me a new car — one of those cute little foreign models — for Mother's Day."? Guaranteed to make your gift (you saved for weeks to buy her a friendly pedigree poodle) dwindle in stature.

Advertisements and store displays, gently nudging you to "remember mother," hit you between the eyes almost before the multi-colored plastic Easter eggs are packed away.

ONE OF THE LARGEST promoters is the greeting card industry, which has available Mother's Day cards for fathers, husbands, expectant women, grandmothers, aunts, wives, sisters, nieces, daughters, granddaughters, friends and, of all things, mothers!

So, aside from selecting that just-right gift once every 12 months, a perfect card also must be chosen. And Mother's Day cards can be funny, sentimental, loving, sweet, romantic, friendly, across-the-miles or plain and simple.

Depending on what you call her, cards can be purchased to mom, ma, mother, mommy, mummy, mum and momma. Really. With such a wide choice, it's difficult to select "the" right card. (Actually panic sets in when you can't quite remember just what you do call her.)

CHILDREN, EAGER to make mother happy, strive for perfection — even if it's a simple breakfast-in-bed. Mother, of course, must eat all of everything: even though the eggs are not cooked, the bacon is burnt, the toast is cold, the juice is warm, and coffee is boiled.

And, facing her in the kitchen is a monumental mess that will keep her busy the rest of "Her Day."

But it's the thought that counts, so mother grins and bears it.

Why should so many people suffer so much when a simple hug and a kiss with a whispered, "I love you," will do the trick?

Know what I'm tucking inside my mother's card Sunday? You guessed it. This column.

Innocent Plea To Stolen Money Clip

A 19-yaar-old Petaluma youth has pleaded innocent in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to a charge of possessing a money clip that had been stolen in a residential burglary.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon set a June 17 jury trial for Andres M. Sandoval of 102 Sixth Street. Sandoval was arrested April 19 in Petaluma.

Decorating Tips From The Staff of
CASA MARIN

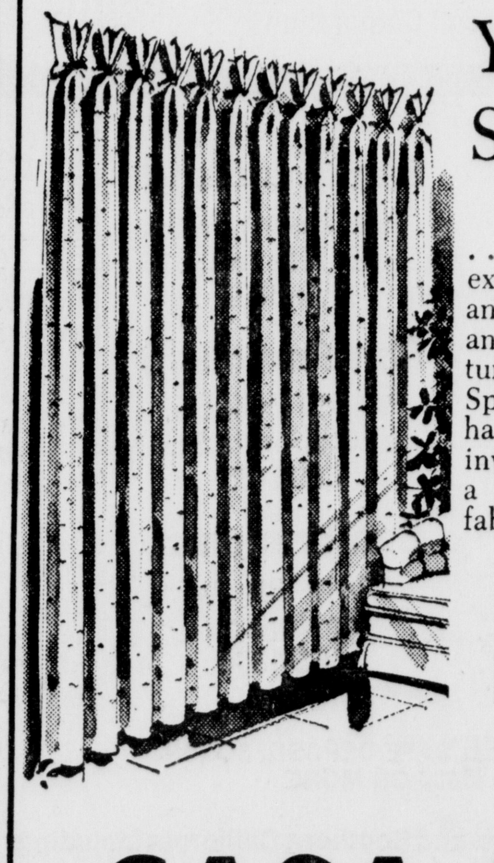
Many of today's smart architectural plans embrace great expanses of glass. This, of course, fulfills our craving for making the outdoor part of our interior design.

The treatment of glass wall and/or sliding doors often dictates the decorative scheme for the entire room. It is a wonderful springboard for color planning and affords an opportunity to give dash to any type of room.

In many instances interior designers start with window areas to set the color decorating scheme of an entire room. Properly selected colors that reflect the mood of the room and the personality of its occupants are carried out in shades and tones of wall covering and carpet, not to speak of upholstered cover selections and even the new bright colors of wood accent pieces.

Thus rooms are given a look of luxury, of serenity, or gaiety, or friendly warmth, simply through proper selections of materials and colors in custom made draperies.

Come in . . . browse at Casa Marin for ideas as well as fine home furnishings.



Your Brand New Spring Windows

. . . can be "just right" to correlate exactly with your other furnishings and colors when they are measured and made up by Casa Marin Furniture drapery experts. Many new Spring fabric selections are now on hand in over 200 radiant hues. We invite you to come in and visit where a staff member can advise you in fabric and color selection.

ART BUCHWALD

Anyway, The Press Tried To Help The Administration

WASHINGTON— No matter how hard we try, the press can't do anything right as far as the Nixon administration is concerned.

I am happy to report that the attacks of President Nixon, Spiro Agnew and John Mitchell have not fallen on deaf ears. A sincere group of journalists and TV commentators have formed an Ad Hoc Committee to Make the News More Palatable to the Administration.

The first meeting was held last week in the Georgetown basement of a famous cartoonist.

"GENTLEMEN," a syndicated columinst said, "The administration is fed up with the way the nation's media are reporting the news. It is our duty as Americans to change our ways."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

"Are there any suggestions?"

"How about coming out for Judge Carswell?" someone said.

"It's too late unless there is a new opening on the Supreme Court," an editorial writer replied.

"What about refusing to report the unemployment figures in the United States?"

"That would please the administration," a White House corrrespondent said.

"HOW ABOUT PULLING all our correspondents out of Indochina and accepting only the word of the Pentagon briefers?"

"It's a step in the right direction," a TV correspondent agreed.

"It isn't enough," a columnist said. "This administration deserves more than a few bones."

"I've got it," suggested a reporter. "Suppose we agree every week to turn over all our notebooks and films and radio tapes to the Justice Department?"

An editor said, "John Mitchell would like that."

"And suppose we make an agreement not to report any news from Red China without clearing it with Spiro Agnew?"

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

A WOMAN REPORTER said, "What about putting an embargo on all news about anti-Vietnam demonstrations?"

"Or demonstrations of any kind?" someone else said.

"We could do it if we put our hearts in it," the cartoonist said.

"These are all good suggestions," the editorial writer said. "But we owe this administration more than just suppressing bad news. We have to print the good news about what President Nixon is doing."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone cried.

"Let's hear a few suggestions."

THERE WAS DEAD silence in the room.

The woman reporter finally said, "Nixon's marrying off his daughter to a very nice young man."

"He kept Henry Kissinger from being kidnapped," someone else added.

"He got Congress to vote on the SST."

"He made Spiro Agnew into a household word."

"He brought Martha Mitchell to Washington."

"He made everything perfectly clear."

"THAT'S ENOUGH to start with," the syndicated columnist said. "We're all agreed then that we're going to lay off the Nixon administration until after the election."

"Huzzah! Huzzah! everyone cried.

Unfortunately, at that moment 100 federal marshals, who had been tipped off by an FBI informer, crashed into the basement and arrested everyone for conspiring to overthrow the United States government.

"That does it," said an editor as he was put into a paddy wagon. "No more Mister Good Guy!"

Quake Fault's End Found In Gulf

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — Discovery that the San Andreas Fault and its related branches apparently end in the northern portion of the Gulf of California was reported today by University of Southern California scientists.

The find sheds new light on the ultimate causes of California's killer earthquakes, according to James L. Bischoff and Thomas L. Henyey, who recently completed the most detailed scientific study of the gulf's northern area ever undertaken.

The USC researchers say they pinpointed the end of this system of faults in the gulf floor under relatively shallow water about 60 miles southeast of the mouth of the Colorado River. Before this discovery, location of the San Andreas' southern end and its relation to the Gulf of California were mysteries.

Analyses of data gathered on a month-long cruise in northern gulf waters indicate that the fault's end is butted up against a formation geologists call a "spreading center."

Bischoff explained that a spreading center is a point at which new crust is being added to the sea floor by thermal processes deep beneath the ocean floor. The energy pushes the surrounding crust horizontally from the center."

Bischoff explained that a spreading center is a point at which new crust is being added to the sea floor by thermalprocesses deep beneath the ocean floor. The energy pushes the surrounding crust horizontally from the center.

"We believe that with its relationship to the fault, the spreading center provides the ultimate input energy which causes earthquakes," Bischoff told a USC interviewer.

The USC scientists explained that the study indicates the San Andreas Fault zone, which runs the length of California in a northwesterly direction, is terminated at 90 degree angles by two such spreading centers: The one they discovered in the gulf, and another, known to exist off the Oregon coast near the California border.

The gulf spreading center is pushing the earth surface west of the fault in a northwesterly direction, and the offshore Oregon spreading center is pushing the land east of the fault zone in a southeasterly direction, the USC geologists believe.

Hence the mechanics of a major earthquake: Sudden movement caused by bursts of energy released along the San Andreas Fault. The land surface west of the fault is going north and that to the east of the fault is going south.

It has been estimated by other researchers that there has been as much as 300 miles total land displacement along the California San Andreas Fault in the last 60 million years.

"For some time, scientists have been puzzled about the continuation of the San Andreas south of the Imperial Valley. Relationships between the fault zone and underwater geological features such as the East Pacific Rise, which enters the southern portion of the Gulf of California, have been theorized, but not enough detailed information was available," Bischoff said.

Using sophisticated seismic gear aboard USC's research vessel, Velero IV, Bischoff and Henyey studied gulf bottom characteristics at hundreds of "stations" in the northern gulf.

These studies led Bischoff to speculate further that the San Andreas Fault line, now under gulf waters running south from the mouth of the Colorado River, was the river's channel thousands of years ago, during lowered sea level of the last glacial period.

The same geological spreading forces which are related to the San Andreas are believed to be implicated in the westward "drift" of the Baja California peninsula, which is continuing at the rate of a few inches per year.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board, North Coast Region will hold a public hearing on May 11, 1971, at 1:00 p.m. in the Eureka City Council Chambers, 6th and K Streets, Eureka, California and on May 13, 1971, at 10:00 a.m. in the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors Chambers, 2555 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa, California to consider the INTERIM WATER QUALITY MANAGEMENT PLAN FOR THE NORTH COASTAL BASIN* pursuant to Section 13244 of the California Water Code.

In its basin plan, the Regional Board will consider the following waste discharge prohibitions:

A. All waste discharges to the following water bodies are prohibited:

1. Humboldt Bay, including Arcata Bay and South Bay, prior to January 1, 1976;
2. Under certain conditions, all nearshore tidal waters and tidal estuaries prior to January 1, 1976;
3. All surface freshwater impoundments and their immediate tributaries;
4. Water-contact recreation areas in fresh waters;
5. All coastal streams and natural drainage ways that flow directly to the ocean;
6. The Mad, Eel, and Russian Rivers during the period May 15 through September 30 and all other periods when the receiving stream's flow is less than 100 times greater than the waste flow; and
7. Under certain conditions, all surface fresh waters prior to January 1, 1985.

B. Individual sewage disposal systems are prohibited in the following instances:

1. On all parcels of land within 200 feet of all impoundments and within 100 feet of all surface streams or natural drainageways; and
2. Under certain conditions, all new subdivisions.

C. The discharge of vessel waste is prohibited in all fresh waters, bays, estuaries, and nearshore tidal waters.

D. The discharge of solid waste materials to waters of the state is prohibited.

The staff of the Regional Board and other interested persons will be given the opportunity to present evidence regarding this proposed plan. If possible, written comments should be sent to Dr. David C. Joseph, Executive Officer, California Regional Water Quality Control Board, North Coast Region, 2200 County Center Drive, Suite F, Santa Rosa, California 95401 prior to the hearing.

Summaries of the Interim Water Quality Management Plan are available upon request to the Regional Board. The complete Interim Plan is available for review in the Regional Board office during normal working hours.

*For purposes of this plan, the North Coastal Basin includes all tidal waters and coastal streams draining to the Pacific Ocean from the Humboldt-Del Norte County line in the north to the watersheds draining to Stemple Creek and the Estero de San Antonio in Marin and Sonoma Counties.

What Is It That Youth Has To Say?

Over and over again, we are told that youth has something to say, and adulthood must listen.

Wherever the youth revolution, generation gap, or whatever you wish to call it is discussed, this advice pops up: Listen to what youth has to tell you! Often it is accompanied by the assurance that "you'd be surprised" at the excellent ideas of youth.

This same theme has occurred repeatedly in letters to the Independent-Journal's "rap session" contest. But almost without exception, it has been in letters from those over 30 — the generations that, according to the Tom Haydens of the youth revolution, are not to be trusted.

FEW OF THE YOUNG people under 21 have even submitted letters. And those letters received have suggested "establishment-type" approaches to bridging the so-called generation gap: Community "rap sessions," publicity for youth activities, including young people in decision-making bodies.

These are scarcely new ideas. Getting together to "rap" has certainly been tried repeatedly. Newspapers, radio stations and other media have been going out of their way to publicize youth activities for as long as we can remember. Putting young people on decision-making bodies is a newer approach, but so far has not appeared to make a lot of difference.

It may be, of course, that the I-J's "rap letter contest" is not a fair gauge. It may be that few under 21 have written their ideas to the contest because few under 21 read the I-J. Various surveys have indicated that few under 21 read any newspaper.

However, during the same period we have heard from high school students in the dispute over disqualification of a Redwood High School track team member, which escalated into resignations of a couple of the track coaches. On matters that closely concern them, it seems, young people write letters to the editor and state their feelings quite plainly.

WE ARE LEFT wondering how much truth there is to the often-heard admonition that we must listen to youth to receive its pearls of wisdom.

Does youth really have something to say — something, that is, beyond shouted generalities such as "Nixon is a hawk," "the war is immoral," or "do your own thing"?

We know that a lot of people do have something to say, for we've heard them say it. But generally it has turned out to be not so very different from what their elders are saying, or at least thinking.

COULD IT BE that the generation gap, like some other things, really is an invention of spotlight-hungry people who find satisfaction to their egos by setting up a din for any "cause" that appears likely to attract a following?

Maybe further letters in the "rap" contest — which runs until May 24 — will prove otherwise. Maybe the youth revolution really has more substance than sound.

We're listening.

CAPITOL REPORT

Sharp Increase In Abortions Spurs Attempt To Change Law

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Since Nov. 8, 1967, there have been approximately 90,000 murders in California. Wilfull, premeditated murders. But no one was indicted. No one stands convicted. The murders were legal.

Furthermore, it is predicted that during 1971 there will be another 116,000 murders. These, too, will be legal. The law says they are.

They are not called murder. They are called abortions. The purposeful, clinical termination of a pregnancy. Termination of a life. What one cannot do with a gun, or a switch blade or a club, the law allows with a suction tube or a 10-inch currette.

ALL OF THIS CAME with the passage of the California Therapeutic Abortion Act.

Under certain situations — such as rape, or incest, or when the life of the woman might be lost if pregnancy went the full term — in these cases, there is a strong argument for abortion.

But liberalized abortion laws which permit abortions on request? This mocks the sanctity of human life.

Perhaps it's all a part of liberating women. Liberating them from the responsibilities of their deeds — or, misdeeds. Now you can have the sizzle. Without the steak.

AT THE TIME the bill was being debated, proponents argued it would not result in any great increase in abortions. It's main purpose, they claimed, was to permit those who were then seeking illegal abortions to have abortions in medically approved and sterile conditions.

Here is the record, so far: 1968 — 5,000 legal abortions; 1969 — 15,000; 1970 — 70,000; 1971 — (est.) 116,000.

For 1970 the State Department of Public Health reported that 99 per cent were for reason of rape or incest or because full-term pregnancy would gravely impair the physical health of the woman.

In 98 per cent of the cases, the reason for the abortion was listed as "mental health." There are those who feel that it is too easy to get away with the "mental health" bit; that "mental health" is to abortions as "mental cruelty" is to divorce — a quick and easy way out of a mistake. And so a life is taken. Legally.

There were more abortions than births in the age group 15 to 19. And, more than one-third of all abortions were paid for by the taxpayer — through Medi-Cal.

AN INCREASING number of Californians are upset about all of this.

One of these is Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach. Burke recently introduced a series of bills which would tighten provisions of the 1967 law.

Among other things, Burke's bill would:

— prohibit abortions after the 10th week of pregnancy

— allow mental health as a bonafide reason only if the woman had been receiving psychiatric treatment prior to her pregnancy.

He also has introduced a resolution calling for a study of abortion practices since the 1967 law went into effect.

Already Burke has been treated to a storm of virulent and organized opposition. Which is not so strange in this strange day and age.

TODAY ONLY NATURAL law protects the unborn child. And in a society where legalese is often a substitute for morality, natural law is lost in a haze of permissiveness, irresponsibility and mixed-up values.

Ecology. That's the big thing today. Save the trees and fish, the birds and bees. For future generations.

And, those future generations? Those who would inherit the earth — with the trees and birds and bees. They are disposable. In the bottom of a surgical bucket.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Council Will Cut Its Salary — Naturally

When the Fairfax City Council voted themselves a salary a few years ago, the rationale was that they deserved it was they had to take over the duties of the departed city administrator.

Now that we have a new administrator, the council will naturally vote to forego this money. That is, they will if they have any political sense at all for this will be a beautiful campaign issue next time if they don't.

Remembering Youth Includes No 'Gap'

After reading Edgar N. Jacobs ("Readers Say," April 29) I feel that I should speak my piece. Fifty years ago I came to America. I could not speak the American language. My mother and father never learned to talk very good but we had a Swedish newspaper and the Minneapolis Tribune, which of course was American, in the house. We had one language outside of our home and that was English, and no special law to teach the land from where we came.

We got by somehow, dad carried cement blocks for 10 hours for $1.75 per day, too tired to raise hell and so we got by till dad got a better job. I sold papers for two cents and was happy. Never went to college, learned to break windows without going to college, but when I did dad made it hard for me to sit down. Dad was not a person to lie, never said it hurt him more than me and he could sit down.

How we have changed! In 1916 I took my sister's hand to cross the street in Kenmare, North Dakota, after being away for some years in Canada and Alaska. There was no traffic, but wouldn't you take your sister's hand to cross the street? She was only 14 years old.

Perhaps us old guys are stupid but . . . I wonder how long since Mr. Jacobs took his sister's hand and helped her across the street?

Official Report Bears Out No Arson

Time is supposed to heal all wounds, but judging from the Independent-Journal headline "Arson Suspected in UCSC Blaze" on April 8, I think we can expect at the very least a long-lived scar.

Actually, there was no arson involved in the fire, a fact verified in the official fire investigation report just released. It details the findings of the state fire marshal's office, as well as the exhaustive detection work involved . . .

In view of the alarming nature of the original fire stories, we would greatly appreciate an editorial comment on the final outcome of the investigation.

TOM O'LEARY

(The initial report from Santa Cruz said arson was suspected. Result of the investigation was reported in the Independent-Journal of April 13 under the headline, "No Arson in UC Santa Cruz Blaze." — Editor.)

Some Things More Important Than Trial

To many of us here in Mill Valley, a new fire station and sewers are a lot more important than the Davis trial. Isn't there some way that this Davis can have a more economic day in court?

It might make for an interesting editorial to show the actual dollar costs for a person owning a $30,000 home in Marin County to conduct this trial and for the additional security requirements.

DOLPH JAEGER

Welfare Destroying American Society

Public welfare is the greatest failure of modern liberalism. Welfare has become a cancer that is slowly eating away the foundations of our American way of life. The greed of those who receive welfare is destroying their will to work. The productive, who provide the money for welfare, are being drowned in a sea of debt engendered by inflation and high taxes. The liberal apologists, who created welfare, are being liquidated along with the rest in compliance with a secret death wish to atone for some imagined guilt that lies buried in the depths of their subconscious minds.

Unless we stem the flow of this torrential flood the greatest experiment in human liberty and self-government in the history of man will cease to exist. To be constructive any program must recognize that the purpose of welfare is to eliminate welfare. It must revive the will to work among the economically disabled. It must build their characters as well as feed their bodies. This means that the state must provide a job for all the ablebodied people who receive welfare benefits.

If freedom lives, this will encourage them to seek a job they choose to do rather than to accept a job they are forced to do. Job opportunities are always available to anyone who is willing to persevere in their search to find them. You must never forget that America is the land of the "second chance." If you fail you don't give up, you start all over again. If you win you don't stop trying, you start all over again. This is the rythmn of America. If it is ever broken, the heart of America will cease to beat.

Objections To Plan For School Properties

Your editorial of April 28 (Reed District Eyes An Old Revenue Plan) requires some clarification. The proposal for constructing condominiums on unused school property may have some merit as a concept. However, if you are proposing this for the Reed District, the taxpayers of the district deserve an explanation of the problems involved which you passed over as "some objections."

The properties are zoned by the City of Tiburon for single-family, one-acre sites. The possibility of the planning commission and the city council approving a rezoning request for condominiums defies my imagination.

Although there is no immediate requirement for schools at these sites, it is shortsighted to commit them to another use. The current population of the district is approximately half of its potential and additional schools will be necessary in the future. Appropriate sites were difficult to find at the time these were purchased. Even if acceptable alternate sites are available in the future, the cost of same is certain to exceed the profit from this proposal . . .

The North Central site is also an important part of the Tiburon Open Sapce Plan. Considerable effort is being expended to preserve the Tiburon Ridge, and a condominium project would do much to negate these efforts.

Mr. Noble is to be commended for his interest in reducing the tax burden. However, I feel that this proposal is neither feasible nor in the best interest of the community.

Party-Goers Should Disqualify Selves

As a former member of the Fairfax Planning Commission, I was distressed to read (I-J, May 1) of the promotional party staged by Kaiser-Aetna to tout its interesting in developing the Town and Country Club property, prior to submission of any plans to the Fairfax Planning Commission.

It would appear that any future decision rendered by those city officials in attendance at the party would be subject to question. And further, those city fathers who have accepted campaign assistance from the owner of the property Kaiser-Aetna is considering developing, would be doubly suspect.

Should this project eventually come before any of these gentlemen for consideration, I would hope that they have the integrity to disqualify themselves from voting on that issue.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Fellow Citizens Real Targets Of Dissidents

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Constitution guarantees my right to dissent from the policies of the U. S. government.

It does not give me the right to inflict hardship or inconvenience on you in order to dramatize my discontent.

This important distinction was overlooked or ignored by the people (let's stop calling them "kids" — the term is wildly inappropriate) who made an abortive attempt this week to shut down the machinery of the federal government.

THESE PEOPLE believe that the war in Indochina is a wicked waste of human life. That is a perfectly legitimate point of view. It is shared, according to the latest public opinion polls, by a clear majority of Americans.

They also feel—with reason— that President Nixon has been unresponsive, and even openly contemptuous, of peaceful demonstrations of opposition to the war.

So, they say, the time has come to resort to direct action to disrupt the functioning of the government and compel it to halt the war.

It is this third step in their logic which calls for careful consideration.

THERE CERTAINLY may be circumstances in which moral duty may drive a person to take hostile action against his government. Our forefathers felt that such circumstances existed in 1776, and most of us would be highly sympathetic with any Russian, Czech, Pole or mainland Chinese who felt that such circumstances exist in his country today.

But let us be very clear on the point: any deliberate attempt to disrupt the functioning of a government, for whatever motive, is by definition an act of revolution. To argue that the U. S. government should be disrupted is exactly tantamount to saying that its authority is illegitimate and should be overthrown. Undoubtedly, many of the disruptionists who assembled in Washington this week are prepared to make just that argument. But when they do, they part company with the vast majority of Americans who are opposed to the Vietnam war.

THE WAR IN VIETNAM may be a disastrous mistake, but it would be a far greater disaster to undermine, paralyze or overthrow a system of government which, for all its defects, remains the best guarantor of social order and human freedom man ever has been ablt to devise.

Of course, there was never any real danger that this raggledy-taggledy band of bluejeaned protesters would overthrow or seriously disrupt the U.S. government. The one thing they could and did accomplish was to inflict a lot of harassment, inconvenience and some real hardship on individuals who live in Washington and have to go on getting to work and making a living even when the streets are filled with trash cans and tear gas.

So their real target, in the end, was not the war, or the government, or the Nixon administration, but their fellow citizens —many of whom disapprove of the war as strongly as they.

It seems a poor way to make your point.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

'Two Chinas' Policy Doomed While Chiang And Mao Live

By ARNOLD DIBBLE

HONG KONG (UPI)—There is one thing that the Republic of China (Taipei) and the Peoples Republic of China (Peking) agree upon 100 per cent—Taiwan is an integral part of China.

Also Tibet and areas under dispute with the Soviet Union.

But which China? The China of President Chiang Kai-shek of the Republic of China or the China of Chairman Mao Tsetung of the Peoples Republic of China?

There's the rub.

IT IS CLEAR that the United States is moving closer to some accommodation with the Communist regime now ruling the 700-million people on the mainland of China.

The Henry Cabot Lodge commission has recommended the admission of Red China to the United Nations and the State Department has suggested that the question of Taiwan might be settled by negotiating between Chiang's government and the Communist Peoples Republic of China.

At the same time, the United States has said time and again it has no intention of reneging on its treaty commitments to defend Chiang's government against "aggression" nor its support of the Taiwan regime.

SO LONG AS Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tse-tung are alive, the two-China policy stands almost no chance, Both leaders have said they will not join or remain in the United Nations so long as the other is recognized.

If anything, Red China is more intransigent than Chiang's Republic of China where winds of change are whispering through the membership of the ruling Kuomingtang Party and the halls of the various Yuans which form the legislative branch of the Taiwan government.

Up to now, Taiwan has broken diplomatic relations and sent its ambassadors packing by the first available plane as soon as any nation recognized Red China, although the Nationalists have left a trade mission in Italy.

But recently, according to advices from Taiwan, a growing number of Kuomingtang Party members are agitating for more flexibility. There is no indication that the 84-year-old Chiang is bending before this agitation.

WITH THE DEATHS of Chiang and Mao there are bound to be changes. There have been recurrent reports — always emphatically denied — that Chaing's son and heir apparent, Chiang Ching-Kuo, is more receptive to negotiations than his father.

One thing is certain, the new generation of mainland Chinese and Taiwanese on Taiwan want more than anything else to be left alone.

The ultimate settlement may well be an independent Taiwan backed by big-power guarantees. But it won't come tomorrow.

Parents Back Kentfield Teacher

By WAT TAKESHITA

A dozen parents and teachers rose yesterday to the defense of a guitar-strumming Kentfield schoolteacher, who faces dismissal just before completing her third year at Wolfe Grade School.

Joanne Pocta, first grade teacher since Sept. 1, 1968, would win tenure if she worked next school year, but she was given notice on March 12.

Miss Pocta and her attorney, Jerome Berg of San Francisco, are fighting the dismissal at a hearing at Marin Civic Center before Paul A. Winton, a hearing officer from the state Office of Administrative Procedure in San Francisco.

Berg contends that Miss Pocta is being ousted because her "informal" classroom methods, which, he said, are loved by children and parents alike, are frowned on by the new principal, Roy L. Smith, who was transferred from Greenbrae School to Wolfe Grade School last fall.

Berg declared that Smith and Supt. Anthony C. Bacich are trying to clamp down on the informal teaching methods of teachers like Miss Pocta and impose a traditional authoritarian approach.

"It's a difference in philosophy, between the rigid, structured approach and the human approach," said Berg.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, representing the Kentfield School District, denied that the difference is between teaching philosophies. He pointed out that Basil Scalabrini, a bearded, long-haired third-grade teacher is even more informal than Miss Pocta but is highly regarded at Wolfe Grade School.

Scalabrini, who is also a member of the San Anselmo School District Board, testified in defense of Miss Pocta yesterday.

Miss Pocta is accused of inability to control her classes and lack of proper organization.

Called to the witness stand by Godino, Superintendent Bacich testified he has nothing against informal classroom teaching. "But I would characterize Miss Pocta's classroom as loose rather than informal," said Bacich. He explained she does not seem to have a definite goal or plan of action for students.

Principal Smith told the hearing officer that Miss Pocta did not deal sternly enough with misbehaving pupils and allowed students to walk around at will.

Eugene Hensch, principal for two years before Smith, said he, too, was concerned with lack of proper planning in Miss Pocta's class. He acknowledged that she showed some improvement in the second year but needed more improvement to rate tenure.

But parents and other teachers disagree. They paraded to the witness stand yesterday to describe Miss Pocta as a "beautiful" teacher who worked wonders with pupils, especially the problem children and slow learners.

Mary Martis, vice president of the Wolfe Grade Parent-Teacher Association, said Miss Pocta, instead of belittling a problem child, would quietly point to good behavior by other students and get better results than through scolding. Mrs. Martis said she also saw the teacher take her pupils to one corner and captivate them by strumming on her guitar and having them recite poems in tune with the music.

Margaret Drake, clinical psychologist, whose child was in Miss Pocta's class, testified that the teacher motivates children and makes them enthusiastic.

Under questioning by Berg, Mrs. Drake described how Miss Pocta dealt with a boy who spilled a glass of juice at a party. "A tense, authoritarian teacher might have scolded him in front of everyone. But she just asked him quietly to pick it up. It never became a problem, and no one became tense."

"She doesn't handle such a situation as a discipline matter," said Mrs. Drake. "She handles it as a learning situation."

Every teacher and parent who took the stand heaped similar praise on Miss Pocta for being an effective teacher with control over her classes at all times.

Attorney Berg said more than 30 parents and teachers, including almost every teacher in Wolfe Grade School, volunteered to speak up for Miss Pocta. With the third day of the hearing completed yesterday, Berg said he still has 10 or 15 more witnesses to call.

When the hearing is completed in June, Winton said he will write a proposed decision on Miss Pocta and submit it to the the Kentfield School District board of trustees, which has the final say on whether or not the probationary teacher will be rehired for the coming school year.

Bicycle Rider Hurt In Crash

Police said Heon's westbound bicycle collided with a southbound car driven by Gary Leonard Miller, 16, of 18 Kristin Lane, Novato, at 8 a.m.

Heon was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

WHAT TWA DID FOR COACH...

Last Fall TWA introduced Ambassador Service, a whole new way to fly for the coach passenger.

There's the new Twin Seat. If the plane's not crowded, it can be three across, two across or even a couch.

You'll find a choice of three international meals. With wines, champagnes and liqueurs from around the world.[1]

You'll find a choice of two movies on every movie flight.[1] One for general audiences, one for mature.

The only problem was, first class started to look dull by comparison, so...

TWA NOW DOES FOR 1ST CLASS.

...we took out those old overstuffed first class seats. And put in all new overstuffed first class seats.

We put in a choice of five meals, the best you'll find on any airline, anywhere.

After dinner, settle back, and we present a choice of two movies on every movie flight. One for general audiences, one for mature.

Next time you're flying across the United States take a TWA Ambassador Flight from San Francisco or Oakland[2] International Airport.

Coach or first class, nobody else gives you anything like it.

Ambassador Service is a service mark owned exclusively by TWA

1. Movies and alcoholic beverages available at nominal cost in coach. Movies by Inflight Motion Pictures, Inc. 2. Ambassador Service from Oakland to Chicago.

TWA's NEW AMBASSADOR SERVICE.
A WHOLE NEW WAY TO FLY TO NEW YORK, NEWARK, BOSTON, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, COLUMBUS OR CHICAGO.

Just Break The News To Mother: There's No New Car This Year

Down with Mother's Day — or at least the commercial rape of it!

Gone are the days when a bouquet of daisies or a pan of homemade fudge would put a sparkle in mother's eye. No more does a "Let me help you, mother," mean anything.

Instead, money-hungry promoters spouting, "Tell Mother you love her with . . . " (choose one: flowers, candy, lingerie, a trip to Hawaii, dinner out, clothing, a new car, a fur coat, ad infinitum), urge children of all ages to express love for mother in terms of dollars and cents. However, since the majority of people love more than they can afford, it can be a most frustrating experience.

BUT WORSE than that. This corruption has spread to mother herself! That formerly sweet angel-on-a-pedestal has come to expect — yes, expect —such lavish treatment.

Mother would never be so crass as to look at, or even guess, the price tag of a present, but how can she feel pleased with your selection when her own sister announces dramatically, "The kids are giving me a new car — one of those cute little foreign models — for Mother's Day."? Guaranteed to make your gift (you saved for weeks to buy her a friendly pedigree poodle) dwindle in stature.

Advertisements and store displays, gently nudging you to "remember mother," hit you between the eyes almost before the multi-colored plastic Easter eggs are packed away.

ONE OF THE LARGEST promoters is the greeting card industry, which has available Mother's Day cards for fathers, husbands, expectant women, grandmothers, aunts, wives, sisters, nieces, daughters, granddaughters, friends and, of all things, mothers!

So, aside from selecting that just-right gift once every 12 months, a perfect card also must be chosen. And Mother's Day cards can be funny, sentimental, loving, sweet, romantic, friendly, across-the-miles or plain and simple.

Depending on what you call her, cards can be purchased to mom, ma, mother, mommy, mummy, mum and momma. Really. With such a wide choice, it's difficult to select "the" right card. (Actually panic sets in when you can't quite remember just what you do call her.)

CHILDREN, EAGER to make mother happy, strive for perfection — even if it's a simple breakfast-in-bed. Mother, of course, must eat all of everything: even though the eggs are not cooked, the bacon is burnt, the toast is cold, the juice is warm, and coffee is boiled.

And, facing her in the kitchen is a monumental mess that will keep her busy the rest of "Her Day."

But it's the thought that counts, so mother grins and bears it.

Why should so many people suffer so much when a simple hug and a kiss with a whispered, "I love you," will do the trick?

Know what I'm tucking inside my mother's card Sunday? You guessed it. This column.

Innocent Plea To Stolen Money Clip

A 19-yaar-old Petaluma youth has pleaded innocent in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to a charge of possessing a money clip that had been stolen in a residential burglary.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon set a June 17 jury trial for Andres M. Sandoval of 102 Sixth Street. Sandoval was arrested April 19 in Petaluma.

ART BUCHWALD

Anyway, The Press Tried To Help The Administration

WASHINGTON— No matter how hard we try, the press can't do anything right as far as the Nixon administration is concerned.

I am happy to report that the attacks of President Nixon, Spiro Agnew and John Mitchell have not fallen on deaf ears. A sincere group of journalists and TV commentators have formed an Ad Hoc Committee to Make the News More Palatable to the Administration.

The first meeting was held last week in the Georgetown basement of a famous cartoonist.

"GENTLEMEN," a syndicated columinst said, "The administration is fed up with the way the nation's media are reporting the news. It is our duty as Americans to change our ways."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

"Are there any suggestions?"

"How about coming out for Judge Carswell?" someone said.

"It's too late unless there is a new opening on the Supreme Court," an editorial writer replied.

"What about refusing to report the unemployment figures in the United States?"

"That would please the administration," a White House corrrespondent said.

"HOW ABOUT PULLING all our correspondents out of Indochina and accepting only the word of the Pentagon briefers?"

"It's a step in the right direction," a TV correspondent agreed.

"It isn't enough," a columnist said. "This administration deserves more than a few bones."

"I've got it," suggested a reporter. "Suppose we agree every week to turn over all our notebooks and films and radio tapes to the Justice Department?"

An editor said, "John Mitchell would like that."

"And suppose we make an agreement not to report any news from Red China without clearing it with Spiro Agnew?"

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

A WOMAN REPORTER said, "What about putting an embargo on all news about anti-Vietnam demonstrations?"

"Or demonstrations of any kind?" someone else said.

"We could do it if we put our hearts in it," the cartoonist said.

"These are all good suggestions," the editorial writer said. "But we owe this administration more than just suppressing bad news. We have to print the good news about what President Nixon is doing."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone cried.

"Let's hear a few suggestions."

THERE WAS DEAD silence in the room.

The woman reporter finally said, "Nixon's marrying off his daughter to a very nice young man."

"He kept Henry Kissinger from being kidnapped," someone else added.

"He got Congress to vote on the SST."

"He made Spiro Agnew into a household word."

"He brought Martha Mitchell to Washington."

"He made everything perfectly clear."

"THAT'S ENOUGH to start with," the syndicated columnist said. "We're all agreed then that we're going to lay off the Nixon administration until after the election."

"Huzzah! Huzzah! everyone cried.

Unfortunately, at that moment 100 federal marshals, who had been tipped off by an FBI informer, crashed into the basement and arrested everyone for conspiring to overthrow the United States government.

"That does it," said an editor as he was put into a paddy wagon. "No more Mister Good Guy!"

Quake Fault's End Found In Gulf

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — Discovery that the San Andreas Fault and its related branches apparently end in the northern portion of the Gulf of California was reported today by University of Southern California scientists.

The find sheds new light on the ultimate causes of California's killer earthquakes, according to James L. Bischoff and Thomas L. Henyey, who recently completed the most detailed scientific study of the gulf's northern area ever undertaken.

The USC researchers say they pinpointed the end of this system of faults in the gulf floor under relatively shallow water about 60 miles southeast of the mouth of the Colorado River. Before this discovery, location of the San Andreas' southern end and its relation to the Gulf of California were mysteries.

Analyses of data gathered on a month-long cruise in northern gulf waters indicate that the fault's end is butted up against a formation geologists call a "spreading center."

Bischoff explained that a spreading center is a point at which new crust is being added to the sea floor by thermal processes deep beneath the ocean floor. The energy pushes the surrounding crust horizontally from the center."

Bischoff explained that a spreading center is a point at which new crust is being added to the sea floor by thermalprocesses deep beneath the ocean floor. The energy pushes the surrounding crust horizontally from the center.

"We believe that with its relationship to the fault, the spreading center provides the ultimate input energy which causes earthquakes," Bischoff told a USC interviewer.

The USC scientists explained that the study indicates the San Andreas Fault zone, which runs the length of California in a northwesterly direction, is terminated at 90 degree angles by two such spreading centers: The one they discovered in the gulf, and another, known to exist off the Oregon coast near the California border.

The gulf spreading center is pushing the earth surface west of the fault in a northwesterly direction, and the offshore Oregon spreading center is pushing the land east of the fault zone in a southeasterly direction, the USC geologists believe.

Hence the mechanics of a major earthquake: Sudden movement caused by bursts of energy released along the San Andreas Fault. The land surface west of the fault is going north and that to the east of the fault is going south.

It has been estimated by other researchers that there has been as much as 300 miles total land displacement along the California San Andreas Fault in the last 60 million years.

"For some time, scientists have been puzzled about the continuation of the San Andreas south of the Imperial Valley. Relationships between the fault zone and underwater geological features such as the East Pacific Rise, which enters the southern portion of the Gulf of California, have been theorized, but not enough detailed information was available," Bischoff said.

Using sophisticated seismic gear aboard USC's research vessel, Velero IV, Bischoff and Henyey studied gulf bottom characteristics at hundreds of "stations" in the northern gulf.

These studies led Bischoff to speculate further that the San Andreas Fault line, now under gulf waters running south from the mouth of the Colorado River, was the river's channel thousands of years ago, during lowered sea level of the last glacial period.

The same geological spreading forces which are related to the San Andreas are believed to be implicated in the westward "drift" of the Baja California peninsula, which is continuing at the rate of a few inches per year.

Decorating Tips From The Staff of
CASA MARIN
Your Window Treatments Are Important
To Your Total Decorating Scheme.

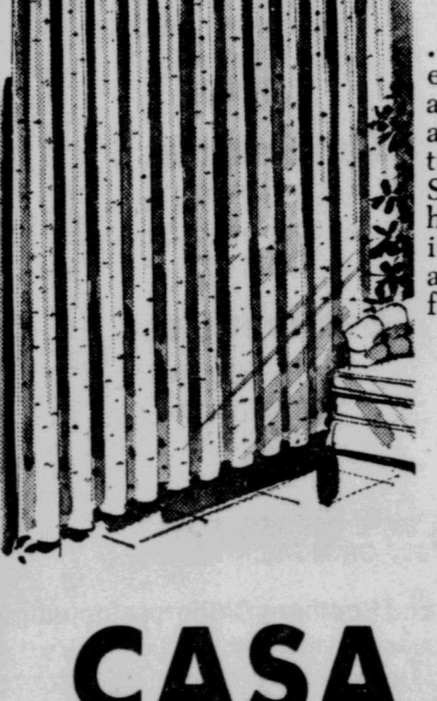
Many of today's smart architectural plans embrace great expanses of glass. This, of course, fulfills our craving for making the outdoor part of our interior design.

The treatment of glass wall and/or sliding doors often dictates the decorative scheme for the entire room. It is a wonderful springboard for color planning and affords an opportunity to give dash to any type of room.

In many instances interior designers start with window areas to set the color decorating scheme of an entire room. Properly selected colors that reflect the mood of the room and the personality of its occupants are carried out in shades and tones of wall covering and carpet, not to speak of upholstered cover selections and even the new bright colors of wood accent pieces.

Thus rooms are given a look of luxury, of serenity, or gaiety, or friendly warmth, simply through proper selections of materials and colors in custom made draperies.

Come in . . . browse at Casa Marin for ideas as well as fine home furnishings.



Your Brand New Spring Windows

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board, North Coast Region will hold a public hearing on May 11, 1971, at 1:00 p.m. in the Eureka City Council Chambers, 6th and K Streets, Eureka, California and on May 13, 1971, at 10:00 a.m. in the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors Chambers, 2555 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa, California to consider the INTERIM WATER QUALITY MANAGEMENT PLAN FOR THE NORTH COASTAL BASIN* pursuant to Section 13244 of the California Water Code.

In its basin plan, the Regional Board will consider the following waste discharge prohibitions:

A. All waste discharges to the following water bodies are prohibited:

1. Humboldt Bay, including Arcata Bay and South Bay, prior to January 1, 1976;
2. Under certain conditions, all nearshore tidal waters and tidal estuaries prior to January 1, 1976;
3. All surface freshwater impoundments and their immediate tributaries;
4. Water-contact recreation areas in fresh waters;
5. All coastal streams and natural drainage ways that flow directly to the ocean;
6. The Mad, Eel, and Russian Rivers during the period May 15 through September 30 and all other periods when the receiving stream's flow is less than 100 times greater than the waste flow; and
7. Under certain conditions, all surface fresh waters prior to January 1, 1985.

B. Individual sewage disposal systems are prohibited in the following instances:

1. On all parcels of land within 200 feet of all impoundments and within 100 feet of all surface streams or natural drainageways; and
2. Under certain conditions, all new subdivisions.

C. The discharge of vessel waste is prohibited in all fresh waters, bays, estuaries, and nearshore tidal waters.

D. The discharge of solid waste materials to waters of the state is prohibited.

The staff of the Regional Board and other interested persons will be given the opportunity to present evidence regarding this proposed plan. If possible, written comments should be sent to Dr. David C. Joseph, Executive Officer, California Regional Water Quality Control Board, North Coast Region, 2200 County Center Drive, Suite F, Santa Rosa, California 95401 prior to the hearing.

Summaries of the Interim Water Quality Management Plan are available upon request to the Regional Board. The complete Interim Plan is available for review in the Regional Board office during normal working hours.

*For purposes of this plan, the North Coastal Basin includes all tidal waters and coastal streams draining to the Pacific Ocean from the Humboldt-Del Norte County line in the north to the watersheds draining to Stemple Creek and the Estero de San Antonio in Marin and Sonoma Counties.

—PEACE DEMONSTRATION — Flower-carrying demonstrators clog the hallway outside the Selective Service office in San Rafael. Shortly before 37 demonstrators were arrested yesterday, including a number of Vietnam war veterans, many of the youths began filling out identification and information slips to help keep track of those taken into custody. The building at Third and D Streets was filled with a continual song of "all we are saying, is give peace a chance."

Police Arrest 37 Draft Protesters

San Rafael Office Is Disrupted By Sit-In

Thirty-seven peace demonstrators were arrested yesterday for unlawful assembly after they refused to disperse from a sit-in at the San Rafael office of the U.S. Selective Service.

According to San Rafael police, the protesters — including four juveniles — were arrested at about 2:45 p.m. after ignoring warnings they disband their body blockage of a corridor at the federal building at 910 D Street.

As the group chorused "Give Peace a Chance," a dozen helmeted police officers moved in to arrest the demonstrators one by one.

"Will you disperse?" the officers calmly asked each protester. "Disperse or you will be arrested."

The demonstrators, most of whom appeared to be college students, merely shook their heads and continued singing. As each protester was placed under arrest, he rose to his feet and moved quietly with hands behind head POW fashion to an awaiting bus.

Among those arrested were two San Rafael men who ran unsuccessfully last month for public office. They are James Kimo Campbell, 20, of 50 Fremont Road, who ran for the Marin Junior College District board and Richard Allan Raznikov, 24, of 12 Chateau Place, who lost in his bid to become mayor of San Rafael.

The sit-in, the first major protest action at the Marin draft board, according to police chief Joseph J. Brusatori, was the culmination of a morning-long demonstration which began at the College of Marin.

Earlier about 300 persons gathered at the college to lower the school's American flag to half staff in tribute to Marin's war dead and four students slain last year by Ohio National Guardsmen at Kent State University.

At about 10 a.m., a splinter group of about 100 marched from the Kentfield campus along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, over Wolf Grade and into San Rafael.

Swarming into the draft board office, they presented employees there a letter claiming: "Our government would rather risk social decay and revolution at home than admit a colossal mistake (the war)."

The letter, signed by most of the demonstrators, asked draft board employees to resign their positions and "help restore the conscience of America."

The demonstrators — some of whom wore military fatigues and said they were former GIs — then moved out of the office and began the corridor sit-in.

At one point about 50 persons participated in the hand-holding blockade as another 30 or so stood by voicing support.

San Rafael police, who announced they would not take action until a complaint was received, stationed two officers inside the building to control the crowd.

As the 11:30 a.m. sit-in lengthened past noon, the officers talked and joked goodnaturedly with the protesters.

At one point, a conservatively-dressed youth attempted to pick his way through the sprawled bodies to the selective service office.

"Stop him," someone said as the demonstrators clustered tightly at the office entrance.

"Let's hear it for the people," one youth shouted and the group applauded.

A formal complaint was made at 2:10 by Col. Richard E. Davis of the selective service's Bay Area headquarters in San Francisco after the protesters refused to allow the local board's executive secretary, Joy Kinzer, to enter the office.

Boston Takes Spotlight In Nationwide Protests

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Focus of the antiwar movement's "spring offensive" shifted from the nation's capital to Boston today where 4,000 demonstrators tried in vain to shut down the John F. Kennedy Federal Building before police charged to disperse them.

Fewer than 75 protesters turned out at the appointed time for a demonstration at the South Vietnamese embassy this morning in Washington, where more than 12,000 persons have been arrested in the past three days.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., told the Women's National Democratic Club in Washington the antiwar militants had hurt the cause of peace through "foolish and useless" acts on the streets of the capital.

Other demonstrations and sit-ins were staged yesterday in San Francisco, Madison, Wisc., Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, College Park, Md., and elsewhere.

Climax of the 18 days of antiwar protests across the country came in Washington, where an estimated 1,500 demonstrators invaded the Capital grounds, and in Boston where 25,000 persons held a day of mostly peaceful protests.

Boston police shoved some protesters out of the way to clear a path for government workers as the demonstrators ringed the federal building this morning.

Inside, workers — some of whom had arrived an hour or more early — went about their routine duties. Some watched the scene briefly from windows. Warren Blair, deputy police superintendent, said the antiwar element had been denied its prime goal.

"They said they wanted to shutdown the building, while our intention was to keep it open. The building is open," Blair said at mid-morning.

There were several arrests, police reported.

In Washington the steam appeared to have gone out of the movement.

The demonstrators on hand an hour and a half after the announced time of the rally were greatly outnumbered by rather relaxed police.

Troops and police were withdrawn earlier from bridges, traffic circles and other posts they had guarded in force since Monday.

About 1,200 protesters were arrested Wednesday when they crowded onto the steps of the U.S. Capitol for a rally promoting their peace treaty and to air other demands.

As the Washington protests diminished, a controversy heightened over the tactics police used in mass arrests totaling some 12,800 from Monday through Wednesday.

Police were accused of holding many of those arrested for up to 18 hours without being

Pollution Control Statistics Hit

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — An annual report, again claiming air pollution controls in the Bay Area are doing a great job, was shot down yesterday.

The report by the staff of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District glowingly cited a 17 per cent reduction in total emissions from all sources in the six-county district from 1969 to 1970. (Another pollution control district story, page 16.)

But a majority of district directors, in an unprecedented challenge to the annual report, declared they did not believe the claim.

The annual inventory of all significant air contamination sources in the past has been used by the staff and board to promote their claims that district regulations were working well. But the composition of the 12-member board has changed radically with the addition of new members who have shown a tendency to question the staff on virtually everything.

The strongest criticism was by director Nevin K. Hiester, Portola Valley city councilman and an expert on air pollution. "I don't really believe the 1970 results — I don't really believe things in 1970 were better than in 1969," he said.

Any measurable drop in air pollution, Dr. Hiester suggested, "must have been due to some other fortunate set of circumstances," and not to the effectiveness of district regulations or air pollution control equipment.

"I guess you'd have to say that I am an unbeliever," he said. "I know that air pollution equipment just doesn't work that well."

Dr. Hiester, a member of the board for the past year, is a chemical engineer and head of air and water pollution work at the Stanford Research Institute. His first work with the institute 22 years ago was on the smog problem in Los Angeles.

Director Wyman Hicks, a Sausalito city councilman, noted that the annual report dealt only in tons of five major pollutants but ignored the relative health effects of some of the more poisonous ones.

He urged that an independent expert judge the district's performance and evaluate the data in the report. Since the district's staff both enforces the regulations and evaluates their effectiveness, Hicks said, "there's a tendency to say how well we're doing."

Chief Administrative Officer D. J. Callaghan reluctantly agreed to consider Hicks's proposal, but said he did not know "who else has the capability" to evaluate the data.

Thuy Links Nixon To Dollar Flap

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy told the Paris peace talks today that President Nixon's refusal to set a date for withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam was the cause of the dollar troubles in Europe and the anti-war protests in Washington.

Thuy also complained that Nixon, in recent statements, "reiterated the absurd demand of mutual withdrawal" of both U.S. and North Vietnamese troops and said this put "on the same footing the American aggressor and the Vietnamese people fighting against aggression."

Thuy's statements appeared to block efforts by U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce to draw from the North Vietnamese a sign they were willing to pull their troops out of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Hanoi refuses to acknowledge the presence of its troops there.

"Last week a spokesman for your side indicated that if discussions on certain questions could arrive at positive results, then all military personnel participating in the war can go home," Bruce said.

Thuy said last week that af-

MARK VS. DOLLAR

Visiting Yanks In Money Quandary

LONDON (UPI) —Not long ago, all an American tourist in Europe needed to buy a meal or a hotel room was a big enough roll of greenbacks. Today, he was lucky if his traveler's check was accepted— at up to 16 per cent less than its official dollar value.

The dollar always has been "as good as gold," in theory, because for every dollar the United States issued it put aside a quantity of gold to back it up. Technically, any country could cash in its dollars for their value in gold at $35 an ounce.

But, for the past 20 years, the United States has been spending more money abroad for its imports and tourism than it has been getting back for its own exports—an unfavorable balance of trade. It also has not been putting aside enough gold to back up its currency.

Financial experts have estimated the amount of dollars circulating abroad—called "Eurodollars" and beyond the U.S. Government's direct control—at between $35 billion and $50 billion. The U.S. monetary gold stock, however, is less than $11 billion.

As the American balance of payments deficit continued and the Eurodollars piled up, foreign countries found themselves stuck with a currency they were unable to convert or absorb any longer in the face or increasing inflation.

Bankers, businessmen and speculators in Europe began betting against the dollar and for the West German Deutschemark. They have confidence in West Germany's booming economy and the country's high reserves of gold and currencies.

There had been strong rumors for the past six months that the mark and possibly several other strong European currencies would be revalued upwards. In effect, this would mean devaluing the dollar in terms of those currencies. So, the bankers, businessmen and speculators have sought to cash in by selling dollars and buying marks.

After it purchased an estimated $2.2 billion this week

Dollar Crisis Spreads To Japan

BONN (UPI) —The West German government said today it was postponing its decision on the monetary crisis involving marks and dollars until it could seek joint action with France and the other four members of the European Common Market.

The money crisis spread to Japan where banks suspended trading in the German mark because of its strength against the dollar. Between $300 and $350 million flooded in to buy Japanese yen and the Bank of Japan intervened with massive purchases to keep the dollar within one per cent of the official exchange of 360 yen to the dollar. Tokyo's foreign exchange banks awaited government guidance on whether to resume dollar exchanges Friday.

Government sources expressed pessimism on chances of Paris joining in a common move to stem the flood of dollars inundating Germany and other West European nations. France under Charles de Gaulle attacked the dollar but in recent months has tried to support it.

Official money markets in Germany remained closed for the second day. Unofficial trading in dollars was sparse and nervous, commercial banks reported. At noon a dollar was bringing only 3.57 marks compared with the official exchange rate of 3.66 marks. This meant a mark was worth 28.2 cents instead of 27.3 cents.

Initially Chancellor Willy Brandt's government planned to make and announce a decision after Friday's cabinet meeting. But spokesman said the cabinet would meet instead on Saturday or Sunday after the crisis is discussed by the Common Market ministers of economics and finance in Brussels on Saturday.

The government was inclined towards ending the mark's fixed exchange rate and letting it float to its natural level as at least a temporary way out of the crisis, parliamentary sources said.

Government sources said either an upward revaluation of the mark to a new fixed parity, or some form of exchange controls was not excluded.

Parents Back Kentfield Teacher

By WAT TAKESHITA

A dozen parents and teachers rose yesterday to the defense of a guitar-strumming Kentfield schoolteacher, who faces dismissal just before completing her third year at Wolfe Grade School.

Joanne Pocta, first grade teacher since Sept. 1, 1968, would win tenure if she worked next school year, but she was given notice on March 12.

Miss Pocta and her attorney, Jerome Berg of San Francisco, are fighting the dismissal at a hearing at Marin Civic Center before Paul A. Winton, a hearing officer from the state Office of Administrative Procedure in San Francisco.

Berg contends that Miss Pocta is being ousted because her "informal" classroom methods, which, he said, are loved by children and parents alike, are frowned on by the new principal, Roy L. Smith, who was transferred from Greenbrae School to Wolfe Grade School last fall.

Berg declared that Smith and Supt. Anthony C. Bacich are trying to clamp down on the informal teaching methods of teachers like Miss Pocta and impose a traditional authoritarian approach.

"It's a difference in philosophy, between the rigid, structured approach and the human approach," said Berg.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, representing the Kentfield School District, denied that the difference is between teaching philosophies. He pointed out that Basil Scalabrini, a bearded, long-haired third-grade teacher is even more informal than Miss Pocta but is highly regarded at Wolfe Grade School.

Scalabrini, who is also a member of the San Anselmo School District Board, testified in defense of Miss Pocta yesterday.

Miss Pocta is accused of inability to control her classes and lack of proper organization.

Called to the witness stand by Godino, Superintendent Bacich testified he has nothing against informal classroom teaching. "But I would characterize Miss Pocta's classroom as loose rather than informal," said Bacich. He explained she does not seem to have a definite goal or plan of action for students.

Principal Smith told the hearing officer that Miss Pocta did not deal sternly enough with misbehaving pupils and allowed students to walk around at will.

Eugene Hensch, principal for two years before Smith, said he, too, was concerned with lack of proper planning in Miss Pocta's class. He acknowledged that she showed some improvement in the second year but needed more improvement to rate tenure.

But parents and other teachers disagree. They paraded to the witness stand yesterday to describe Miss Pocta as a "beautiful" teacher who worked wonders with pupils, especially the problem children and slow learners.

Mary Martis, vice president of the Wolfe Grade Parent-Teacher Association, said Miss Pocta, instead of belittling a problem child, would quietly point to good behavior by other students and get better results than through scolding. Mrs. Martis said she also saw the teacher take her pupils to one corner and captivate them by strumming on her guitar and having them recite poems in tune with the music.

Margaret Drake, clinical psychologist, whose child was in Miss Pocta's class, testified that the teacher motivates children and makes them enthusiastic.

Under questioning by Berg, Mrs. Drake described how Miss Pocta dealt with a boy who spilled a glass of juice at a party. "A tense, authoritarian teacher might have scolded him in front of everyone. But she just asked him quietly to pick it up. It never became a problem, and no one became tense."

"She doesn't handle such a situation as a discipline matter," said Mrs. Drake. "She handles it as a learning situation."

Every teacher and parent who took the stand heaped similar praise on Miss Pocta for being an effective teacher with control over her classes at all times.

Attorney Berg said more than 30 parents and teachers, including almost every teacher in Wolfe Grade School, volunteered to speak up for Miss Pocta. With the third day of the hearing completed yesterday, Berg said he still has 10 or 15 more witnesses to call.

When the hearing is completed in June, Winton said he will write a proposed decision on Miss Pocta and submit it to the the Kentfield School District board of trustees, which has the final say on whether or not the probationary teacher will be rehired for the coming school year.

Bicycle Rider Hurt In Crash

Police said Heon's westbound bicycle collided with a southbound car driven by Gary Leonard Miller, 16, of 18 Kristin Lane, Novato, at 8 a.m.

Heon was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

WHAT TWA DID FOR COACH...

Last Fall TWA introduced Ambassador Service, a whole new way to fly for the coach passenger.

There's the new Twin Seat. If the plane's not crowded, it can be three across, two across or even a couch.

You'll find a choice of three international meals. With wines, champagnes and liqueurs from around the world.[1]

The only problem was, first class started to look dull by comparison, so...

TWA NOW DOES FOR 1ST CLASS.

...we took out those old overstuffed first class seats. And put in all new overstuffed first class seats.

We put in a choice of five meals, the best you'll find on any airline, anywhere.

After dinner, settle back, and we present a choice of two movies on every movie flight. One for general audiences, one for mature.

Next time you're flying across the United States take a TWA Ambassador Flight from San Francisco or Oakland[2] International Airport.

Coach or first class, nobody else gives you anything like it.

1. Movies and alcoholic beverages available at nominal cost in coach. Movies by Inflight Motion Pictures, Inc. 2. Ambassador Service from Oakland to Chicago.

TWA's NEW AMBASSADOR SERVICE.

Tax Reform Cry In Reagan Flap

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democrats and Republicans alike today blamed California's tax structure and not Gov. Ronald Reagan for the fact he paid no state income tax despite being a millionaire with a $44,100 salary.

New cries were heard for tax reform —from Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston and California legislators of both parties.

"It's not the governor's fault he doesn't have any tax liability," said Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland. The governor is doing what is perfectly legal and proper under the law. Our problem is that the law is bad."

But the liberal Democrat did observe that Reagan was like the welfare recipients he deplores who take advantage of legal loopholes to gain higher relief checks.

"It's exactly the same thing," Petris said, "except the governor's situation applies to people at the top of the income level and welfare applies to those at the bottom."

The California Welfare Rights Organization designated Reagan "the highest paid welfare recipient in the state" and facetiously termed him "one of the 'truly needy.' " Meanwhile, Reagan—who disclosed Tuesday he paid no state income tax for 1970 because of investment losses —refused to say whether he also paid no federal tax. A state tax official said he "probably" didn't.

The governor scolded inquiring newsmen for an "invasion of privacy" and admonished one persistent reporter, "aren't you ashamed enough?"

Cranston joined many of his Democratic colleagues in blaming the system and not the governor.

"I do not suggest he evaded the law," the Senator told a Sacramento news conference at which he called for closing both state and federal tax loopholes.

The franchise tax board reported that in 1969 there were 71,500 taxpayers in the $40,000 to $50,000 income bracket who paid some tax. Only 176 did not.

Reagan's salary recently rose to $49,100 and under normal circumstances his state income tax for the current year would be $2,794.

Assembly Democratic leader Walter A. Karabian of Monterey Park recalled that Reagan in 1969 told the legislature, "the burden of taxation should fall equally on all taxpayers in proportion to their income."

Reagan was first asked about his tax status during his weekly news conference after a student radio station at Sacramento State College broadcast a rumor he had paid no income tax.

"I was confident of the information because it came from a personal observation," said the student broadcaster, journalism major Rosemarie King. She would not elaborate.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Border Sealed

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Radio Pakistan said today federal army troops have sealed off East Pakistan's southeastern border with India and were "mopping up" rebel Bengali forces in the interior of the region.

The official radio also announced that a planeload of food was dropped Wednesday to two offshore islands that were among the hardest hit in last November's cyclone and tidal wave and that have been without emergency food supplies since the start of the civil war March 25.

India and Pakistan appeared to remain stalemated in negotiations to exchange their diplomats from closed down posts in Calcutta and the East Pakistani capital of Dacca.

Kent Protesters

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—About 75 diehard student demonstrators camped for the second straight night outside a Kent State University building after a recruiting march on the campus lost support for the sit-in.

Fifty of the protesters huddled together early today under the portico of Rockwell Hall, a building which houses the ROTC offices. Twenty-five others camped in a large green tent pitched on the lawn. A light chilly rain was falling.

Earlier in the evening about 175 attended a meeting in the campus auditorium with several administrators to discuss the ROTC program. As the meeting broke up about 100 marched together from dormitory to dormitory urging others to join them in the demonstration at Rockwell Hall.

Saving Wildlife

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—The British Columbia provincial government has introduced legislation to protect rare or endangered species of wildlife. The bill prohibits hunting or chasing game with snowmobiles and regulates the carrying of firearms.

Big Forest Fire

RESERVE, N.M. (UPI)— Expert Indian crews battled a roaring, wind-fanned fire in the Gila National Forest today while firefighters from four states worked to control blazes which blackened 24,000 acres in two other national forests. The "man-caused" fire in the Gila National Forest in southwestern New Mexico has burned 1,300 acres of pine and grassland and continued to burn uncontrolled today.

"It's in very isolated and rugged country," said Jack Foster, fire control officer. "There are a lot of canyons which make it difficult to send in men."

Foster said 120 men, most of the Indians, tried to establish firelines around the blaze which was whipped by winds of 50 miles an hour.

New York Unrest

A policeman, Stephen Luisa, 31, was wounded in the shoulder by a high powered rifle slug while riding in his patrol car about 30 blocks from the heart of the disturbance in Brooklyn's Brownsville district.

A relative calm returned to the predominantly Negro neighborhood early today, partially due to the heavy police concentration on the streets and a light rain which began falling shortly after midnight.

The fire department reported 120 fires were set between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 1 a.m. today. Officials said 13 policemen and 15 firemen were injured during the day and 26 persons were arrested, most of them on larceny and felonious assault charges.

Auto Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government told automakers today it would fully enforce strict antipollution standards even if it meant the Americans would have to pay more for cars that may run less efficient.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, made the statement at the start of EPA hearings on progress by the industry toward reaching standards calling for virtual elimination of auto exhaust pollutants by the time 1975 and 1976 cars are made.

The standards, enacted by Congress last year, require a 90 percent reduction in pollutants compared with emission levels from 1970 and 1971 models.

Ford and Volkswagen expressed pessimism about their ability to meet the standards and said even a successful system might raise gasoline costs by 30 per cent to motorists.

St. Mary's Is Dedicated

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Roman Catholic Church dedicated its newest cathedral Wednesday with police restraining pickets outside and 3,000 persons of all faith inside attending a modern English mass.

Traditional church pagantry was largely subdued at the historic ceremony on Cathedral Hill near downtown San Francisco.

The $7 million St. Mary's of the Assumption—which church leaders now call "The People's Cathedral"-has been controversial throughout its construction.

It was criticized by some for its striking untraditional architecture and by others on the basis that cathedral building itself is an outdated enterprise.

The prayers of papal delegate Archibishop Luigi Ramondi at the doors of the cathedral were drowned out by shouts of "power to the people" from a band of about 100 demonstrators.

But once inside the huge domed church, hundreds of priests, nuns and lay people of all faiths peacefully attended the simple mass of dedication.

The picketing demonstrators included barefooted friars, hippies, a group of Spanish-American activists, and one man carrying a large cross draped with black cloth.

Most of them were objecting that the money spent on the cathedral should have gone to the poor.

San Francisco Archbishop Joseph McGucken has frequently defended building the cathedral on grounds that he had "a mandate" from the people who contributed the money for it. He said the same people contribute more than $2 million a year for charity in the archdiocese.

The new cathedral replaced one that burned in 1962.

Otto Hoefler Named To Larkspur Planning Seat

Otto Hoefler, 53, of 220 Eliseo Drive was appointed to the Larkspur Planning Commission last night, to fill a vacancy created by the resignation last month of Joseph P. Picetti.

The Larkspur City Council voted the appointment after spending an hour and 10 minutes in closed session, interviewing candidates. Hoefler's term will run through 1974.

The appointee is an assistant to the president of Chevron Oil Co. of San Francisco, an affiliate of Standard Oil Co. He is a licensed civil engineer.

Councilmen said they had considered both the abilities of the prospective commissioners and preservation of the overall geographic representation on the commission, in deciding the appointment.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

MOVIES — Granted Charles Kessler and Seth D. Morgan of San Francisco a permit, good through Dec. 31, to operate a movie house, showing family rated films, in a remodeled store at 1127 Magnolia Avenue weekdays from 6 to 11:30 p.m.

SIGNS — Approved a 32-square-foot sign marking the site of the future Bank of America branch at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road, in place of the 160-square-foot sign originally requested; tentatively settled the problem of the controversial Minorca Co. billboards on Highway 101 by agreeing with developer Niels J. Schultz Jr. that the signs should be made smaller, painted to resemble state highway signs, and should simply point the way for traffic to Greenbrae, Larkspur and Bon Air.

ABATEMENT — After discovering that through staff error the city was trying to abate the home of Helen Martin Sharp at 2 Nightingale Court instead of her rental property at 302 Madrone Avenue, halted proceedings and ordered John W. Appleton, city building-planning superintendent to give Mrs. Sharp a list of building code violations found in the old dwelling. Abatement action first began against the building in the mid-1960s.

BUDGET — After learning from City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst that the first draft of the 1971-72 city budget will be ready by May 14, set adjourned meetings for 7:30 p.m. June 1 and 2 to review the budget. The council asked Bathurst to invite the Larkspur Library Board to the June 1 session.

FERRY TERMINAL — Adopted a resolution pledging continued city support to Golden Gate Bridge District proposals to use the Hutchinson Quarry property as a Central Marin terminal.

PLANNING COUNCIL — After rejecting pleas in March by the Larkspur Town Meeting to join the City-County Planning Council, voted to join the organization on a year's trial basis.

SAN QUENTIN — Postponed to June 3 action on City of Novato resolution seeking state funds to offset Marin County tax burden of court cases involving San Quentin Prison inmates.

BUSINESS LICENSE — Received from Harlan Barry, Bathurst's assistant, proposed revisions to the city's business license and closeout sale ordinances. Councilmen agreed that the proposals needed further revision, and said they would send written suggestions to Barry before a draft is turned over to City Atty. Robert W. Elliott or presented to the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce.

OVERCROSSING — Adopted a resolution urging rebuilding the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's narrow old span over Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East, a 14-foot-wide bottleneck on the road to San Quentin Prison and the possible future ferryboat terminal at the Hutchison quarry site. Bathurst said some $50,000 in state funds is available for the work.

TOWN MEETING — Heard a request from Joan Sestak, chairman of the Larkspur Town Meeting held Saturday, for a session with the council on the gathering's recommendations. Mayor Earl J. Grady Jr. said the talk might be put on the agenda of any special May meetings, or a nonbudget meeting in June.

FENCE — Postponed to June 3 action on the planning commission recommendations concerning the Candrian Fence controversy and appeal.

CLOSED SESSION — Discussed in closed session with Elliott the status of the city's suit against the Marin County Flood Control District over an old force main break and a property owner's suit against the city in the same break, but took no action.

STOP SIGNS — Approved four-way stop sign installations at Dartmouth Drive and Tulane Avenue, Hillview Gardens.

All council members were present.

BIDS FAREWELL — Dorothy Giambastiani stands outside the little post office she tended since 1948 in San Geronimo. She has retired to a new home in Oregon and plans to travel throughout the country — from Alaska to Texas — visiting relatives. But the old post office remains.

BUSY RETIREMENT TIME

Postmaster At San Geronimo Bids Goodbye After 23 Years

By M. STREET BROOKS

The signboard over the San Geronimo Post Office is weathered, the letters shades lighter than when Dorothy Giambastiani took over as postmaster 23 years ago.

The weathered look wears well in the rustic setting. A llama grazes with the mares just across an unnamed creek on Creamery Road, and a bulletin board in front of the shingle covered one-room post office advertises a young Alpine milking goat for $70 and a "reasonably priced'' used western saddle.

The back door of the post office was just a 10-second walk from Mrs. Giambastiani's kitchen, but last weekend she left the post office and home behind to retire to a new home near a daughter and son-in-law in Aumsville, Ore.

The post office remains open, served by officer-in-charge Joan Falk of 25 Tamarack Drive, San Geronimo.

"I feel sad about leaving," she said last week while sorting letters. "The post office has become a part of my life. I'm going to miss my friends."

She isn't planning on sitting home. "I have five acres up there so I'll have plenty to keep me busy. I'll do a little gardening and sewing. I also plan to visit a sister in Boston, a son in Alaska and a brother in Texas."

When she moved to San Geronimo from San Francisco with her husband and six children in 1948, Mrs. Giambastiani hoped to work some day in the little post office next door. A few months later she got her chance when Postmaster Elaine Stockdale moved with her family to Sebastapol.

There wasn't as much work then. The post office was classified as fourth class service, but stamp sales increased and several years ago the office was reclassified for third class service.

Still, the 64-year-old postmaster said, "it was a peaceful job except at Christmas time when I got rushed a bit."

The shingle covered little building — only nine feet wide and about 20 feet deep — is heated by the old wood burning stove that was there in 1948 and packages are still weighed on a big steel Fairbanks scale.

She worked behind the rows of glass fronted boxes with letter combination locks.

The community changed during Mrs. Giambastiani's tenure.

"It used to be mostly retired people," she recalled. "Now they're mostly young people. Quite a few hippies — they're friendly."

In 1954 Mrs. Giambastiani was ordered to close the post office and lower the flag, but residents wrote letters to congressmen asking them to keep the San Geronimo Post Office open.

"Just the day before it was scheduled to close I received a telegram from Hubert Scudder (late congressman) telling me to keep it open," Mrs. Giambastiani said.

Firebombing At Birch Bookstore

CHICO (UPI) —A firebomb was thrown Wednesday night at the American Opinion bookshop operated by the John Birch Society, causing minor damage.

The front of the building was scorched but no other damage was reported and there were no injuries.

Two suspects were seen leaving the scene in an old pickup truck but they were not apprehended, officers said.

ANTIWAR

told they were under arrest or allowed to contact friends or relatives. A number of bystanders also were picked up in some arrests.

A police department spokesman said 1,873 demonstrators were still in custody at 9:30 a.m. EDT today. They were being processed out either on bond or collateral.

Chicago Seven defendant Abbie Hoffman was arrested in New York on charges of interstate travel to incite to riot and assaulting a police officer during the demonstration.

Two Chicago Seven defendants, Rennie Davis and John Froines, were arrested previously on charges of conspiracy to violate the rights of citizens and to interfere with government employees.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld a federal judge's ruling that demonstrators still in jail from Monday's protests must either be charged specifically or released immediately. D.C. Superior Court Judge Alfred J. Burka, however, refused early today to order the immediate release of all those arrested during demonstrations at the Capitol Wednesday. Burka said he could not rule without first hearing a trial of the request for a writ of habeas corpus brought by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson, reponding to the storm of sonctroversy surrounding his department's arrest procedures — including absence of specific charges — issued a statement Wednesday taking full responsibility for the arrests.

At the University of Maryland campus 10 miles away, 1,000 demonstrators blocked major highways resulting in nine injured protesters and nine injured police. Gov. Marvin Mandel declared a state of emergency and National Guardsmen patrolled the campus today.

Antiwar protesters Wednesday also blocked traffic in San Francisco. A young blonde securities analyst, who marched in an antiwar rally last month, snuffed out a burning American flag against her body.

The demonstrations coincided with Kent State University ceremonies on the first anniversary of the slaying of four students during an antiwar rally. There also were protests in New York, Boston and Chicago.

Peace demonstrators moved against Selective Service headquarters and military recruiters in Phoenix; Philadelphia; Missoula, Mont.; Eugene, Ore.; Salt Lake City; San Rafael and Fresno, Calif. In Pittsburgh, 25 young men armed with toy pop guns shot 25 women dressed as Vietnamese in a "massacre."

Eight peace demonstrators in Philadelphia attempted and failed to arrest the regional supervisor of the Selective Service Systems for alleged war crimes.

At least 15 young persons were arrested during afternoon and evening skirmishes on the 35,000-student campus of the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Rock and bottle throwing students tangled with police who retaliated with tear gas against the demonstrators protesting the Indochina war.

Demonstrators also marched in Milwaukee and before that protest was over six young persons who were under arrest.

Numerous antiwar rallies in the New York metropolitan area for the most part were peaceful with more than 10,000 persons attending a rally in mid-Manhattan to hear speakers demanding an immediate end to U.S. involvement in Indochina.

There were brief scuffles in Central Park between groups of students who fought for control of the podium during an antiwar meeting.

About a thousand antiwar protesters demonstrated outside bank and oil company headquarters in San Francisco, then broke into small groups which committed vandalism and blocked traffic in the city's financial district.

They were pursued by police, who arrested 102 persons, most of them for failure to disperse or disturbing the peace. At least five persons were hurt, none seriously.

The vandalism included paint spread on the sidewalk in front of the Bank of America's world headquarters and windows broken at three other banks. Traffic, including the city's famed cable cars, was disrupted temporarily.

Closed Session

The Dixie School District Board of Trustees will hold a special closed meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the administration office at 35 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, to hear charges against and possibly fire an employee, according to Joseph B. Goff, assistant superintendent.

Two $1,000 Scholarships Are Given

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Students from Novato and Petaluma last night were awarded $1,000 scholarships in the annual Bank of America Achievement Awards program at the Hilton Hotel. Two Marin students received $250 awards.

Winners of the $1,000 first place scholarship are Gregory Griffin of 160 Country Club Drive, Novato and Wendy Dragoo of 11 Haven Drive, Petaluma. Griffin's award was for his studies in science and mathematics at Novato High School; Miss Dragoo, a student at Petaluma High School, won her award for work in liberal arts. Only four top awards were made in the Bay Area.

Other winners were Dorene Closson of 353 Hyacinth Way, San Rafael, $250 for her work in vocational arts at Terra Linda High School and Frances Cook of 403 Magee Avenue, Mill Valley, $250 for her work in fine arts at Tamalpais High School.

Winners were selected on the basis of academic and extracurricular activity records and an interview before a panel of judges consisting of business and civic leaders.

The awards were presented by Al Gilman, regional vice president in charge of all bank branches in the North Bay and North Coast counties.

DRAFT

Mrs. Kinzer, using a bullhorn, attempted to order the protesters from the building. Her voice did not carry over the mournful refrains of peace songs.

The demonstrators, once removed from the building, were "handcuffed" with plastic strip devices and loaded aboard a jail-bound bus.

Four juveniles were taken separately to juvenile hall.

Thirty-three persons were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of unlawful assembly, failure to disperse and malicious obstruction of a public place.

Within four hours all were released on their promise to appear in Marin Municipal Court later.

Released to appear Tuesday were:

Steven John Loegering, 19, of 1132 Second Street, Novato; James Gordon Digby, 22, of 672 Cherry Street, Novato; Neil Lionel Edwards, 26, of 8 Laurel Street, Mill Valley; Richard Carol Sloan, 35, of Lagunitas; Michael Drew Mendelson, 25, of Berkeley; Eric Signard Suenson, 20, of 15 La Crescenta Way, San Rafael; Michael Alan Glass, 18, of 1 Shell Court, Mill Valley; Kenneth John Cottrell, 23, of 229 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley, and Ronald Keith Nicholas, 32, of 672 Cherry Street, Novato.

Released to appear next Wednesday were:

Wendi Anne Killins, 19, and Wilmar Eugene Friesen, 21, both of 1 Shell Court, Mill Valley; Kenneth William Bott, 19, of 100 East Manor Drive, Mill Valley; Robert Alan Le Blane, 23, of 406A D Street, San Rafael; Gregory Carlton Fearon, 22, of 162 Hillside Avenue, San Rafael; Carol Marie Quellet, 20, of 111 H Street, San Rafael.

Michele Tormanen, 19, of 86 Laurel Lane, Fairfax; Deborah Lee Neill, 18, of 33 Jefferson Street, San Rafael; James Russell Allen, 23, of 28 Chester Avenue, Fairfax; Mark Nolan Werner, 22, of 229 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito, and Daryl Kent Grossman, 23, of 817 D Street, San Rafael.

Released to appear next Thursday were:

Thomas Louis Oleari, 22, of 28 Chester Avenue, Fairfax; Bryan Thomas Geddy, 23, of 65 Wood Lane, Fairfax; Richard Alan Raznikov, 24, of 12 Cheateau Place, San Rafael ; William Gaston Begelow, 19, of 120 Sewart Drive, Tiburon; Lillian Lee Cunningham, 19, of 239 D Street, San Rafael; Mary Blair Willard, 22, of 1106 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, and Gary Mathew Bjork, 18, of 2188 Danberry Lane, San Rafael.

Released to appear May 18 were:

Debbie Webb, 20, of 21 Stetson Avenue, Kentfield; Robert Nelson Well, 24, of 610 Davidson Street, Novato; Randy Clifton Patterson, 22, of 201 Kent Avenue, Apt. 8, Kentfield; James Kimo Campbell, 24, of 50 Fremont Road, San Rafael; William Griffin Zane, 26, of 127B Laurel Drive, Fairfax, and Lynn Zimmerman, 21, of 544 Gate R Road, Sausalito.

Dr. Hiester added that despite the tonnage figures, "I don't really know what's happening." He also objected to the failure to round off the figures, citing a claim that automobiles generated 6,130 tons of contaminants a day.

"We're fooling ourselves and fooling the people who read them," he said of such precise figures.

Callaghan acknowledged that the figures were engineering estimates, but good estimates, accurate within 15 per cent of actual tonnages.

His claim of accuracy was challenged by Dr. David Mage, a chemical engineer and professor at San Jose State College. Mage said his measurements last month of Carbon monoxide in San Jose were 120 per cent higher than those at the same time by the district elsewhere in the same city.

Director Dianne Feinstein, a San Francisco supervisor, and board chairman Victor Calvo, a Santa Clara supervisor, stated their disbelief of the staff's claim of a 17 per cent cut in emissions. So did director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View city councilman, who proposed that major industries monitor their emissions continuously instead of having district inspectors check them periodically.

Callaghan said industry's views should be solicited before considering such a requirement.

Mrs. Will Siri of the West Contra Costa County Conservation League observed from the audience that the claimed reduction was "not evident to us — we still have sore throats and headaches in North Richmond."

The only director to defend the staff report was Robert W. Hoyer, Clayton city councilman. He objected that criticism of the report was "somewhat unscientific."

Eleven of the 12 board members were present.

Dr. Milton Feldstein, district director of technical services, cited figures he said showed generally improved air quality over the past year.

The annual staff report said that toal emissions were cut last year by 1,570 tons a day to a new low of 7,611. It said this was the largest one-year reduction since estimates first were made for 1955.

"For the first time, estimated daily emissions have fallen below the 1955 rate, which was 8,260 tons a day," it declared. This was despite a 49 per cent growth of population and a 96 per cent increase in the number of automobiles since 1955, it said.

If no air pollution controls had been imposed, the total would have grown to 16,700 tons a day last year, according to the report.

It attributed the 1970 drop in emissions to the closing of two major industrials plants, the prohibition of backyard burning, the continuing shift by oil refineries and power plants from oil to gas fuel, and improved controls on vehicle emissions.

The report detailed contaminants by the 90 sources emitting over one-tenth of a ton a day, all but nine of them emitting under 10 tons a day.

Of these nine, the top five accounted for almost one third of the 1,479 tons from all stationary sources. They were: American Semlting and Refining Co. of Crockett, 93.7 tons; Pacific Gas and Electric Company's nine plants combined, 86.4 tons; Standard Oil Co. of California of Richmond, 73 tons; Phillips Petroleum Co. of Martinez, 70.2 tons, and Shell Oil Co. of Martinez, 53.4 tons.

ter the date of U.S. withdrawal has been set "all the troops participating in the war can then rapidly regain their homes."

There was more talk today about cease-fires in Vietnam but no progress toward one at today's 112th session of the talks that have dragged along for two years with no visible sign of progress.

Bruce referred to a cease-fire proposal last week by Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, the chief Viet Cong negotiator, as a "sham" and suggested instead immediate negotiations on President Nixon's call for a cease-fire-in-place.

In her proposal last week Madame Binh said the Viet Cong would cease firing on American soldiers who "abstain from hostile actions," an apparent follow up to a Viet Cong call for Americans to desert. She expanded on this today and said it applied to America's allies fighting in Vietnam.

Throughout the meeting was the oft-stated Communist position that there can be no progress until Nixon names a date for total U.S. withdrawal.

Rogers In Israel With Cairo Plan

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived in the Israeli capital today with a new peace plan from Cairo. He told the Israelis they had met the agonies of war and now must meet the agony of making peace.

Rogers' arrival statement in Tel Aviv where he landed on a flight from Cairo via Cyprus served to bring out the differences of opinion between Washington and Jerusalem over what has been termed in Washington as Israel's intransigence.

Cairo dispatches also indicated sharp differences between the United States and Egypt over a Middle East settlement.

"This is an unusual time in our history," Rogers said in Tel Aviv. "The nations in this area have the opportunity to take wise and decisive action. There are risks in agreeing to peace—-there are greater risks in failing to do so."

A crowd estimated by police at 70 persons appeared at the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv with signs reading "Rogers Go Home?" The demonstrators oppose the Rogers plan calling for withdrawal from Arab territory. But bigger demonstrations in Jerusalem were canceled by police request.

Rogers, cheered by American tourists at the King David Hotel in Jerusalem, began his Israeli mission by talking first with David Ben-Gurion, one of the founders of the Israeli republic and a man who has joined Rogers in asking for Israeli withdrawals in favor of a lasting peace.

Rogers, who conferred earlier today in Cairo with President Anwar Sadat, quoted President Nixon as saying Israel's security can come finally only from peace with the Arabs.

Rogers, carrying a letter from Nixon to Prime Minister Golda Meir, said he wasconvinced there may not be a "better opportunity for a long time to come" to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

must be done to impart new momentum to the negotiations under the auspices of Ambassador (Gunnar V.) Jarring," Rogers said before departing for Jerusalem.

from countries wanting marks in exchange, the West German Bundesbank (central bank) announced Wednesday it would stop buying dollars.

Banks in Austria, Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands followed suit. Portugal suspended all foreign exchange transactions because of the turmoil. The Bank of Israel suspended trading in German marks, Swiss and French francs and Dutch guilders. Trading in marks was suspended in Japan to bolster the dollar's value.

Britain, France, Italy and the Scandinavian countries continued to support the dollar by buying it at the lowest rate they could.

The dollar is in a unique position in international economic affairs because all other currencies in non-Communist countries are valued officially in terms of dollars. The United States, therefore, could not devalue the dollar, as other countries have their currencies, because any revaluation automatically would bring corresponding changes in the worth of other currencies.

If the mark revalued upward, however, the dollar would buy fewer marks and the effect would be one of a dollar devaluation.

It was inconceivable to many Americans flooding European capitals at the start of the heavy tourist season that Europeans were rolling in the welcome mat for the almighty dollar. Some reacted with open resentment and anger.

"We may cut our trip short and may even be prepared to say to hell with Europe and God bless America," Ted Markovic, a film editor from Glen Rock, N.J., said in Paris.

Mrs. Sally Senator of Pittsburgh, also in Paris, summed up her group's feelings this way: "The (Europeans) love the almighty dollar as we see it. They grab every penny out of it. They've forgotten the Marshall plan."

While banks in Paris and London continued to accept dollars, their counterparts in West Germany, Switzerland, The Netherlands, Austria, Belgium and Portugal closed their doors to American money. Some hotels also refused dollars.

But Americans generally were able to make other arrangements.

German Shipowners both advised the government against either an upward revaluation or a floating mark. They said either move would reduce the competitiveness of German exporters and shipowners, without striking at the cause of inflation, which they consider to be unjustified wage demands.

During the last monetary crisis in September, 1969, the Bonn government decided on a temporarily floating mark as a solution. After allowing it to float for just under four weeks, it was given a new fixed parity near the price at which it had levelled off in free trade.

The American dollar was the object of the heavy currency speculation that swept Europe this week, and it took so bad a buffeting that the West German government closed all money and gold markets until Monday. Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Austria also refused to buy U.S. dollars.

The money crisis moved on to Asia today when Japanese banks and markets opened following a one-day holiday Wednesday. The Japanese central bank bought more than $200 million in the morning session of the foreign exchange market.

Japanese Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda said the yen would not be revalued upward although it was one of the "strong" currencies being exchanged for dollars.

The reason the dollar is under attack is that people want to sell dollars to buy other currencies —German marks, Swiss francs or Japanese yen. Bankers, businessmen and speculators in Europe have been betting either the mark would be revalued upward or the dollar would be devalued.

While Germany's economy is booming, the United States has made deep outlays on the war in Indochina and its balance of payments deficit has been worsening.

Devaluation of the dollar was unlikely since it would not only lose value against such "strong" currencies as the mark, but also against all other currencies.

Vandals Hit Bank Branch

TIPTON (UPI) — Windows and the front glass doors at the Bank of America here were shattered by vandals early today.

Bank manager M. Abramson said three windows and both glass doors were broken. He estimated damage at between $500 and $1,000.

He said it appeared that a pipe or other blunt instrument was used to smash the glass.

The Tulare County sheriff's office said an investigation was underway.

LAND OF BROKEN LIVES

Two cars and a house teeter on the brink of a giant hole left Tuesday night by a cave-in at St. Jean Vianney, Quebec, which swallowed 40 homes in tons of muck described as "cold lava" and left three persons dead and 28 missing. When dawn arrived yesterday, mass evacuations in the small town of 2,000 began. According to officials many of the missing are feared to be children. The slides continued last night and there was the possibility of more today.

Reds Set Cease-Fire For Buddha

SAIGON, (UPI)—The Viet Cong tonight declared a 48-hour cease-fire in South Vietnam on the occasion of the 2,515th birth date of Buddha. The Saigon allies previously had announced they would observe a 24-hour truce.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam, political arm of the Viet Cong, announced in a communique the Communist cease-fire will run from 7 a.m. Saigon time Saturday (7 p.m. EDT Friday to 7 a.m. Monday.

The Communist truce declaration, broadcast over the Viet Cong's Liberation Radio and monitored in Saigon, came as a surprise. Allied commands had speculated the lateness of an announcement probably meant the Reds would not go along with the government cease-fire.

President Nguyen Van Thieu earlier today announced South Vietnam and its troop-contributing allies, the United States, South Korea, Thailand, Australia and New Zealand, would hold a 24-hour truce from noon Saturday (midnight EDT Friday) to noon Sunday.

Neither the Communist nor the allied cease-fires will apply to neighboring Cambodia and Laos where, along with South Vietnam, more than 70 per cent of the population is Buddhist.

The Communist communique said "that in respect for freedom of worship of the South Vietnamese people" the PRG had decided to stop attacks on troops of the Saigon government and its allies for 48 hours.

Use Of Rail Lines Drops In Britain

LONDON (UPI)—Britons had the use of only half the number of state-owned railway stations in 1969 compared with 10 years previously, official figures show.

There were 9,375 miles of route open to passenger traffic a drop from 14,063 miles in 1959. The number of passenger stations fell from 5,060 to 2,511 in the period.

Homeowners Group Picks New Slate

About 50 residents of Mill Valley's Enchanted Knolls attended the yearly general meeting of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association last night and elected a board of directors and officers for this year.

New board members are Nancy Wrisley, Richard Theide, John Chelini and Robert Rosson Jr. Retained on the board were Robert B. Rankin, Louis G. Millin and Carolyn Myers.

Rankin was reelected president and Mrs. Myers secretary. Other officers chosen were Millen, vice president, and Theide, treasurer.

Rankin said residents agreed to petition the city of Mill Valley for traffic signals at East Blithedale Avenue and Lomita Drive.

One resident was involved in an accident at the corner and —others have had close calls, Rankin said, because motorists often fail to stop at stop signs there.

Attempt Made To Set Blaze In Courthouse

Someone tried last night to set fire to the old Courthouse in San Rafael.

San Rafael firemen reported today that furniture and papers were piled in a room at the Fifth Street entrance and ignited. amage was estimated at $250.

At 8:19 p.m. an unidentified person went to the main firestation saying that smoke was coming from the building. Firemen quickly quelled the blaze before it could spread.

A witness, Frank Dantonio of Redwood City, said he was parked on Fourth Street in front of the building when he noticed three men enter the building through the front door, San Rafael police reported.

One man came out and then reentered the building, Dantonio said. The three came out and one man went to the water fountain at Fourth and Court streets to wash his hands, Cantonio said. He reported that he was about to call police because of the suspicious behavior of the men when the fire engines arrived.

Police reported that half of an aluminum front glass door had been broken to gain entry.

Soldier Arrested In Burglary Probe

A 21-year-old Larkspur soldier was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary after police received a report that he and another man were acting suspiciously around a Corte Madera home.

Arrested was Ronald Berg Goodrich, of 429 Elm Avenue, after he was identified by a witness as one of the men seen leaving the home of Henry Hulett, 140 Buena Vista at 6:30 p.m.

Goodrich was stopped as he walked along a nearby street. In his pocket, officers said, they found several Kennedy half dollars which were believed stolen during another residential burglary earlier that day.

The second man seen leaving the home was not caught.

Nothing was missing from the Hulett home, officers said.

Earlier, someone stole about $200 in cash from the home of Katherine S. Mitchell, 574 Chapman Drive.

Goodrich was booked into Marin County Jail where he was released on $1,000 bail and scheduled to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Brainerd Reelected

James Brainerd was elected last night to a third term as president of the Alto-Richardson Bay Volunteer Firemen's Association. Other new officers are: Laurent Haines, secretary; Harold Roberts, treasurer; Fred Foss, property clerk and Paul Mason and John Polacchi Sr., directors.

Secretary Of State To Challenge Campaign Ruling

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said today he would appeal directly to the state supreme court a lower court ruling that permits secret contributions to campaigns for or against measures on election ballots.

"If the lower court decision is allowed to stand, California voters will soon witness the most dishonest campaigns in America," Brown told a news conference at the Ambassador Hotel.

"The decision invites every special interest group in the country to rush into California and trick the voters with fraudulent advertising."

Brown had brought suit to force disclosure of campaign funds used to defeat Proposition 18 in the Nov. 3 election. It would have permitted use of a portion of gasoline tax funds for smog control and for development of a rapid transit system in the metropolitan areas of the state.

Oil companies had bitterly fought the proposition. Among the defendants was a group called "Californians Against the Street and Road Tax Trap."

Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall ruled Tuesday that the Elections Code section under which the suit was brought was unconstitutional. He said the section discriminated against contributors to campaigns involving initiative measures and favored donors to individual candidates.

Brown said he was taking the "extraordinary step" of bypassing the lower appelate courts because the matter was of such extreme urgency.

"Big corporations that pollute our air and water now have official court authority to run ballot campaigns behind a cloak of secrecy and I believe the Supreme Court must immediately correct this by upholding the public's right to know exactly who is supporting and opposing ballot measures," he said.

The lawsuit had been filed against three oil companies charging they gave a total of $95,000 in anonymous contributions in the campaign against Proposition 18.

Marshall dismissed the suit after defense attorneys, including those for Gulf, Mobil and Standard of California, challenged the constitutionality of the law.

Brown said his appeal will be filed early this week.

Prohibition went into effect Jan. 17, 1920 and was repealed Dec. 5, 1933.

Education Goals Task Force Named

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A 15-member committee of business and education leadeers was named Tuesday to draft a master plan for California higher education covering the remainder of the 1970s and the 1980s.

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education established the advisory committee to re-evaluate the 1960 master plan in light of increasing enrollment and decreasing financial resources.

Council director Owen Albert Knorr said the council wants "some brainstorming about who's going to go to college, how are they going to get there, how are we going to pay for it—the basic issues."

He said the committee would probably submit its report to the 1972 legislature.

Named to the advisory panel were Carlyle Reed, publisher of the Sacramento Union; David Hurford, Los Angeles; Donald Hart, Bakerfield; Louis Heilbron, San Francisco; Gordon Marshall, San Gabriel; Theodore Meriam, Chico; Burnham Emerson, San Francisco; Stanley Legro, San Diego;

Former state finance director Gordon Smith, San Francisco; Stephen Sugarman, Los Angeles; Dr. Paul Lawrence, San Francisco, regional commissioner of the U.S. Office of Education; Dr. Ivan Hinderaker, chancellor of the Unirsity of California at Riverside; Dr. rarmen Sarafian, president of Pasadena City College; Dr. Joseph Platt, president of Harvey Mudd College, and Thomas McGrath, president of Sonoma State College.

Trial Set In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A San Francisco man has pleaded innocent in Sonoma County Superior Court to charges growing out of the stabbing of a woman in Petaluma April 11.

A June 8 jury trial was set for Robert J. Rector, 36.

He is accused of assault with intent to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon in the stabbing of Icalee Fears, 34, of Petaluma, during a quarrel in Mrs. Fears's home.

Peace Marcher Saves The Flag From Burning

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An attractive blonde who marched in a peace parade last month saved a burning American flag ignited by protesters Wednesday when she pulled it from a pole and snuffed the flames out against her body.

Marcy Taylor, 25, a securities analyst for the Bank of America, rushed out of the firm's world headquarters into an antiwar demonstration on an outdoor plaza to extinguish the flames.

Miss Taylor, who was not hurt, kept the flag-25 per cent of it burned. She refused to return it to the demonstrators who had ignited the banner and tried to get it back to light again.

"I believe in peace," said Miss Taylor, who marched in a massive April 24 antiwar protest parade. "I will march for it anytime. But this kind of thing is wrong."

Winifred Baker To Conduct At Cathedral

Winifred Baker of San Rafael will conduct the Bach B Minor Mass as the first major choral-orchestral concert at the new St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco on May 23 at 2 p.m.

The performance will offer the first opportunity to evaluate the cathedral's acoustics with orchestra, organ and a large choir.

The choir will be the combined 185-voice San Francisco Civic Chorale and Marin Winifred Baker chorale, both regularly conducted by Miss Baker, and the 24-piece baroque orchestra will include many of the instrumentalists who played in last year's Bach festival in Carmel.

Soloists will include soprano Gwen Curatilo of Terra Linda, in her last San Francisco appearance before she leaves for a year's tour of Germany, where she will sing in Munich in October.

The concert is sponsored by the San Francisco Art Commission.

Guilty Verdict In 1969 Case

Edward K. Wachsman of San Rafael was not found guilty of a public nuisance charge in 1969, as may have been implied in an article in Tuesday's Independent-Journal.

Wachsman was found guilty in Marin Municipal Court in November 1969 of keeping a horse on property near his home without a city permit. A public nuisance charge was dismissed at that time.

Wachsman, who has continued to seek city approval for two horses on his property, failed again Monday night when the San Rafael City Council overruled a planning commission decision granting him a permit for the horses.

Planning Commission Nod For Housing Proposals

Final approval for two housing developments with a total of 30 units has been granted by the Tiburon Planning Commission, planning aide Jeanne McLean reported yesterday.

Approved were a 24-unit townhouse development on Red Hill and a six-lot single family subdivision in Porto Marino Estates.

Mrs. McLean said the townhouses are to be built on by Leonard Chan on Red Hill Circle. The single-family houses, she said, will be constructed by Deak and Co. on Geldert Drive.

Approval of the Porto Marino development was contingent on dedication of a path between Hacienda and Geldert drives for the use of Del Mar School pupils.

Consideration of a master plan for a three-story apartment-office building on Juanita Lane was continued until May 17 to allow the applicant, Robert E. Boat, to submit new drawings.

Mrs. McLean said the new plans will show traffic circulation and parking and the use of the existing El Borro restaurant, behind which the new structure is to be built.

Fire-O-Rama Set Saturday

Southern Sonoma fire units will take part Saturday in the annual Fire-O-Rama in Santa Rosa sponsored by the Sonoma County Firemen's Association.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. with a parade of 41 fire units, both new and vintage, from Fifth and E streets to the county fairgrounds. Demonstrations of fire-fighting techniques, including the laying of fire hose by a state Division of Forestry helicopter, will begin at 1 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

Besides the demonstrations, the Rohnert Park and Windsor fire departments will compete in a water fight.

Spelling Bee Winners

First in last Friday's contest was Kevin Lewis from S. Rafael's School; second, Nadine Niess from St. Anselm's School, and third, Daniel Dubuc from St. Patrick's School. The contest was held at St. Anselm's Parish Hall.

Meet Rus Walton, Columnist For I-J

RUS WALTON
New to editorial page

A new California political columnist is appearing this week on the editorial page of the Independent-Journal and will be a regular feature hereafter.

Actually, Rus Walton is not new either to reporting or to the Sacramento political scene. But his column is new to the Independent-Journal.

His "Capitol Report" will appear two or three times each week, alternating with the familiar "Affairs of State" column by Henry C. McArthur.

Walton is a former reporter and editor, was national public relations director of Citizens for Goldwater in 1964, and served until recently as secretary for program development in Gov. Ronald Reagan's office.

In addition to writing his column, he is now on the staff of California Journal, a monthly devoted to state governmental affairs published in Sacramento.

As may be inferred from his background, Walton is a political conservative.

CALLING ALL CAMERA FANS
By Ken Reichard

PICTURE HER ON MOTHER'S DAY

Family albums are generally full of pictures of the baby and the growing family at each stage of life, and that's all to the good. But there are occasions that remind us to focus on the adults in the family.

Mother's Day is such a time. We forget how many good reasons to photograph Mom there are. For one thing, everyone in the family wants pictures of her, so you can hardly take too many. For another, she's too often neglected in the picture parade.

And that's a mistake for the very good reason that mothers make marvelous photo subjects. Show her with her children and grandchildren as "props," or in the home she has created. With Dad, to reveal another side of here . . . and all by herself. If you can capture on film what she means to you and to us, you'll have a prize-winning picture for any album.

For Mother's Day and every special occasion, be sure you have plenty of film on hand. See us for the right film for your needs . . . and for expert developing and photo finishing, too.

STARS ABOVE

Hunting Dogs Are Interesting

By SHERMAN WALICER

The Hunting Dogs make up a constellation that is also dim and rather difficult to trace out, but there are a great many objects of telescopic interest within its borders.

The dogs belong to Bootes (the Herdsman or Bear Driver) and are restrained by a leash as they chase the Great Bear around the pole star. The northern dog is named Asterion and the other is Chara.

To locate the Hunting Dogs, face southward at 9 p.m. and look at the region of sky that is almost exactly overhead.

The constellation does have one fairly bright second-magnitude star, Cor Caroli (the Heart of Charles. It was named for Charles II of England at a time when it was the fashion to curry favor with royalty by naming a star or planet for them. Herschel, you may remember, tried to name the planet he discovered, Uranus, for George III of England, without success.

There is a star cluster (M-3) in this constellation which you might see as a faint hazy spot, but only if conditions are ideal and you have good eyesight. It is made up of thousands of suns and is known as the Whirlpool Nebula. It is more than 60 light-years across.

University Changes To Bilingual Status

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)— The University of Texas at San Antonio will be the first state-supported bilingual institution of higher education in the fall of 1973.

Plans call for the new school to have one or more bilingual professors in every major department. Students will spend half their time in English classes and half in Spanish.

ACLU Asks For Equal TV Time

NEW YORK (UPI) —ABC, CBS and NBC have been asked by the American Civil Liberties Union to provide time for immediate response to televised presidential speeches by persons who hold opposing views.

The best way of achieving wide debate, said the ACLU in a letter to the network presidents, is to obtain texts of presidential speeches before broadcast and make them available for persons with contrary views. Responses could be prepared by those disagreeing with the president's positions, and network commentators could provide the public with such diverse views.

However, the ACLU said, diversity would be best served by giving air time to advocates of other positions.

Families Get More Milk Than Realized

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Families probably are getting more "milk" in their diet than they realize. The extra comes from milk products.

The Nebraska Extension Service reports, for instance, that to make one pound of cheese, you would have to start with 10 pounds of milk.

Board Balks On Bennett's Utility Move

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Board of Equalization rejected a request by William Bennett yesterday tnat it rescind its action in lowering the market value of the state's 10 biggest public utilities.

Bennett, of Kentfield, a board member, offered the motion after telling his three colleagues on the board they had adopted "an Alice in Wonderland method of assessment."

After an hour of lively debate, the motion failed for lack of a second. Then, in behalf of a group called "Consumers Arise Now," Bennett submitted a petition seeking to accomplish the same purpose. It was filed for later consideration.

"Gentlemen, you are giving the whole ball game away this morning," Bennett said moments before his motion was turned down.

"You have just given the public utilities a massive windfall and have been doing it for 13 years."

In a voice heavy with sarcasm, Bennett said that by its action the board was shifting the tax burden "from the poor, downtrodden public utilities to the affluent homeowners and taxpayers of California."

Board members John Lynch and George Reilly defended the means by which the board determined fair market value for public utilities.

"The legislature has looked into the operations of this board on at least three occasions and has found it to be moving along acceptable lines in its determination of assessments," Reilly said.

At a meeting Monday, the four-member board voted to set the assessment at 29 per cent of full value. The level in 1970 was 31 per cent.

Auditorium Name Decision Delayed

Marin County supervisors have postponed to May 18 a decision on whether to drop the word "veterans" from the name of the new auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center.

The supervisors said Tuesday they wanted to learn public reaction to the request from the Marin County United Veterans' Council that the structure — long referred to as the Marin Veterans Memorial Auditorium — not have any reference to veterans in its name.

Arthur E. Wedemeyer Jr., in a letter to the board, wrote that the council members unanimously voted for the deletion. W. P. (Doc) Duhamel, told the board, "It's a war memorial, not a veterans' memorial. We originated the idea, but wanted something less elaborate and more use to the people."

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

RELIEF — Was told that the California Supreme Court has ruled a county cannot deny general relief funds to a person able but unwilling to work. No action was taken pending review by the county counsel, including the possibility that the relief recipients might be put to work on county projects if unwilling to work elsewhere.

HUMAN RIGHTS — Received and approved in principle, most of a report from the Marin County Human Rights Commission. The board agreed to recruit a new human rights department head in the $14,000 to $16,000 annual salary range, but withheld approval of the commission's recommendation for a $63,000 budget for fiscal 1971-72.

FIRE CHIEF — Postponed to May 11, discussion of hiring a replacement for Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom, who reaches mandatory retirement age June 1.

AUDITORIUM — Delayed to May 18, to obtain public reaction, a decision on the Marin County United Veterans' Council request to delete the word "veterans" from the name of the new county auditorium. County Admin. Alan Bruce favored using simply "Marin Memorial" as short and useful.

MOUNT TAM — In response to a request from Supervisor Michael Wornum, agreed to ask federal officials to a meeting on the issue of bright lights and new building projects at the radar station on Mount Tamalpais.

APPOINTMENTS — After a 3-2 straw vote, unanimously named Warren Jacobs to the engineer's vacancy on the county Board of Appeals, but postponed for further checking, nominations for the ad hoc motorcycle committee.

LOS RANCHITOS — Approved Supervisor John F. McInnins's request that county staff prepare an ordinance amendment to install a two-way stop sign at Los Ranchitos and Rafael roads, to assist small school children in crossing the busy intersection.

FURNISHINGS — Voted to pay a long-disputed bill for $2,184 for Hall of Justice furniture to California Correctional Industries, and approved ordering $1,200 more furniture for the new attorney's workroom near the courtrooms.

DOG-BITES — Referred to the Marin County Humane Society for study, a request by Carolyn Crabtree of Novato that all dog registration be computerized, to speed up tracing data in dog-bite cases.

$1.5 Billion Paid A Month For Health

NEW YORK (UPI)—Private health insurers are paying about $1.5 billion each month to help Americans meet their health care bills.

In reporting this statistic, the Health Insurance Institute adds that insurers paid a record $17.4 billion in health insurance benefits to the nation's policyholders last year. The figure represents an increase of more than $3 billion over the previous year's record.

Ceiling On Population In Mill Valley Favored

A ceiling on Mill Valley's population was looked on favorably last night by city councilmen and planning commissioners.

The point came up during discussion of a proposed new method of determining the desnity of residential developments. Time and again at the two-hour adjourned meeting, councilmen, commissioners and audience members said a population limit was necessary in Mill Valley.

"We've got to recognize that there is an optimum population beyond which the quality of life is bound to deteriorate," said Planning Commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine.

Councilmen generally agreed, but took no step last night either to set a figure or embark on a study to determine what that figure might be.

Despite the lack of action, the theme of clamping a size lid on the city persisted through the discussion of a new density formula.

Planning Commissioner Paul E. Rosenthal explained that the density formula, if approved by the council after being developed in final form, would base density on the number of bedrooms rather than units per acre.

"The present system (units per acre) is based essentially on the number of kitchens, because a unit is defined as a dwelling structure with a kitchen," he said.

But the impact on the community is affected by other factors: access to the property, slope of the land, amount of open space in the development and, most important, the size of units and number of bedrooms.

"I have a lot of reservations about this proposal," Rosenthal admitted. "It needs some work, but the planning commission wanted approval in principle before it puts the idea into an ordinance."

The basic appeal of the new system, Rosenthal said, is that it spells out variables — access, open space and such — and thus eliminates "horsetrading," wherein the city and developers trade density increases for open space and other amenities.

Councilmen told the planners to submit more data on how the new system would work — including specific figures on the relative weight of different-sized units — and return to the council.

Mayor George E. Wickham said the council will take another look at the matter when it has the additional data, in about a month.

Negotiator For Coast Plan Picked

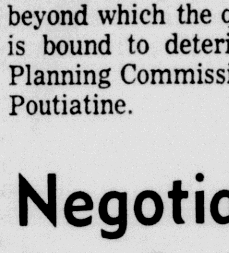
I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County supervisors have chosen colleague Henry Spomer to represent their board in negotiations to form a north coast regional government.

Spomer, whose name was picked in a hat-drawing, won out over Robert Theiller, who also had sought the position.

Spomer's job will be to form guidelines for Sonoma's planned hookup with an alliance that is to include Mendocino, Lake, Del Norte and Humboldt counties. Sonoma voters chose at the polls last month to withdraw from the Association of Bay Area Governments.

In other business Tuesday, supervisors rezoned a 300-acre parcel near Lichau Road in Cotati from unclassified to rural residential for a subdivision of 1.25-acre lots. County Planning Director George Kovatch unsuccessfully urged that the approval be accompanied by a requirement for a development plan.



FOR THOSE WHO CANNOT STOP SMOKING . . .

But who feel they must. A proven, medically sound program has been demonstrated to be an effective means of breaking the physical-psychological habit chains that bind smokers to their established smoking patterns. This program, offered by the St. Helena Health Center is an effective means of helping individuals "kick the habit".

Larkspur Acts To Save Urban Funds For Intersection Work

Larkspur City councilmen rushed last night to beat the waning fiscal year calendar and save $40,000 in urban thoroughfare funds.

City Engineer Roy H. Hoffman was ordered to call for bids on a major remodeling of the Magnolia Avenue-Doherty Drive intersection, estimated to cost $140,000 and give the city its first traffic light.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst explained that the work must be contracted before July 1 or the state and federal urban thoroughfare funds would be lost. He told the council that accumulated city and state highway funds plus "a couple of months of next year's gas tax funds" should suffice. He admitted having misgivings about cash flow during the contract period.

The council voted a series of related actions for the project. It approved $56,000 out-of-court condemnation suit settlement with C. T. H. Wright for approximately 7,000 square feet of property on both sides of Doherty Drive at the intersection, ordered the road work bids to include alternates for extending new sewer lines from the corner to Henry Hall School, and approved hiring a traffic consultant for up to $3,500 to design the $35,000 set of computerized traffic signals for the busy intersection. The traffic signals on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard are in county territy, Bathurst explained, when questioned whether the Magnolia Avenue lights would be the city's first.

Proposals for multiple-residential development near the boardwalk and for a supermarket south of Doherty Drive have added urgency to engineer Hoffman's plans to build four lanes on both streets at the corner, and special left-turn lanes.

The intersection work "will be a problem to traffic, but there's no other way," Hoffman said. The work is expected to follow hard on the heels of another project that has snarled Larkspur area traffic —the current repairs on the Bon Air Bridge.

Hoffman said that the decision to close the span entirely, rather than try to keep it open to restricted traffic, had greatly speeded the work. He said the project costing nearly $100,000 was ahead of schedule and should meet its July completion date.

The bridge suffered serious structural damage during Army Corps of Engineers flood control project dredging of Corte Madera Creek. The Army, state and city are sharing the repair costs.

Thirty years ago Lebanon passed a law forbidding women to wear shorts.

Hamilton To Mark Birthday Wednesday

The Thunderbirds, the Air Force's aerial demonstration team with a spectacular display of jet flying, will highlight the 37th birthday anniversary of Hamilton Air Force Base next Wednesday.

There will be open house from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the Thunderbirds to fly at 3 p.m. and the 573rd Air Force Band, at the base since 1941, will play its final public concert.

The event will mark the resumption of open house at the base, which was cancelled last year because of antiwar demonstrations throughout the U.S.

There will be a display of vintage and World War II aircraft as well as the base's primary mission aircraft, the Convair F-106 Delta Dart.

Base units, Civil Air Patrol and local model airplane clubs also will have displays.

The Thunderbirds, flying the F-4E Phantom II, will perform intricate maneuvers in close formation, execute a variety of rolls and swoop at low level.

All the Thunderbird pilots are Vietnam war veterans with a total of 1,451 combat missions flown by the five members.

The 573rd Air Force Band will be making its last public appearance in Marin because it will be deactivated in June as an economy measure.

Lights Turned Off For Ecology

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Electric Building, for 60 years a glowing night-time landmark in downtown Buffalo, has been blacked out in the interest of ecology.

A spokesman for the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. said Wednesday the 55 1,000-watt light bulbs that decorated the top of the building were turned off at the request of the Rev. Hugh G. Carmichael who operates the St. Augustine Center for the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York.

Carmichael said the lights, which could be seen for miles, used 275 kilowatts of electricity per night, He said the generation of electricity produces "as a byproduct a certain form of pollution."

9,000 Pounds Of Seized Pot Up In Flames

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The federal government burned 9,000 pounds of marijuana Wednesday and predicted more arrests in the biggest seizure of the illegal weed in history.

The bulk of five tons of marijuana confiscated at sea — worth $1.5 million—was burned in neighboring South San Francisco and a cloud of brown smoke wafted southward over the populated Peninsula.

The remaining 1,000 pounds was kept as evidence against eight persons arrested Monday when federal and state agents boarded two boats and seized a camper van waiting on a dock.

In San Diego, U.S. Attorney Harry Steward said more arrests are expected there and in San Francisco during the crackdown on one of the largest marijuana smuggling operations in the United States.

Union Asks Raises For 'Survival'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state employes union yesterday urged the Reagan administration to recommend a $35-a-month pay raise for all employes starting July 1 so lower paid workers "can at least survive."

The Union of State Employes, Local 411, submitted the pay proposal prior to a meeting between union directors and Earl Coke, secretary of agriculture and services. The union said it represents 5,000 employes.

Gov. Ronald Reagan provided no funds for cost-of-living salary increases in his 1971-72 budget proposal submitted to the legislature.

Earl E. Sullaway, secretary-treasurer of the union, told Coke in a letter that more than 30,000 state employes are "incapable of supporting their families at the most minimal level, based on Federal Bureau of Labor statistics."

"If the governor cannot see his way clear to recommending a cost-of-living increase," he said, "then we request that some allowance be made for survival."

Sullaway said such a raise "would provide a guarantee that thousands of state employes and their families could continue to exist."

U.S. Budget Deficit May Hit $19 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget for the Nixon administration, predicts the federal deficit for the business year ending June 30 will be more than $19 billion—a figure that would be the second largest since World War II.

In January the administration had projected a $18.6 billion deficit for the current fiscal year. The largest red ink year since World War II was 1968, when the deficit was $25.2 billion.

73-Year-Old Is Sued For Hitting Teen In Jaw

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. (UPI) —The father of an 18-year-old boy has filed a $100,000 damage suit against a 73-year-old man, claiming the old man belted his son and broke his jaw, forcing him to miss the senior prom.

Police said Kitely was driving to meet his 92-year-old mother at a beauty shop and, while parking his car, he backed into a car driven by the younger Hunthrop. The police said Hunthrop got out of his car and called Kitely an abusive name. Kitely then broke his jaw.

Kitely was charged with disturbing the peace and forfeited $17.50 bond.

The suit is seeking $50,000 in compensatory damages and $50,000 in punitive damages. It claims the youth "suffered great bodily pain as a result of the beating" which caused him to miss his senior prom last Friday night.

Capp Released

HARRISON, Ark. (UPI)—Cartoonist Al Capp was released Wednesday from the Boone County Hospital and announced he was canceling all his college speaking appearances for the rest of the month.

An Unsuccessful Bombing Attempt

CHICO (UPI) —An unsuccessful would-be firebomber threw a molotov cocktail through the window of an Air Force recruiting office Tuesday night to practically no avail.

Police said the bottle of gasoline failed to ignite and that whoever had thrown it failed in repeated attempts to set off the spilled fuel by throwing matches and cigarettes at it.

A Possible Span Jumper

A 23-year-old San Carlos woman may have jumped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The leap of the woman believed to be Victoria Ann Jordan was not witnessed, officers said, but her 1969 pickup truck was found abandoned in the northbound lanes of the bridge at 3 a.m. by a passerby.

A two-hour search by the Coast Guard failed to locate a body.

A letter in the truck indicated Mrs. Jordan, a clerk at the Del Monte Corp. in San Francisco, was despondent over a pending divorce.

Attack On Antigrowth 'Lobbyists'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sen. Gordon Allot, R-Colo., said Wednesday he is disturbed by a "very effective coalition of lobbies against the very idea of economic growth."

Speaking to a meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's Division of Production, Allott said most of the lobbies are composed of private citizens with a sincere concern for the environment.

However, he said some of them are "simply moral exhibitionists or pastoral romantics" and that together the lobbies "are in danger of turning the fight for a better environment into a war against the American economy."

The senator warned that the "enemies of economic growth" have concentrated on energy sources because they are basic to the American economy.

He said the demand for energy is growing constantly, "but today you cannot turn a spade of earth for the construction of a power plant without generating five years of litigation from various environmental groups.

"In fact, we are so much more proficient at generating litigation than we are at generating electricity, that in five years we will have clogged courts and brown-outs in every section of the nation."

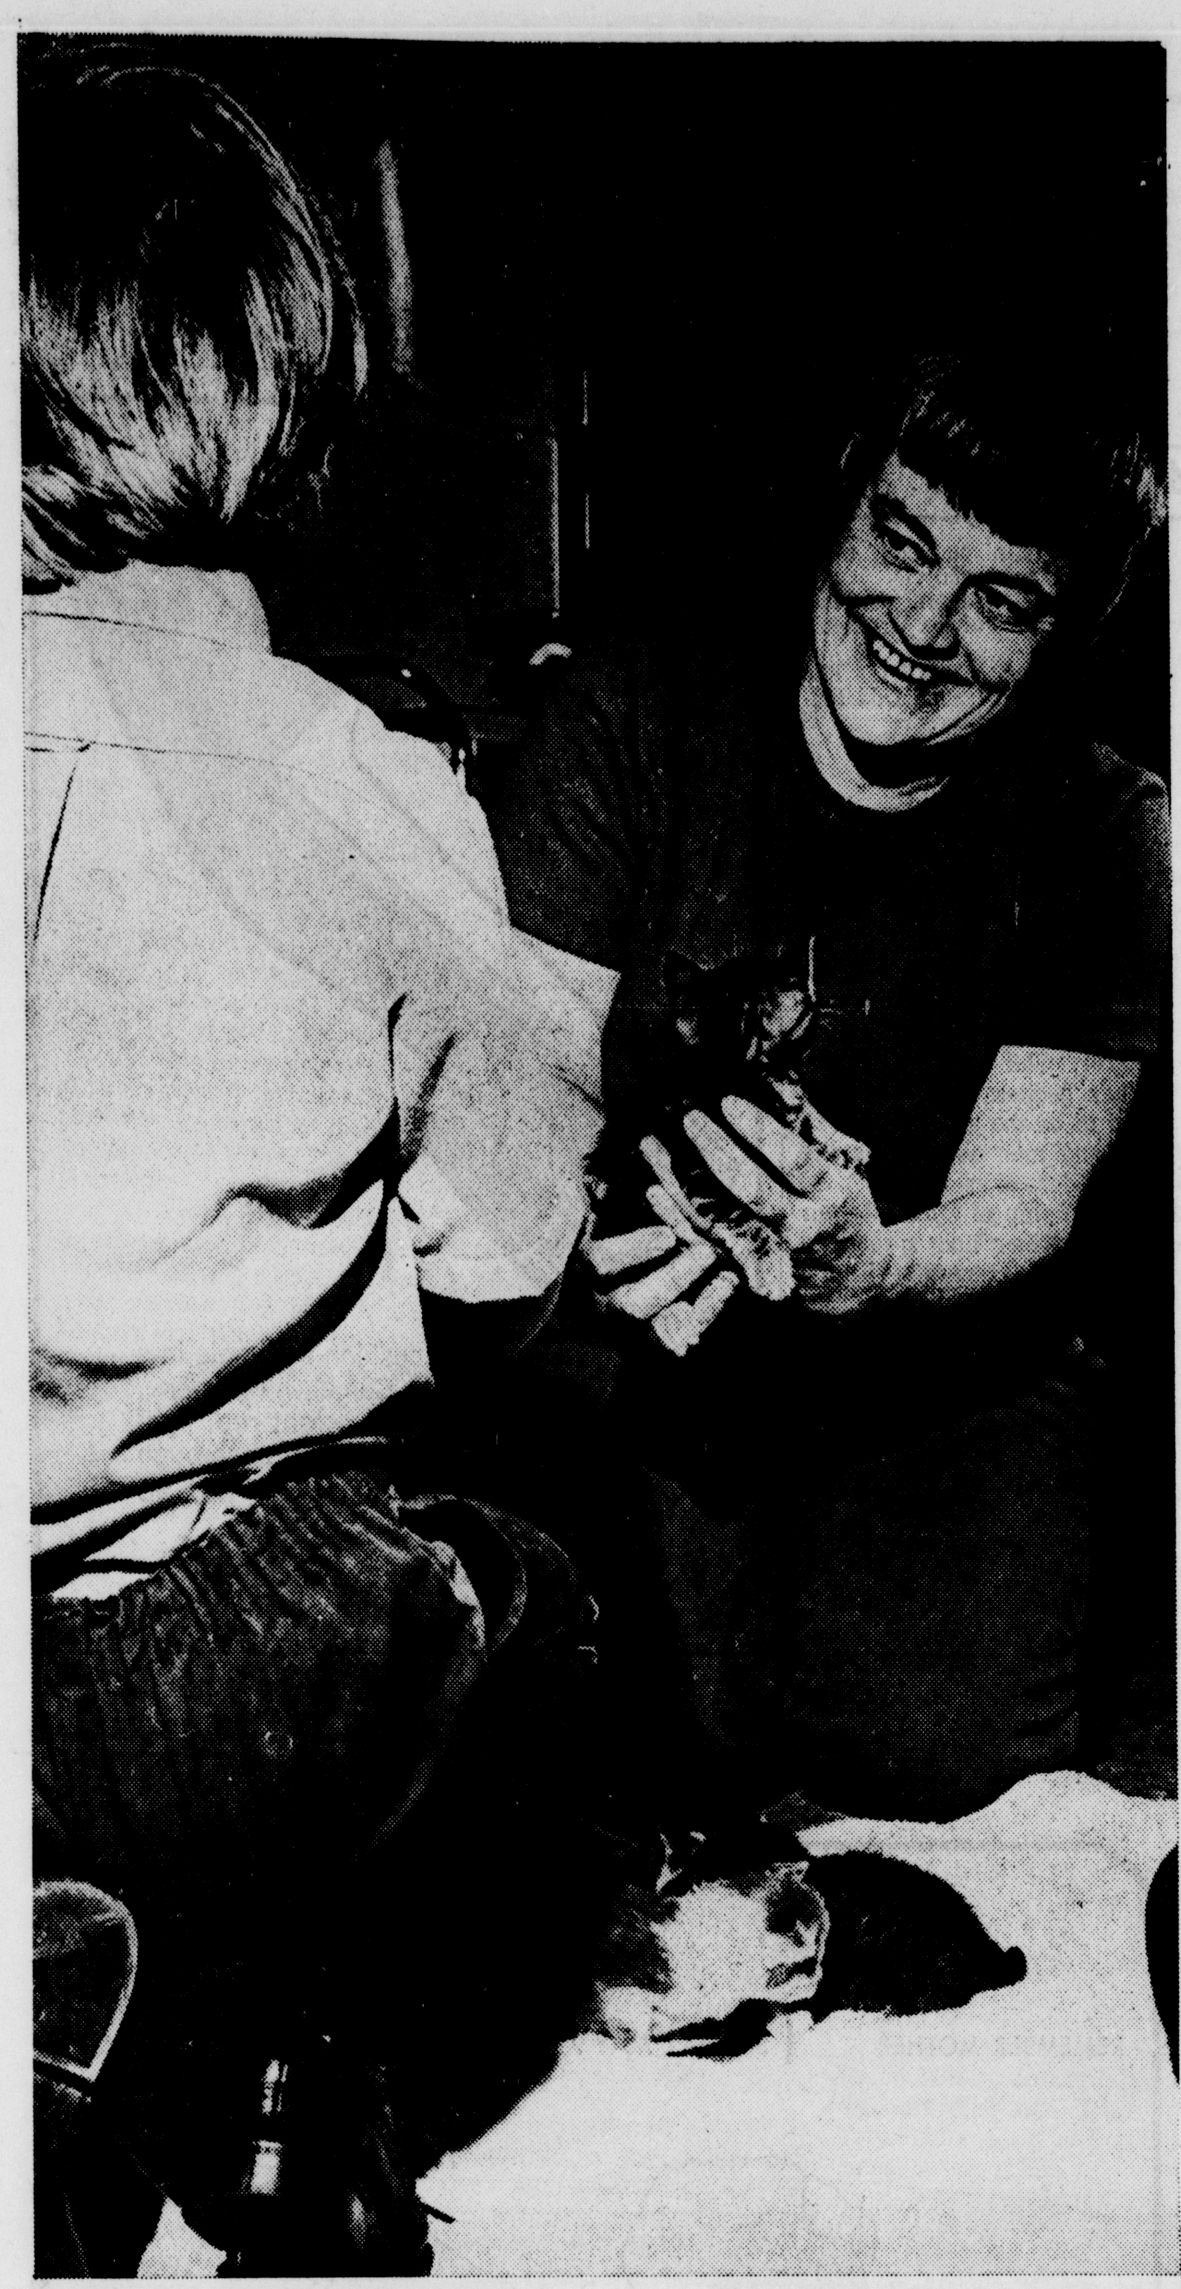
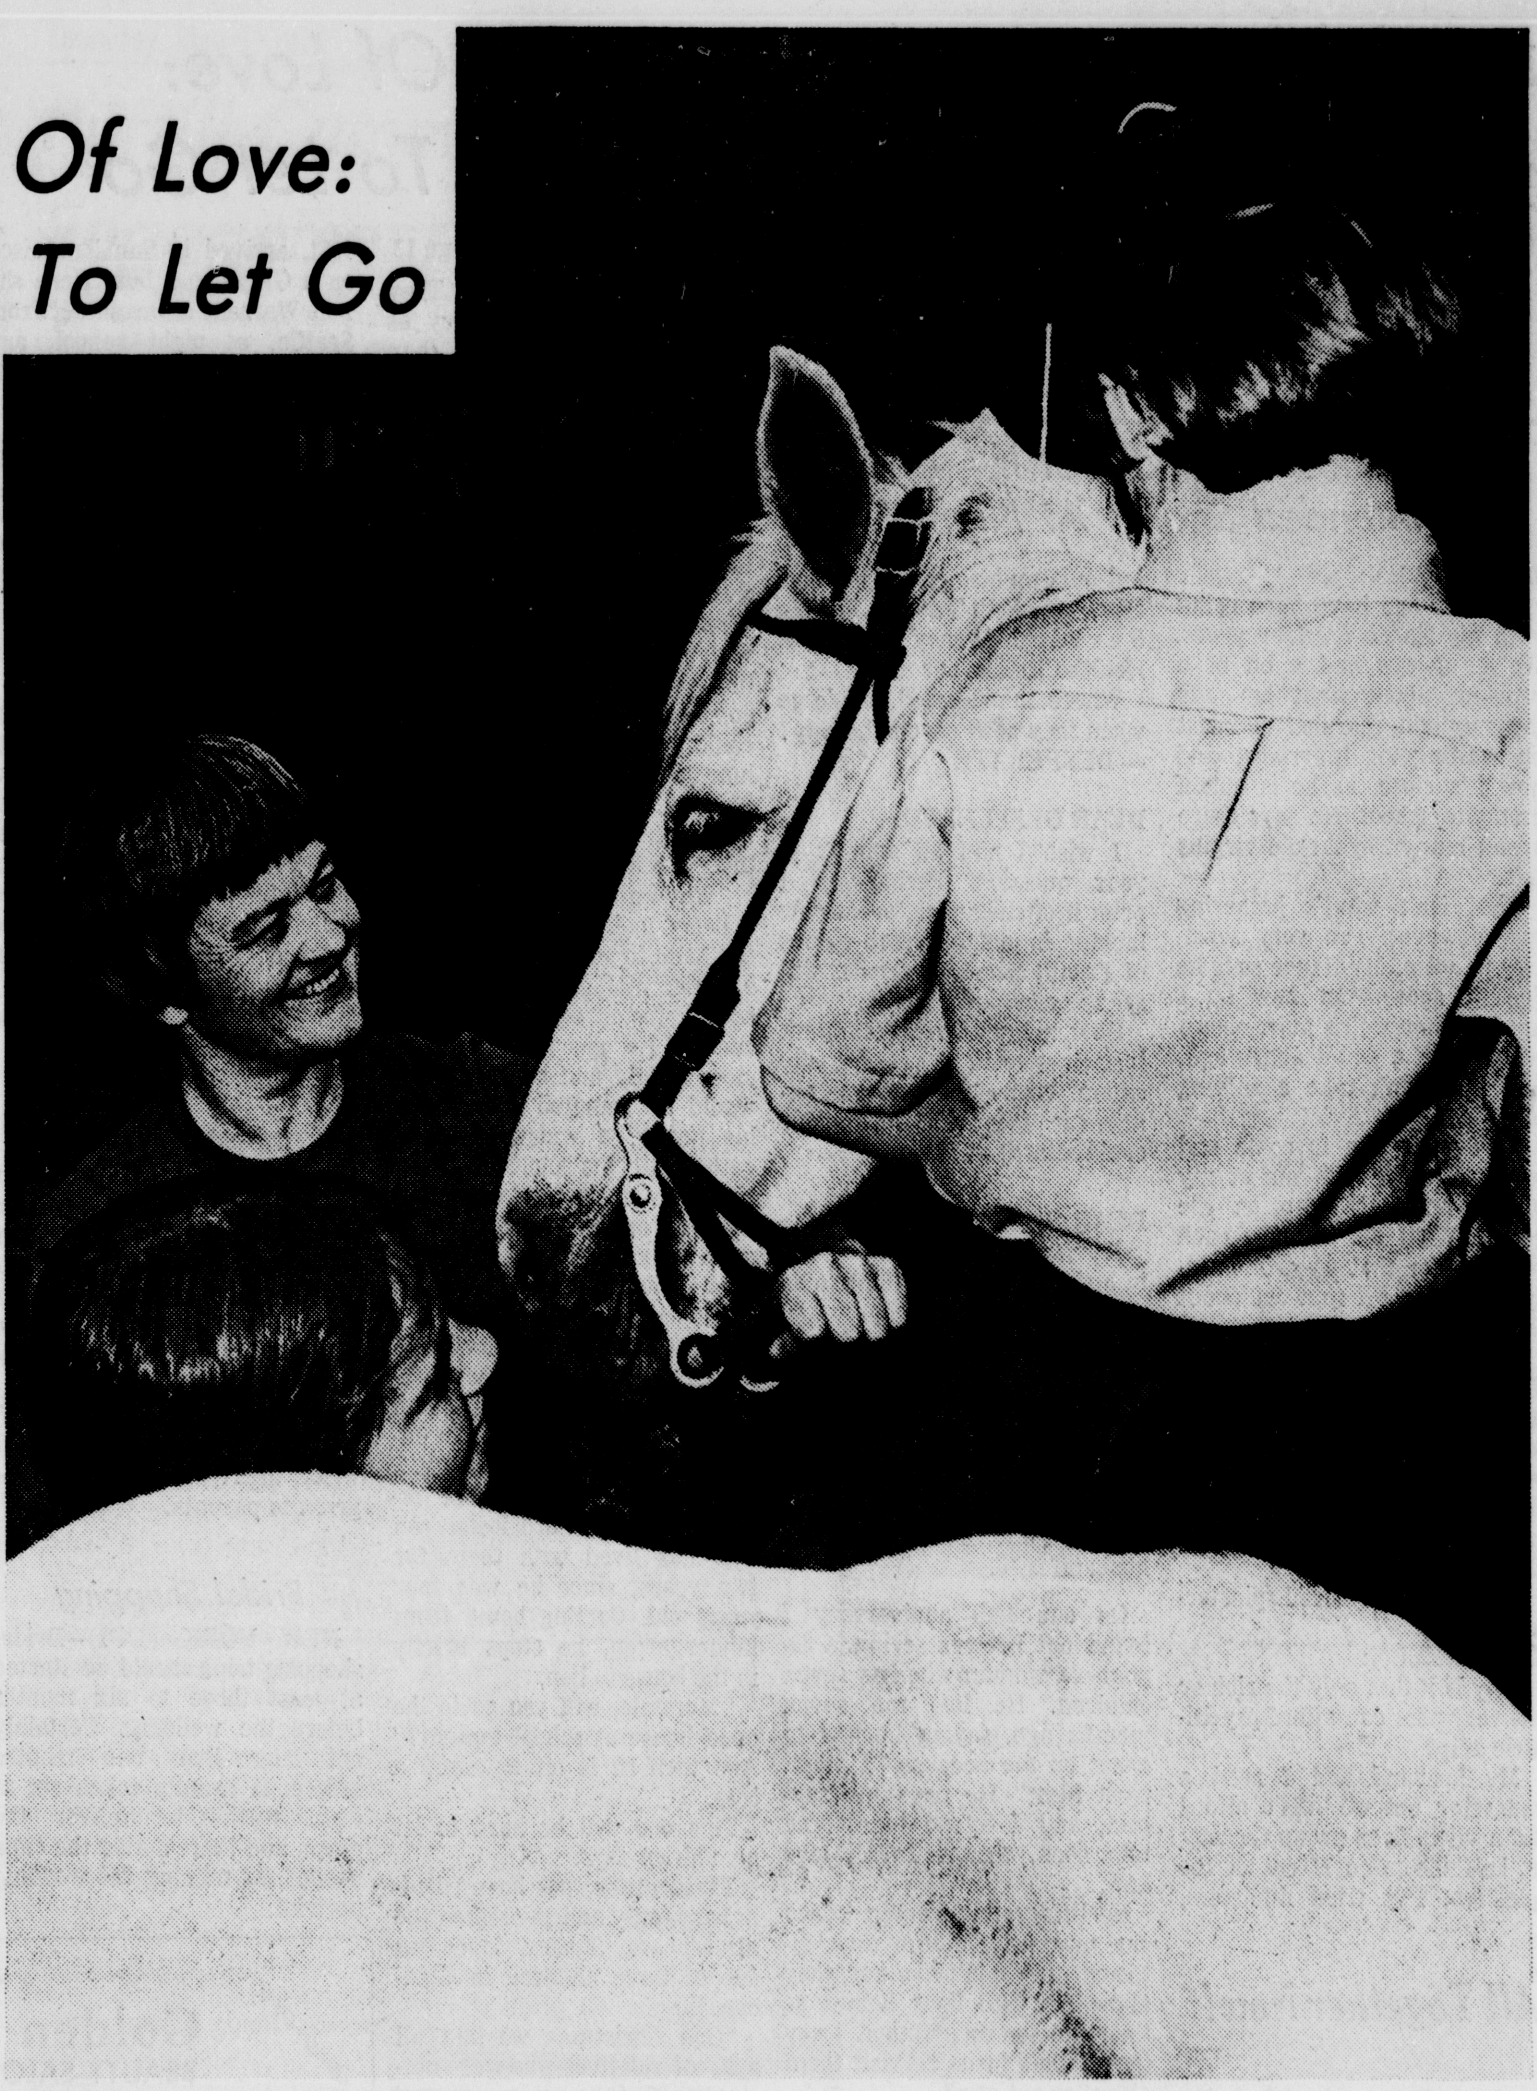
FOSTER FAMILY

The Test Of Love: Learning To Let Go

By PAT BALMES



SHIRLEY POLLOCK shows her foster son how to hold their kitten gently. Three boys whose parents could not provide a home for them temporarily, have been sent to her for love and a home during the past six years. "It makes you feel good to hear from a boy later when he's doing fine," says the foster mother.



BETSY (left) and her mother, Mrs. Warren Pollock, gives pointers on riding to the boy who has filled-in their family to become Betsy's foster brother. The horse, Sugar, came to the boy's sixth birthday party at their Mill Valley home recently to give his schoolmates a ride, too.

(Independent-Journal photos by Alfred Arn)

"If you can love them while they're with you and then let them go, that's a good attitude," says foster mother Shirley Pollock, who has welcomed three homeless boys into her family, knowing that they would leave her.

To give a home to a boy whose parents temporarily cannot provide one for him and to fill-in her own family, Mrs. Warren Pollock of Mill Valley applied six years ago for her "License to Conduct a Boarding Home for Children."

"Doesn't that sound like Oliver Twist?" laughs Shirley as she takes a moment's rest in her Scott Valley home, which has an organ, a guitar, two cats with kittens, a dog bought for her foster sons and a gentle horse visiting in the backyard.

The Pollocks made their house a foster home to provide their daughter, Betsy, with a brother and because, "God knows there is a need for it." When it looked like Betsy would be an only child, the Pollocks went to the Departemnt of Public Social Services for a foster son. It was not a shortcut to adoption, since foster children are temporary. The agency's aim is to reunite families, she says, adding that age and circumstances prevented the Pollocks from considering adoption.

"THERE ARE all sorts of reasons you get these kids. A parent might be institutionalized. The mother might be in the hospital. Or the child might have parents who delight in beating kids. Then the courts get involved until the trouble is ironed out," says Shirley.

For the first month with a new foster son, Shirley is very careful and tries to be professional. After that, "It's family.'' When she has some problem she can't cope with, Shirley consults the child's case worker.

Shirley has experienced nothing but friendliness and cooperation from her foster son's parents. The boys would often visit their parents on weekends. If his mother were in the hospital, Shirley would think it was quite natural for his father to come to her home to put the boy to bed every night. But she wouldn't want a parent sitting at her kitchen table all day, says Shirley, adding that "from what I've heard, sometimes it is the parents who are the problems."

"IT MAKES YOU feel good to hear from the boy later," says the foster mother. She has received phone calls and cards from her first foster son who lived with the Pollocks for 14 months:

"Hi! Remember me? How are things?"

The voice of that boy, who is "doing fine now," brought back to Shirley the scene six years ago when a resentful, argumentative and rude eight-year-old arrived with his few things in a box. He was upset because his homelife was upset, explains the foster mother. He adjusted after a tough summer. It took him awhile to get used to Shirley and her discipline, which was not what he was used to before.

"He would slam every door in the house when I sent him to his room," she remembers.

SINCE THEN Shirley feels she has learned a lot more about children and mentally apologizes to him for cutting his Beatle haircut and putting him to bed at 7:30 p.m.

Her husband Warren, an architect, adds,

"After a month and a half he settled in then he was part of the family. At first he called us 'Mr. and Mrs.,' but soon it was 'Mom and Dad.' He knew he belonged and was part of the scheme. We treated him exactly the same as we treat Betsy."

Betsy, five years old when her first foster brother arrived, inquired why his own parents didn't take care of him. Her mother explained that, for the time being, his parents could not take care of him so they were.

The tiny girl told this at school until the boy pleaded with his foster mother.

"Can't you make her be quiet!"

Shirley heartily agreed and said that family problems are nobody's business.

HER PARENTS feel that, except for normal sibling rivalries, Betsy has accepted her foster brothers very well, possibly because the first foster brother arrived when she was so young. It isn't always easy for Betsy and sometimes she complains:

"Why do I have to have such a dumb brother?" (But she has always said "brother.")

A foster child receives a modest food and clothing allowance and his medical and dental bills are paid by Medi-Cal.

"But if you think people get into it for the money, forget it," says Warren Pollock.

The Foster Parents Association exchanges clothing for growing foster children. It was organized so foster parents could help one another and could act as a lobbying group about their problems.

ONE GRIEVANCE, Shirley says, is that it is unreasonable to expect a private home to have the same fire prevention facilities as a large institution.

After their first foster son left them, Shirley and Warren rested for three months before

Marin Women

Gap Still Remains In The News Field

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Progress of women toward equality with men in radio and television is disappointing according to Jeanne Toncre of Mill Valley, who returned Friday from the 20th annual convention in Washington, D.C., of American Women in Radio and Television.

Mrs. Toncre, who is director of women's community affairs for KRON-TV, is the newly elected president of the Golden Gate Chapter of the organization.

"A panel program, 'Focus on Women,' was the highlight of the convention, which attracted 650 women broadcasters from all sections of the Uited States and several foreign countries," Mrs. Toncre said.

"MODERATOR WAS Betty Groebli, broadcaster for NBC in Washington, D.C. Panelists were Jo Foxworth, president of her own advertising agency and past national advertising woman of the year; Xandra Kayden, director of development for the women's action program of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; and Marguerite Rawalt (a member of the National Organization for Women), attorney and member of the President's Commission on the Status of Women, 1961-63 and Citizens Advisory Council on the Status of Women, 1963-68.

"The consensus was that discrimination against women is widespread in broadcasting. It was noted that in the entire United States there are less than 300 women broadcasters on radio and television, with Nancy Dickerson, Barbara Walters and Pauline Frederick about the only women broadcasters on network TV, in comparison with men who are all over the tubes," Mrs. Toncre said.

The women said the same discrimination was evident behind the scenes too, Mrs. Toncre said.

All agreed that there should be equal pay for equal work," she said. "Some felt that women should do more about improving their situation, but the question was how. Many thought too aggressive methods only arouse antagonism."

ESPECIALLY FRUSTRATING, Jeanne said, was the lack of sympathy for women's position, revealed in a panel composed of prominent men in the broadcasting field.

"Typical of the way they skirted the issues," she said, "was the attitude of Vincent Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, who said, 'I am fond of women — I have a wife and four daughters — and a woman attorney on my staff.'

"The men said little more than that 'the ladies have come a long way.' They acted as though they were running scared," she commented.

Jeanne said the only sympathy for the women's position came from a man from another country, John Akar, who until last week was the ambassador from Sierra Leone to the United States. He was moderator and keynote speaker for the men's panel on "Future Trends in Communications."

Mrs. Toncre said the general feeling at the end of the convention was that, though women in broadcasting have accomplished much, they are still way down at the bottom of the list in making progress toward equal rights and opportunities.

The women were received by Mrs. Richard M. Nixon.

Kitchen Safety Rules For Children

How can you make the kitchen safer for your children?

Your children probably know a lot about kitchen safety — but don't take their knowledge for granted.

Children forget easily, and they like to experiment and play. If by chance they haven't completely understood about kitchen safety, you may not know it until it's too late.

So, help your children remember these safety rules and help them practice.

TEACH THEM that a range and oven aren't playthings — that top burners get very hot and can burn fingers.

Tell them that the range and oven control knobs are not to be played with.

Keep matches out of the reach of children.

Remember that kids today see knives used in movies and on TV — so be sure that your kitchen knives are safely out of the reach of playful youngsters. It might be wise to let the kids feel the edge and point of a knife while you hold their hands — so they can understand that it is sharp and you can hurt someone.

IF YOU have any large kitchen appliances (such as an empty refrigerator, or a freezer or even a large oven) don't ever let your children play inside them. All too often children accidently lock themselves inside their "special hideout."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

She Wants To Find Out If Her Intended Snores At Night

DEAR HELEN:

I am 25 and have been going with my fiance for four years. We've always had a bit of a problem about what he calls my "uptight morals." I insist on waiting for marriage, and now it's close, as he is out of graduate school. He says there aren't many 25-year-old virgins left.

That isn't what's bothering me, however. I'm very sensitive to noise. My fiance says he doesn't snore, but how do I know? After we're married we will live in a small apartment, and I couldn't take a snoring man.

So I want him to come and spend a week with me at my apartment, but sleep on the couch. We'll get to know each other better that way, (mentally) and also I'll find out about the snoring.

He says fine, but only if he doesn't sleep on the couch. Inasmuch as we've waited this long, don't you think he could wait another week? I have perfect control and can't see why he's so stubborn. — CINDY

DEAR CINDY:

Have you considered spinsterhood? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it that only the rich or the very poor can afford psychiatric help?

My husband and I need a counselor but we can't afford $50 a visit. Even group therapy at half the price is out of the question. I've tried ministers, but our troubles go deeper than that. We don't have a Family Service Agency or Mental Health Clinic in our town.

Where can salaried people go when they need psychotherapy? — DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I wish I had an answer to your question. Perhaps if I print it often enough, areas now lacking in mental health clinics or Family Service Agencies will see the need and meet it.

How many marriages, families, lives could be saved if only expert counseling were available at fees working people could afford! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My family says I am wrong to insist they have nothing to do with the harpy who has taken away my husband. What do you say?

I have been married for 40 years. We have 12 children, three still at home, 40 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. I am 56 and my husband is 60.

On our 40th anniversary I found out he was seeing a 32-year-old woman who has seven children. He left me seven months ago, saying he had to cheat on me because "I didn't trust him." He pays me support, and I intend to divorce him soon, though I still love him.

He brings this woman to see our married children and, although they don't like her, they allow her into their homes so they can see their father. I say they should insist he visit them alone, or not at all.

Your opinion, please? — TOO TRUSTING TOO LONG

DEAR TTTL:

Your children may have the right idea: kindness and a firm grip on family ties has brought many a wandering older man back to his wife, whereas a vindictive attitude can push him farther away. Chances are good that this July-November romance won't last. You still love your husband, so let him know — through the children — that he can come home. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

The Test Of Love: Learning To Let Go

"breaking in a new colt." They are listed with the agency as wanting a boy younger than Betsy because, as Shirley says, she is not expert, only a harried mother who is not ready to cope with a teen-ager's problems.

When the agency suggested they take in a first grade boy the same age as Betsy, Warren wanted to meet the boy first. A "freckled, blue-eyed doll" came with his father for the introduction, carrying his Halloween costume. The boy asked if he could stay and the Pollocks told him they would let him know on Monday. As the car turned around in front of their house, the Pollocks said to each other:

"Why wait until Monday?"

Betsy took her new twin by the hand to school to show him off. Her mother says that this second foster son was not resentful. He was from a large, close family and he knew they would be reunited soon. Also, his father, a widower, would gather all his children from their foster homes and take them out on Sundays.

"A man gets in a bind and goes looking for help," says Shirley sympathetically.

He was their foster son for 16 months. The Pollocks have recently received a letter from him and Betsy urges her mother to hurry up and write back.

SHIRLEY FEELS more relaxed with her third foster son who has lived with them for two years, since he was four years old. Coming home from kindergarten, he stops briefly in the house to lisp,

"Mommie, will you go to the open house at school tonight?" And then he is off to climb a tree.

This one will be hard to let go, Shirley says.

These foster sons have filled-in her family and re-created the atmosphere Shirley knew as one of three children in Glencoe, Ill.

"One Christmas we had all ages of relatives-who-were-not-strangers, from a great-great grandmother of 93 to a year-old baby. Later I came out here where I didn't know anybody," says Shirley.

She attended New Trier High School in Winnetka, Ill. She received her bachelor's degree in modern languages at Grinnell College in Iowa. On a tour of Europe, Shirley visited Luxembourgers who had billeted her father during the First World War and Viennese who had received Care packages from her grandmother.

RETURNING HOME, she became a budget analyst and, in 1951, arrived in San Francisco on a Greyhound bus. Here she met Warren, an architect from Seattle, at night school, and they were married in 1954. Betsy was born in 1960.

Shirley is learning to play the organ and guitar, and has sung in choral groups like Community Chorus at College of Marin. She says she "grew up in church choirs."

The Pollocks enjoy camping in the high Sierra.

In 1968 they bought a Coronado 25 sailboat "after Shirley had had only one sailing lesson." Warren had sailed years ago in Seattle. The family enjoys living aboard ship on their vacations on the Delta. While cruising the children stay in the cabin or wear life jackets on deck.

"The boy has loved the boat," says his foster mother.

Promises, Promises

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Promise her anything but give her Arpege" is the perfume slogan that has worked its way into the language. But the slogan also developed into a class exercise at the second grade Locust Valley Elementary School in Locust Valley, N.Y. The children were asked to write their promises —to be given to parents.

Bridal Shopping

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bridal shopping trips should be started at least three to six months before the wedding. Certainly not later than two months before. It usually takes six to eight weeks to deliver the gown, and there's also the time needed for making the wedding portrait.

Cybele Was First 'Mother' Honored

The first mother to be honored with special yearly veneration was Cybele, according to research done by a card manufacturer. She was an earth-mother goddess who was supposed to be the great parent of gods and men as well as the lower orders of creation.

The worship of Cybele began in Asia Minor and spread to Greece and eventually Rome. Later, the ancients became confused as her cult spread and confounded her with local matriarchal dieties such as Rhea, Ge and Demeter.

These various Mediterranean mother goddesses closely resembled one another and are products of similar concepts of fertility of the earth and regeneration of life every spring. Our modern concept of Mother's Day shuns goddesses and focuses attention on live and specific 'moms.'

Coffees To Launch Marin Association For Mental Health Membership Drive

May is Mental Health Month and the Marin Association for Mental Health is launching its annual membership drive with a series of coffees. Speakers from the Suicide Prevention Center will talk about the Center's services and its needs.

The coffees from 10 a.m. to noon will be at the home of Mrs. Lawrason Driscoll of Novato on Monday, at the home of Mrs. Axel W. Hoke of Terra Linda on Wednesday and at the home of Mrs. Robert Marvin of Greenbrae on May 21.

Mrs. Hoke is membership chairman.

THREE YOUNG women, recipients of American Field Service international scholarships, will be guests of the Petaluma Chapter American Field Service Monday at 7:30 p.m. at McNear Elementary School's multi-purpose room. The public is invited.

Mrs. Lester Brians, chapter president, said Christine Bubba of Bolivia; Kristina Nilsson from Sweden and Martine Chamla of France will each explain her experiences in the United States while an AFS student.

Miss Bubba is currently attending high school in El Sobrante. Miss Nilsson and Miss Chamla are living in Santa Rosa and attending Piner and Montgomery High Schools respectively.

Committee chairmen for the "international coffee time" are Mmes. Shep Porter, Donald Harris and Robert A. McDonald.

MEMBERS OF the White Hill Parent-Teacher Association will be selling refreshments at the Northern California Car Show Sunday at Sir Francis Drake High School.

THE MARIN County Chapter National Association of Women in Construction will honor their bosses at a dinner Saturday at Rancho Nicascio. Mrs. Juanita McGuire is reservations chairman.

WELCOME WAGON Club members will have their annual salad bowl luncheon Tuesday at Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda. Punch will be served at 11 a.m. and luncheon will be at noon.

Proceeds will benefit the Suicide Prevention Center and the Trainable Mentally Retarded of Oakview School. Mrs. Billy Shelton of Terra Linda is reservations chairman. Child care will be available.

AMONG THE 600 women teachers, librarians, counselors and school administrators attending the state Delta Kappa Gamma convention in Los Angeles were Eva Maria Nieto, Marin Chapter president and Reed District teacher, and Mrs. Delbert V. Henry Jr. of Novato, Tamalpais High School teacher. Mrs. Henry is also a Marin chapter member. The three-day convention finished Saturday.

MRS. GORDON Walker of Marin Country Club Estates in Novato will be installed as chairman of the Oleander Chapter, Marin Foundation, Friends of Arequipa at its meeting to be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. Ross Cox Jr.

Officers to be installed with Mrs. Walker are Mmes. Robert Bliss, chairmen; L. T. Kett, recording secretary; Robert Dinsmore, corresponding secretary; Edward Rifkind, treasurer; and Arthur Lindauer, parliamentarian.

Appointive chairmen are Mmes. Harry Flachs and Don Curran, ways and means; Thomas Ruane, volunteer; C. W. McColpin, house; Carl Johnson and Earl Isaacs, bridge; Harold Collin, historian Christmas cards and stationery, Charles Galt and Arthur Lindauer, publicity.

THE MARIN REGIONAL Council of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation will hold its annual spring luncheon and election of officers at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. David Faraday in Ross.

At this time plans will be completed for the group's festive "mini-auction" on May 21 for members and guests at the McNear summer home in Glenwood. There will be cocktails and a picnic dinner at 7 p.m. Council members are collecting items of unusual interest and value for the auction.

Chairmen are Mmes. Thomas Drohan of Tiburon and Thomas Stanton of Belvedere.

THE MARIN Country Garden Club will hold its election of officers at a meeting to be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the country club in Novato.

Stanford Warner of the Ignacio Nursery will demonstrate bonsai and Oriental pruning, according to program chairmen, Mmes. E. D. Oliphant and Carl Johnson. Mmes. Walker Geddes, Herbert Marsh and Harold Collin are hostesses for the meeting for members and their guests.

THE FIRST social function for the Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club will be a mother's day brunch to be held at Sam's restaurant in Tiburon Sunday.

Small power boats and cruisers will leave Bel Marin Keys at 10 a.m. for the "run to Sam's."

A MOTHER-Daughter luncheon and fashion show will be held by members of Bel Marin Keys Women's Club at 11 a.m. Saturday at Sonoma Joe's in Petaluma.

Narrator will be Mrs. Bill Fox and models are Mmes. Ralph Wilson, Howard Kanter, Neil Harding and Miss Joan Tetu, Milia Klein and Marilyn Kane.

"CELEBRATION FOR an Old Fashioned Girl" is the theme chosen for the 14th annual Dairy Princess Ball for district three Saturday at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. The doors will open at 7 p.m.

This event to select a young woman to represent district three in competition for the title of California Dairy Princess is cosponsored by the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, North Bay Dairy Women and the California Milk Advisory Board.

At 8 p.m. public judging begins of the 11 contestants. The judges will announce the winner at 9:30 p.m., and dancing will follow. A buffet dinner is planned for 10:30 p.m.

North Bay Dairy Women who are committee chairmen are Mmes. Joseph Schultz, Leo Garzelli, Clarence Christensen, Carl Mendonca, Isolena Maestretti, Peter Giacomelli, Henry Corda, Marvin Malacredit, Frank La Franconi, Carl Haderman and Lloyd Draper.

NEW OFFICERS of the Marin Motion Picture and Television Council will be installed Tuesday at their meeting at 10 a.m. at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

Also Douglas Godfrey, auditor; Harold Marelli, historian, and Miss Ellen Clar, Eilert, Mrs. Stanley E. Hood, and Mrs. Harold Keane, directors-at-large. Honorary vice president is Edward Paulson.

A SPAGHETTI and wine dinner with a dixieland jazz band will be sponsored by the Founders Auxiliary of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers Friday at 7 p.m. at the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Dinner will be served family style and dominoes or bridge are part of the program. Chairman Mrs. Vincent White of Mill Valley will be assisted by Mmes. Richard Mayer, invitations; John Ball, food; William Pemberton, decor; James Behr, table setting; Rodney Hartman, entertainment, and Harrison Leppo, publicity.

Purtill-Cummings Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Cummings of Novato have announced the engagement of their daughter, Glenda J Cummings to David T. Purtill.

GLENDA CUMMINGS
Engaged To Be Wed

Glenda is the sister of Patricia and Rick Cummings. Her local grandfather is Joseph Rosson of San Rafael. She was graduated from Novato High School and is employed at the Emporium in Terra Linda.

David is the son of Mrs. Frank Purtill of Novato and the late Mr. Purtill. He is the brother of Barbara and Ralph Purtill of Novato and his local grandmother is Mrs. Elsie Purtill of Novato.

He was graduated from Novato High School, Heald's College of Engineering and Marin Aviation flight school, where he acquired his commercial pilot license, instrument rating and flight instructor's rating.

He is attending the Air Traffic Control School with the Army at Fort Rucker, Ala.

Mrs. Hendricks Is All-Ways Tops President

Mrs. E. Raymond Hendricks of Novato has been elected president of the All-Ways Tops Club of Novato for the year.

Mrs. Hendricks and her husband have been Novato residents for the past 10 years and formerly owned a garden business there. Gardening is her hobby, as well.

The club, she says, is to help persons who want to "take off pounds sensibly," and it meets each Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in Novato.

Other officers of the club are Mmes. Frank Scarabino, coleader; Darrell DeMartini, secretary; and Richard Hosmer, treasurer.

'True Love Knot'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The expression "to tie the knot" as a synonym for getting married comes from the ancients. In olden days, the knot was a symbol of faith and young couples used the "true love knot" to indicate the tie of love and duty in a marriage that would never disoolve.

BIBLICAL THEME IN COLLEGE PLAY

Greg Norgaard (standing) as King Saul, received the awed attention of his people in "Psalms of Two Davids,'' by Joel Schwartz. The play presents two periods during the life of David, first during the reign of Saul and later as David, King of Israel. The world premier will be at 8 p.m. Friday at the Fine Arts Theater at the College of Marin, and continues through Sunday. It will be presented Tuesday through May 15th at the same hour.

Horseshoes Challenge Is Accepted

Larkspur city fathers last night accepted the Corte Madera Town Council's challenge to a horseshoe pitching contest to be held the evening of July 3 in the Corte Madera Park.

The clash will be a preliminary to the Twin Cities' annual Fourth of July parade and festivities. Larkspur councilmen also approved plans and waived fees for the parade at last night's meeting.

In accepting the horseshoe challenge, the councilmen sounded like Cassius Clay, erstwhile heavyweight boxing champ, warming up his vocal cords before a bout.

"I don't see how we can help but win," declared Councilman William G. Fleckles. ". . . that roly poly little mayor they've got. . ."

"What are the stakes — the ferry terminal?" Councilman Neal Brixon gruffly demanded.

None of the councilmen would admit to prowess in the horseshoe pits, but declared, "there ought to be four good men on the city staff who can win for us."

Make Paint Test

Before washing walls, test the paint or other finish to make sure it takes to washing. Use a sudsy sponge to wipe a small section in a concealed corner. If the area looks the same, only cleaner, washing the entire wall is safe.

11 To Vie Saturday For Dairy Princess

Eleven girls — seven from Petaluma — will vie Saturday night in Petaluma for the district title in the California Dairy Princess contest.

The winner, who will take the crown from Beverly Diane Smith of Tomales, 1970 district princess, will represent the five-county dairy region in the state contest in Hollywood on June 24.

Judging will begin at 8 p.m. at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The judges will be Dr. Guy F. Macleod of Oakland, an entomologist and head of a study of agricultural education in California; Robert L. Essick, vice president in charge of agricultural loans at Wells Fargo Bank, San Francisco, and Suzanne Natrass, a free lance model and receptionist for Crocker-Citizens National Bank in San Francisco.

A dance will follow the 9:30 p.m. coronation.

The contestants are:

Christel Allen, 17, daughter of Mrs. Kaethe Allen of 286 Sunnyslope Drive, Petaluma. She is a senior at Petaluma High School.

Antoinette Azevedo, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Azevedo of 3100 Skillman Lane, Petaluma. She is a senior at St. Vincent High School.

Terri Brazil, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Brazil of 3131 Old Adobe Road, Petaluma. She is an economics major at Sonoma State College.

Linda Christensen, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Christensen of 288 Ely Road, Petaluma. She is a senior at Petaluma High.

Pauline Garzelli, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Garzelli of 7975 Petaluma Hill Road, Penngrove. She is an English major at Sonoma State College.

Exclusion Appeal By Smog Board

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors appealed yesterday to the state to rescind its decision to exclude large portions of Sonoma and Solano counties from the district. (Another pollution control district story, page 1)

But if the state Air Resources Board refuses to rescind its April decision, then it should reduce the territory to be excluded, the directors unanimously declared.

They also urged that the state board review the effect of any exclusion of territory after six months.

The state board is to take final action on the precise boundaries of the excluded territory at its May 19 meeting in Eureka.

Sonoma, Solano and Napa counties were annexed to the district by the 1970 Legislature, effective this coming July 1. The 1970 law, however, allowed the counties to seek exclusion of territory from the district, which two of them promptly did.

Sonoma supervisors won tentative approval from the state board of a dividing line generally from Bodega Bay to Mount St. Helena. It would put 647 square miles in the district, and exclude 932 square miles, according to county figures.

Such a line also would exclude the county's major lumber mills from the Bay Area district's jurisdiction, a point that bothered Santa Rosa Mayor Gerald M. Poznanovich. "I'm not convinced there are two separate air basins in the county,'' he told the board.

He said that his city council had not opposed the county's plea to the state board because the council was certain the plea would be rejected.

The district's chief administrative officer, D. J. Callaghan, said that there was no effective air pollution control in either Yolo or Mendocino counties, adjacent to the territory to be excluded from the Bay Area district. The result was that there would be virtually no air pollution control over those portions of Sonoma and Solano, Callaghan said.

The Bay Area district has argued that air contaminants emitted anywhere in the nine-county region affect air quality in other parts of the region.

Pollution Control District Directors Also:

RESEARCH — Received an estimate from Callaghan that a proposed research and development section will cost $100,000 next fiscal year. Its duties will include drafting mathematical models to show the effect of new developments, and computing the region's maximum capacity for each air contaminant.

VIOLATIONS — Received report that violation notices were issued last month for illegal backyard burning against Les Walsh of San Rafael and against Shoreline Market in Tamalpais Valley.

BOARD — Reappointed Dr. Theodore K. Cleveland of Berkeley, a chemical engineer, to the district's three-member hearing board.

FEES — Opposed legislation requiring air pollution control districts to raise at least half their budgets from inspection, registration and permit fees. Callaghan, noting the district's budget would be about $3 million next fiscal year, said netting $1.5 million from fees would be "impossible'' because of high costs in administering fees.

VARIANCES — Opposed legislation requiring the district board of directors to approve any variance granted by the district's hearing board. Calvo said that such a requirement would "keep us tied up.''

BAN — Voted "token support'' to a bill banning use of any engine manufactured after 1974 which discharges any pollutant into the atmosphere. Directors agreed such a bill could not pass, but said it deserved "moral support.''

SUPER AGENCY — Opposed AB 1056 by Assemblyman Edwin L. z'Berg, D-West Sacramento, which would create a state Environmental Quality Board with jurisdiction over solid waste, the coastline, air and water pollution.

USED VEHICLES — Endorsed a bill increasing from $65 to $100 the maximum cost of pollution control devices which may be accredited for use on used vehicles. Callaghan said the current $65 maximum had failed to induce industry to develop the devices.

INSPECTION — Endorsed a bill controlling emissions from motor vehicles through an inspection program.

Hayakawa Backs Mass Arrests

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Mass arrests of antiwar demonstrators in Washington may be the best way to "end the problem quickly and without bloodshed,'' according to President S.I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College.

Hayakawa, of Mill Valley, said Wednesday the "final ingredient'' for restoration of civil peace "is the willingness to use the power required to end the troubles.''

"The kind of action that the authorities are taking may do more to end the problem quickly and without bloodshed than any form of appeasement or indecision,'' he told the Comstock Club, a businessmen's group.

Hayakawa, whose campus was the site of prolonged and often violent protests in 1968-69, said that no television viewer "really likes to see mob scenes where young people are in danger of physical harm.''

Three Little Quakes

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Three light earthquakes rolled through parts of Naples early today, sending some residents fleeing into the streets in nightgowns and pajamas. There were no reports of injuries or damage.

Chairman Of Creek Zone Quits

Larkspur City Council Neil R. Brixon last night announced his resignation as chairman and as a board member of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control District Zone 9.

He asked his fellow councilmen to name a replacement and warned that the district faced a stiff tax rate increase — principally because of flood control projects which, he said, were beneficial mainly to the Town of Ross though Ross would not be paying the bulk of the tax.

Brixon said he was leaving the zone board — which he had served since it was formed — for compelling personal reasons, but gave no specifics.

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst joined in voicing worries about the zone budget. Bathurst also reported that Fairfax and San Anselmo have discussed withdrawing maintenance support from the zone.

Tax rate for the Zone 9 is 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, but may jump to 29.1 cents simply to finance some $350,000 to $400,000 worth of flood control work in Ross during the next two years, Bathurst predicted.

He said this would mean Larkspur would contribute $105,000 toward the work; Corte Madera $84,700; unincorporated areas of the zone $125,300 and the Town of Ross only $35,000.

The Larkspur councilmen postponed decisions on Brixon's replacement and on action in the flood control outlay to their June 3 meeting.

Mother's Day

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has asked the Rev. John Harper, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church situated one block north of the White House, to conduct Mother's Day worship services in the East Room Sunday.

Architect Was Not At Church Meeting

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that architect Howard Johnson of Mill Valley appeared Tuesday night at a meeting held at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and delving into proposed demolition of the structure.

Johnson, who has questioned the proposed razing, actually appeared the same night at a meeting in a private home that was called by a group of congregation members also opposed to demolition.

The possession of butter was a symbol of a person's wealth in early Finland.

Panel Reaffirms Antiwar Position

Directors of the Strawberry Recreation District last night reaffirmed an earlier stand and opposed the war in Southeast Asia, blaming it for causing America to become "brutalized and morally ill."

Almost one year ago, on May 12, 1970, the board declared it was "unalterably opposed" to the war and urged immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

Clerk Jeanne Heick said directors adopted a resolution last night reading:

"The board of directors reaffirms the previously stated position of the prior board decrying and disapproving of present military acts in Southeast Asia. Each day this war continues our nation becomes more brutalized and morally ill.

"We respectfully request again the immediate withdrawal of all military forces from Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos and instruct counsel to write letters to all appropriate elected officials."

The vote was 4-0, with director Conrad Von Blankenburg absent.

Directors also approved an agreement with Mill Valley Refuse Service to collect recyclable materials in the district for delivery to Whole Systems, Inc.

Mrs. Heick said the refuse firm will charge customers $1.50 per month for the service. Whole Systems will supply six separate sacks for clear, brown and green glass and tin, aluminum and bimetal cans.

Newspapers and cardboard tied in bundles also will be collected, she said.

Warehouse Plans Are Turned Down

The Novato Plan Review committee last night rejected plans by North Marin Investors for a warehouse and retail sales building as not harmonious with the neighborhood.

The firm plans to construct a 4,975 square foot building on the east side of Reichert Avenue between Sweetser Avenue and Scown Lane.

The Novato Plan Review Committee also:

RENTAL BUSINESS — Approved plans by E. D. McGillicuddy for a building to house a general equipment rental business adjacent to 6981 Redwood Highway.

BOAT SALES — Approved plans by Ladner N. Cameron for a boat sales and service building on the east side of Highway 101, between Novato Creek and the end of Redwood Road.

SHOP — Approved plans by David E. Milano for construction of a 7,000-square-foot building adjacent to 860 Sweetser Avenue for expansion of Aaero Heating and Sheetmetal and other light industrial uses.

SPECIAL MEETING — Scheduled a special meeting at 8 p.m. May 26 at the Novato Community House to study the plan review committee section of the city zoning ordinance with a view toward recommending changes.

Arraignment On Pot Counts

Daniel J. Miller, 25, and Thomas W. Villas, 24, both of Sausalito, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing and cultivating marijuana and possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

They are to plead to the charges May 26.

The pair was arrested Sunday when Sausalito police went to their apartment on a complaint by neighbors of loud music.

The suspected pot and equipment were found in the apartment, police said.

A roommate of the pair, Michael G. Edmond, a San Francisco undercover narcotics agent, is to be arraigned on the same charges tomorrow.

New Grand Jury Sets First Meeting

The 1971 Marin County Grand Jury will hold its first meeting Tuesday at the Hall of Justice.

The jury has agreed to meet on the second Tuesday of each month at 1:30 p.m. and on the fourth Monday of each month at 8 p.m.

First Stage Fire Budget Is Approved

Kentfield Fire District directors last night approved a preliminary budget of $181,196, an 18 per cent decrease from last year's budget of $221,196.

Arthur L. Poganski, board secretary, said the $40,000 difference was due to the district's recent purchase of a new pumper; most of the money for the pumper was included in last year's budget.

The breakdown of the budget is $127,196 for salaries and fringe benefits; $34,000 for maintenance and $20,000 for capital outlay, Poganski reported.

This year's tax rate is 88 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Poganski said he could not estimate what the new tax rate will be, although he anticipates a lower rate.

The directors are expected to adopt the budget at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday. At that time, they also will discuss hiring a new fire marshal. Rolf Stahlbaum, who resigned as fire marshal last month, left yesterday for Washington where he will operate a restaurant, Poganski said.

Sprinkler Money

Peacock Gap Homeowners Association last night approved $4,500 for the underground sprinkler system at the entrance of Peacock and Riviera drives, according to Constantine Carpou, secretary.

Assembly Advances Strikebreaker Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill said by labor to "outlaw professional strikebreakers" and called "a compulsory closing law" by management reached the Assembly floor yesterday after a voice vote split along party lines in the Assembly Labor Relations Committee.

Committee chairman David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, sponsored the bill which would make it illegal for anyone to offer himself three times in five years to replace a worker on strike, and would make it a misdemeanor for an employer to hire "professional strikebreakers." Roberti argued workers needed protection "from persons who cross state lines and prey on the jobs of Californians" — already prohibited by federal law.

Spokesmen for the California Conference of Employers and the California Newspaper Publishers Association called the bill "a compulsory closing law" and "a turkey" introduced and voted down repeatedly for the past 10 years.

Former State Labor Commissioner Sigmund Arywitz of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor testified violence is associated with strikebreakers because "these people are not nice. Some carry guns."

Committee member William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, asked if it were strikebreakers who killed a nonunion printer at the struck Los Angeles Herald-Examiner and systems design engineer Allan W. Daly of the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

"I don't know . . . we're not policemen," answered John Henning, secretary-treasurer of the California Labor Federation.

The slaying of Los Angeles printer Maurice Maynard is unsolved; Frank J. Thurber, a member of the Newspaper Mailers Union, was convicted of murdering Daly, who had never worked for a newspaper before.

The mailers union is an affiliate of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the Independent-Journal since Jan. 7, 1970. Daly was fatally wounded in his San Francisco home on July 4, 1970.

Year In Jail In Pot Case

Dennis B. Williams, 20, of Novato, was sentenced to one year in Marin County Jail yesterday for selling marijuana.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court also placed Williams on probation for three years.

Williams was found guilty by a superior court jury in March of selling the drug last Aug. 17.

He was arrested during a Nov. 7 roundup of suspected drug sellers.

MUSIC REVIEW

How A Broken Violin String Sparked A Memorable Evening

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — A fired up Seiji Ozawa, a broken violin string, a magnetic guest artist plus the towering works of Paganini and Beethoven made last night's San Francisco Symphony Orchestra concert in the Opera House a memorable one.

Maestro Ozawa's creed seemed to be "run, not walk" as he zipped in out of the orchestra shell to take bows, congratulate the orchestra, shake a hand or single out an individual player.

From whatever drives the tiny conductor, the orchestra -seemed to catch fire. Its personnel were in rare form, producing some of the most beautiful sounds of the season, which is rapidly drawing to a close.

But taken in order, the case of the broken violin string seemed to make the concert one of those "togetherness' things with the full house rooting for its field boss, team and guest. It's a good feeling and pinpoints the sheer enjoyment produced in these past 21 weeks by Ozawa.

It all happened so quickly — the broken violen string, that is — the audience gasped, the young guest violinist Itzhak Perlman turned quickly from his chair on a raised platform to concert-master Stuart Canin for his fiddle, who is turn handed the wounded instrument to an associate in back, who immediately gave up his instrument to the concertmaster and then began repairs, pulling from his jacket a case with strings.

The musical chairs business broke the tension, Perlman let out a laugh, Ozawa stopped the orchestra, the guest picked up the fast pace of the Violin Concerto in E Flat (D) Major, Opus 6 by Paganini to finish the first movement — the allegro maestoso — in complete, unshaken virtuosity.

The audience then broke into appreciative applause, the violins were reshuffled and Perlman, who debuted with the symphony two seasons ago, went on to conquer the difficult work which is one of the real showpieces for violin.

Perlman's understanding of his instrument, at the youthful age of 25, is amazing. His tones were crystal clear, even in the two-string passages. It was another one of those complete understandings of the score between guest and maestro which has been evidenced so frequently this season.

Following the final notes, the audience leaped to its feet to give Perlman, crippled since a youngster by polio and shackled by braces and crutches, a rare and warm ovation.

What Ozawa captured in the Paganini — a full bodied but relaxed sound — continued to build in the mighty Symphony No. 3 in E Flat Major, Opus 55 — the Eroica — by Beethoven. The maestro obtained glowing passages from the horns, exquisite shadings from the violins, plus the usual fine work from the reeds. The reading was "big league" all the way and once again signaled the orchestra's coming of age again for recording sessions.

The evening opened with Gluck's Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis" which is full of lush melodies, especially in the lower strings. Ozawa seemed to let the orchestra flow into the beautifully constructed passages.

Following the Gluck, Ozawa presented the string section in Wallingford Riegger's "Study in Sonority, Opus 7." The work is telegraphic with the melody launched by the first chair and then transferred to other chairs. While atonal in nature, it has a sensuous feel and is wonderfully expressive of early 20th Century compositions.

The highest free air movement ever recorded was 225 mph atop Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Berkeley Draft Board Moved To Oakland

BERKELEY (UPI) —The Berkeley draft board, for years besieged with bombs, raids, defacement and demonstrations by radicals, has moved out of town to Oakland and safer surroundings.

Col. Richard Davis, spokesman for the Selective Service regional headquarters in San Francisco, said Wednesday boards Number 46, 47, and 48 were moved to the well-guarded Armed Forces Entrace Station, as part of a "pre-planned decision."

But Davis said the move was not connected with the latest attack on the office Monday, when several dozen antiwar protesters overturned desks and filing cabinets and scattered documents on the floor.

Time Extension Bill For Transit Plan Advances

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation giving the Golden Gate Bridge District another two years to detail a long-range transit plan yesterday was approved without debate by the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

The bill, SB 421 by Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, also would require the plan to be for a system compatible with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. The bill would bar the district from spending money on any transit system during the next two years, except on its interim bus and ferry system.

The measure had cleared committee on Monday.

The district last month gave the Legislature a transit plan for the next decade, but said it had had too little time to look further into the future.

More Trash Containers Supported

The Novato Environment Committee, which has favored placing exposed aggregate trash containers along West Grant Avenue, has called for similar containers along the East Grant, according to Rodney B. Brown, city administrative assistant.

Committee members agreed Monday night to seek acceptable containers for East Grant, he said.

The Committee recommended tree planting along the north side of San Marin Drive in the area of San Miguel Way with a request to the city public works department to proceed with the planting.

Members also changed their meeting dates to the first and third Tuesdays, instead of first and third Mondays, Brown reported.

Allende Gaining Support In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)— Marxist President Salvador Allende, who took office six months ago pledging to "start Chile down the road to socialism," has done just that— and increased his popular following considerably in the bargain.

Socialist Allende, 62, squeaked to victory last Nov. 3 in the three-way presidential election with a 1.4 per cent plurality and only 36 per cent of the popular vote. He headed a coalition of his own socialists, the communists, the radicals and three small non-Marxist parties.

In April's municipal elections these forces won 48 per cent of the popular vote (50 per cent with a little government fudging of the official results to eliminate independents and blank ballots). Allende's Socialist party vaulted into second place with 22 per cent of the votes, behind the reformist Christian Democrats (25 per cent) passing the hemisphere's oldest Communist party for the first time.

Despite a great outlay of effort and money the Communists moved up only one per cent to 17. The rightist National Party got 18 per cent, a decline of four per cent from the 1969 parliamentary elections. The extreme left, but non-Marxist, Radical party which gave Allende his narrow election, plunged to eight per cent.

Allende's popular support increased, his opposition remained apparently hopelessly divided between rightists and christian Democrats —the same division of non-Marxist forces which gave him the presidency by default.

Allende listed four major goals for his "road to socialism" government: nationalization of foreign commerce and internal distribution; nationalization of banks and credits; and completion of the agrarian reform with expropriation of every farm in Chile over 250 acres.

He has made great strides in all but the agrarian sector where illegal seizures of farms by leftist extremist have diverted the government effort.

Some Communists and Sociaplists have participated in the squatter movements, but those government parties quickly quelled this extracurricular activity, and Allende finally warned publicly in his May Day speech that the seizures must cease "because they threaten the agrarian reform with chaos."

On the positive side of the ledger for Allende was assurance that his copper nationalization bill will be enacted into law, probably this month, with Christian Democrat support. Indemnization for the Kennecott, Anaconda, and Cerro Corportation installations would be at initial investment, less depreciation and amortizations to be paid in 30 annual installments at 3 per cent annual interest.

Copper produces 80 per cent of Chile's foreign exchange earnings, and nationalization is so popular that the rightist National Party has not even opposed the measure except to predict dire marketing consequence.

Allende has had mixed success so far in achieving his goal of state control of banks and credits. Under the threat of nationalization legislation — which has never been presented —the government has bought, at premium prices, the controlling shares of nine of Chile's 22 private commercial banks.

The effort continues.

Allende put further pressure on the hold-out banks last week, restricting foreign exchange transactions to seven of the state banks. This deprives the private banks of a traditional source of commission inome.

The Socialist president virtually achieved his objective of a state monopoly on imports last week by applying 10,000 per cent deposit requirements on virtually all imports.

In foreign affairs, Allende has established relations with Cuba, Red China, and East Germany, and has announced he will do so with North Korea and North Vietnam. Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has promised to visit Chile, which is trading beans, garlic and onions for Cuban sugar.

Relations with the United States have been cold but correct.

Measures which have increased Allende's popularity with Chile's proletariat majority have included:

—Effective attempts to deliver a free half-liter measure of powdered milk to each child daily; a reduction of 10 per cent in the price of men's clothing; annullment of an electricity rate increase conceded by the past administrations; dissolution of the riot police squad which used to break up strikers and demonstrating students; priority for the popular neighborhoods in construction of the projected metropolitan subway; a minimum wage for domestic servants.

Allende's only major legislative setback was the government withdrawal in face of certain defeat of the projected "Popular Tribunals" a project aimed at creating neighborhood courts to try "antisocials."

Wanda Ramey Heading Dinner

Television personality Wanda Ramey will be mistress of ceremonies at a testimonial dinner for Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht on May 13, Mrs. Frank McClain, dinner chairman, announced today.

The veteran Marin County health officer will be honored by associates and the public at the dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael.

Members of the sponsoring committee, besides Mrs. McClain, are Mrs. Elmer A. Weden and County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell. Reservations may be made with Mrs. McClain at 2 Shell Court, Mill Valley.

Tiburon Sanitary Panel Studies Budget

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has begun studying a preliminary 1971-72 budget of $123,458, a 25 per cent increase over last year's spending program.

There was no estimate of the effect on the district's tax rate, which stands this fiscal year at 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Most of the increase is attributable to a self-monitoring program installed by the district on order of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

President Robert A. Sterling said the budget includes $18,000 to monitor the district's effluent to determine if it is polluting San Francisco Bay, and another $10,000 for emergency generators to maintain plant operations in case of power failure. Both expenditures were ordered by the regional board.

If these two items, totalling $28,000, are deducted from the budget, Sterling said, the result is a $95,458 budget, only a $1,355 increase over 1970-71.

The preliminary budget, which will be studied by the board, includes $28,410 for salaries and benefits and $67,038 for plant maintenance and operation. No reserve figure is included, Sterling said.

The budget includes the salary of one part-time assistant plant operator to conduct effluent testing under the self-monitoring program.

Petaluma High Has War Protest

About 200 students turned out yesterday for a spontaneous antiwar rally at Petaluma High School, although many in the crowd were observers and some were hecklers.

Cries of "peace now" were mixed with "fight for your country" during the 90-minute morning rally on the school quad.

Principal Dan Montgomery said it appeared to him most of the students were interested more in getting out of classes than in the rally. The school has about 1,500 students, and most stayed in class.

Montgomery said permission for the rally was granted to an ad hoc committee of antiwar students. He said a group which supports President Richard M. Nixon's stand on the war has been given permission to hold its own rally at a future date.

The principal said that group also wishes to pay tribute to Indochina veterans, especially those who have been wounded.

Eastern Air Line Signs Pact For Lockheed Plane

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. officials announced Wednesday that Eastern Air Lines has signed a conditional agreement to reaffirm its purchase of 50 L1011 Tristar aircraft.

A spokesman said the agreement, signed by Eastern Chairman Floyd D. Hall and Lockheed Chairman Daniel Haughton in New York, was necessary because of the financial problems of the RollsRoyce Co., which makes the RB211 engines for the Tristar.

He said the agreement included conditions assuring the airline of financial liability and long-term commitment to the program by both Lockheed and Rolls-Royce.

RAP SESSION

Novato Student Leader Sees 'Confused' Nation

By FRANK FARRARA
(10th in a series of 24 raps)

The United States today "is more confused than anything else," in the view of an 18-year-old student leader from Novato.

John Briggs, a member of the student body council at San Marin High School and of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission, cited changing views toward marriage, work and religion.

But in the long run, he said, "I don't think our generation will do anything drastically different" than has been done by past generations.

No matter how idealistic people are when they are young, they "always mature to the point where they stagnate," he commented.

There are some politicians who "carry on the young vitality," such as expressing concern for environment, "a big bandwagon that most are getting on, and some are getting off early because it's too hot," he said.

Briggs expressed concern about the middle-aged man, with children to support, who is a "slave to his job," and doesn't have a chance to change his way of life.

"Society doesn't allow for change by an individual," he said. The man trapped in his job can't risk breaking the mold if he wanted to because "he couldn't risk not feeding his children."

More and more young people "are interested in getting in a line of work they can mold to their own character instead of molding their character to the job, and they would like to have a freedom of choice," Briggs said.

Before then, there are worries about having enough money to attend college, and being accepted at the college of one's choice, he said.

Briggs advocated a "sabbatical for students," between high school and the end of college "just to get away from the doldrums of classes."

Traveling and talking to others during that year would aid them in years ahead, give them another year to determine which way they are headed in life, before they were committed, he said.

JOHN BRIGGS
"Maturity equals stagnation"

Schools teach the three r's, but "the problem I see is it really doesn't help you to find out where you really want to be pointed to . . . there are so many opportunities.

On marriage, Briggs said "more and more young people are feeling the marriage license really doesn't constitute marriage . . . more and more wish they could have a loose marriage, but still a great number would rather go through the ceremony."

Either way, Briggs said, it was up to the person involved, and he hoped that "society won't pressure them to conform."

Some young people are trying a communal living, "a type of living many tried in generations before," and some leave "either dissatisfied or can't take it," he said.

Briggs also said there is a new approach to religion on the part of some youths. "Religion is really exciting now. It's exciting to be around the kids called 'Jesus Freaks," but that name doesn't seem to fit. I think it's really a good movement."

These youths, he believed, "are more sincere abut God in their own way," than many who go to church one day a week.

The idea of "one hour, dressed quite well . . . that automatically shuts out some people right there . . . that's disillusioning for most people," he said.

Concerning the Vietnam War, Briggs commented: "Just a few years ago I was for the war because my brother was in it. Now I look upon in as a rotting piece of meat hung around our neck. I think more and more kids are just ignoring the war, ignoring that it exists."

Instead of the youth concern and involvement of the recent past, there is now indifference, he said.

Briggs described prejudice as a "human reaction" that has existed for ages. "It's a kind of disease that's been passed down," he said. "I do believe many of the parents have passed down a great deal of hate; more than kids deserve to receive about blacks."

He said he felt sorry for San Marin High School students, "mostly middle class kids" who lack interracial experience, because there are few black students there.

"They faintly realize poverty, but of course, what can a group of students do?" he asked.

On drugs, Briggs said they are "definitely in use. No matter where you go, you'll find them." Those who think they will enrich themselves by drug use "are fooling themselves," he said.

Briggs felt the "hair and dress" debate is now a "dead issue, with people finally letting them go their own way. It's the kids's mind that's important."

As for the future, he believed "there are a lot more fields open for people to travel along, different things to get involved in."

He hoped that "the government could be a little more concerned about this country and our welfare than someone else's, but I'd hate to see isolationism." The government, he said, unfortunately "is trying to make friends at the expense of the people of the United States."

Briggs also felt that "corruption in government needs looking into."

Teen-Agers Put New Franchise To Test With Sample Balloting

By JEFF GREER

Some 200 Terra Linda High School seniors were welcomed to the ranks of the electorate yesterday.

The 18-year-olds tried out Marin County's punch-card ballot system to vote on three sample measures, registered to vote in future elections and heard speeches by city and county officials and spokesmen for partisan and nonpartisan political groups. It was the first such teen-age voter rally in California, its sponsors said.

Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections clerk, gave the 18-year-old voters copies of "Why Bother," a voter information pamphlet produced by his office with the cooperation of a wide spectrum of Marin County partisans and the League of Women Voters.

The students balloted on three measures. The 196 teenagers who visited official polling booths in the school gymnasium voted 178 to 13 in favor of giving 18, 19 and 20-year-olds the right to vote in state and local elections as well as federal.

They voted 160 to 22 in favor of extending all other adult privileges and responsibilities to 18-year-olds.

The closest vote was on a measure asking the students whether they would vote for a womn for president of the United States. The result, 113 to 75 in favor, was almost exactly in the ratio of female to male voters participating.

Besides Meyer, the students heard Judy Ainsworth of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin; Lotte Schiller, Democratic Party spokesman; Bert D. Inman, Republican Party; San Rafael City Councilman John A. Miskimen, and Mrs. Harry R. Luchetta, field representative for State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Terra Linda Student Body President Gordon Walker was master of ceremonies.

Meyer explained that the new voters' booklet resulted from his office's survey of attitudes among teen-agers who could be voters. "Your attitude was, 'why bother?'," he reported.

The booklet was produced after some "hotly debated but very productive meetings," he said, with all political factions in Marin. It is entirely nonpartisan, Meyer declared.

He urged teen-agers to take advantage of the book's advice on how to take active political roles on all levels.

Meyer read a letter from Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who said he regretted inability to attend the rally.

Bagley said he hoped that the necessary 38 states soon would ratify the constitutional amendment giving 18-year-olds the vote in local and state elections, in addition to their new right to vote on federal issues. California and 19 other states have ratified the amendment, he noted.

Republican Inman joined Democrat Mrs. Schiller in urging the students to become active in partisan work. Inman noted that to the beginner, "the political arena is somewhat frightening... all of us went through it. But he told the young people, "you'll discover you're part of government when your first income tax bill arrives."

Mrs. Ainsworth explained the women voters' program, tracing it back to suffragettes who locked their bedroom doors as part of their campaign for the vote. But the league members are not necessarily part of Women's Liberation, she said. "On the 50th anniversary of the women's francise," she answered a questioner, "Women's Lib was picketing in the Civic Center; we were registering voters."

Councilman Miskimen urged young voters not to forget that they will have "great influence" in local government, and pointed out that "local government had great influence on you — your schools, whether your neighborhood has homes or apartments, whether Pepperland (a San Rafael rock hall) is open."

Meyer said he plans to have similar school assemblies for teen-age voters in all Marin County schools next fall.

Meyer and the political volunteers met with government classes in Sir Francis Drake High School last week, and were to meet today with three sets of government classes in Redwood High School.

Meyer said the "Why Bother?" booklet was produced from election department voter education funds, and would be available in quantity at cost, which is 45 cents per copy. He said it is the only such pamphlet for teen-age and other new voters.

Firecracker Blast At Bank Of America

CHICO, CALIF. (UPI)—A powerful firecracker blasted a 10-inch hole in a door Wednesday in the 29th attack on a Bank of America branch in California during the past 16 months.

The cherry bomb explosion shattered the glass door of the suburban branch three miles east of Chico State College. Police said the small explosive apparently had been taped to the door.

Since February, 1970, branches of the world's largest commercial bank have been hit by explosions and firebombings. The bank is criticized regularly in the underground and radical press as a Vietnam War profiteer and a symbol of the American business establishment.

Marinite To Serve On Federal Jury

SAN FRANCISCO — A Marin County woman was among those chosen yesterday to serve on the new federal grand jury.

She is Ann B. Cook of 7 Echo Avenue, Corte Madera. She was chosen by Judge Samuel Conti to serve on the jury until September.

Magee Again Halts Hearing

By MARY LEYDECKER

It looked for a while yesterday as if Angela Y. Davis were finally going to get a hearing on motions in her case, but the court session came to another halt when her codefendant Ruchell Magee challenged the latest judge.

Judge Alan A. Lindsay of Alameda County, sitting in Marin Superior Court, then recessed the case until Monday.

A challenge of Judge Lindsay for cause, in which Miss Davis claimed he was a racist, was denied, but Magee yesterday finally succeeded in getting the court to recognize a peremptory challenge which he made first on his own..

The question now is whether San Quentin inmate Magee still had his one peremptory challenge left or whether he used it against Marin Judge E. Warren McGuire last December.

(Magee and Miss Davis are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Civic Center.)

Magee has attempted to get rid of every judge assigned to the case, usually on the same grounds he used yesterday. He charged Judge Lindsay with "driving over my rights" because the judge would not halt proceedings pending the outcome of petitions for removal of his case to federal court.

(Magee has been denied this transfer in the past but has attempted to file new petitions which federal judges in San Francisco refused to consider.

Yesterday, Magee told Lindsay he "would spend anything" to get the judge out of the case when Lindsay asked him if he wanted to use his one peremptory challenge. Magee's court-appointed attorney, Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles, at first refused to join Magee's challenge but finally agreed reluctantly to do so. Judge Lindsay had said he would not recognize the challenge unless made by Graves.

Magee also said that Graves, appointed by the judge earlier in the day, had been picked by Lindsay to keep him from getting rid of the judge. The judge was not going to recognize the challenge unless made by the attorney.

Magee was also backed by Graves yesterday in his desire to represent himself, with Graves asking for an early hearing on Magee's competency. (Magee was ruled not capable of defending himself at a hearing last year.)

In addition to deciding whether Magee still has a peremptory challenge, Judge Lindsay asked the lawyers to present arguments Monday on whether if Magee uses his challenge, Miss Davis will also have one.

He cited a Los Angeles case, where it was ruled that two defendants had but one peremptory challenge between them.

Howard Moore, chief counsel for Miss Davis, tried yesterday after the challenge was raised, to have Lindsay listen to a motion that Miss Davis be released on bail.

The judge said he would if Moore would agree to be bound by his decision even with the challenge issue unsettled. When Moore refused to make such an agreement, the case was continued to Monday.

It also came out in court yesterday that the five Marin Superior Court judges have never officially disqualified themselves from the case, even though an outside judge was asked to hear motions.

Apparently, although the Marin judges have said privately they would not hear the case because of their friendship with the late Judge Harold J. Haley, killed in the shoot-out, they have never taken the necessary steps to withdraw legally.

Insurance Gap

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Only about 60,000 persons, or 3 per cent of Singapore's 2,070,000 population, are covered by life insurance, says Finance Minister Tan See Shim.

73 Works Owned By Simon Sold: $6.5 Million

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American record for a single session auction of art work was set Wednesday night when 73 paintings and sculptures from Los Angeles tycoon Norton Simon's collection sold for $6,506,300.

The sale at Parke-Bernet Galleries set a world auction record of $380,000 for a sculpture —a Degas bronze of a ballet dancer —and another world auction record of $420,000 for a Gauguin oil, a self-portrait painted just before the artist left Paris for Tahiti.

The previous auction record, set last year, was $5,852,250 for another 73-lot sale of the same 19th and 20th century masters at the same gallery. It also featured works from a West Coast collection, that of the late San Francisco banker, W.W. Crocker.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, May 6, the 126th day of 1971 with 239 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1816 the American Bible Association was organized in New York City.

In 1935 the Works Progress Administration (WPA) was set up by Congress to provide work for the unemployed.

In 1941 Josef Stalin replaced V. M. Molotov as premier of the Soviet Union.

In 1960 Princess Margaret Rose of England was married to a commoner, Anthony Armstrong-Jones. He was elevated to the titled rank of earl 17 months later.

A thought for the day: Washington Irving said, "A woman's whole life is a history of affections."

Deer Attacks Widow At Grave

RIEGELSBERG, Germany (UPI) — A 70-year-old widow grappled with a deer for more than 15 minutes today after the animal attacked her while she visited the grave of her husband, police said.

Passersby heard her shouts and managed to subdue the buck, which was shot later by a forest ranger. The woman suffered serious arm injuries and lost several teeth.

Police said the deer may have had rabies.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Another Review Of Hand Played At Six No-Trump

You have to be at the table to judge what is happening in a certain kind of end situation. There's no chance of going wrong on paper, when you can see all 52 cards; but in actual play you may have to use your knowledge of human beings as well as your knowledge of bridge technique.

20 YEARS AGO

When today's hand was played almost 20 years ago in a New York tournament, Dr. Kalman Apfel played a low club from dummy and captured the ten with the king. He could make the slam by leading toward the king of hearts if East had the ace, but another play was surer to work.

Apfel ran dummy's diamonds, discarding a club, and then ran the spades, coming down to a heart and two clubs in the dummy and a club and two hearts in his own hand. Meanwhile, Dr. Apfel kept a calm clinical eye on the patient at his right.

COLD SWEAT

East had no trouble with his early discards, throwing some spades on the diamonds, and then a club and a couple of hearts on the spades. On the last spade East broke out into a cold sweat when he had to discard from two hearts and two clubs. He finally discarded a heart, saving just the queen of hearts and the Q-6 of clubs.

Dr. Apfel was wondering whether East Would have the nerve to discard a club early if he had started with only three clubs, but he felt sure that he could diagnose the situation when East displayed such emotion.

LOW HEART

Declarer simply led the low heart from his hand. If East won, he would have to lead clubs and give dummy a free finesse. If West put up the ace of hearts, he would have to lead a heart back to South's king; and then declarer would lead a club to dummy's ace for his 12th trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠-6 5 2
♥-A 10 8 7 2
♦-10 5 4 3
♣-7.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

The trump support is very meager, but the ace and the side singleton are just about enough to warrant a bid.

Studio Site To Become Store

The studio announced Tuesday it has leased the eight-acre site, which contains obsolete studio facilities unused for years, to the Harrfield-Zodys discount chain for $4.375 million.

The spokesman said a commemorative plaque will be placed on the $1.5 million store to be built on the site. The plaque will be a reminder of the lot's place in Hollywood's history.

No Recall Move Now In Bolinas

A Bolinas group, unsuccessful last week in a move to get one of its members appointed to a vacancy on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board, said today it will not attempt to recall the district board members at this time.

The Bolinas Future Society had threatened action against the board when it failed to appoint William E. Niman to a vacant seat, even though the 26-year-old teacher at Bolinas School had been supported for the board by a petition signed by more than 200 residents of the district.

Niman said the society decided against moving on the recall now "because we don't want to cause any wars and further polarize the community. He went on to say he is still hoping to obtain a seat on the five-member board and said the society plans to ask for a meeting with directors of the district "as soon as possible, so we can try to arrive at a compromise."

Runs Down Guard With Wheel Chair

Concert To Benefit School Scholarships

San Rafael High School's annual scholarships benefit concert will be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the San Rafael High School Auditorium.

Byron Jones, head of vocal music for San Rafael Schools, will conduct most of the six groups of numbers sung by five San Rafael High School choral groups.

The A Cappella choir will open the concert with the credo from Palestrina's "Assumpta Est Maria" and close it with a medley from Kern's musical "Roberta."

Group II will consist of three songs by the chamber choir conducted by Parker Lee and three selections, including a song setting of a Stephen Crane poem with Diane Sipkin as narrator, and a J.S. Bach-Swingle canon in which Nancy Thelen will play the contrabass viol.

The women's chorus will perform six songs in Group III, featuring Cindy Hill and Nancy Thelen as duo pianists.

A feature of three songs in Group IV by the men's chorus will be one having as bass soloist the father of Byron Jones, Oliver Jones of Richmond, a professional opera singer in the Bay Area for many years.

Group V will consist of selections by a barbershop quartet composed of Jim Armington, first tenor; Parker Lee, second tenor-director; Richard Klarkowski, baritone; and Brian Park, bass.

Burglars Hit Two Schools

Two schools were burglarized during the weekend, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A typewriter valued at $540 was taken between 11 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday from Davidson Junior High School at 280 Woodland Avenue, Principal Laurence D. Breeze reported to police.

A projector lens valued at $60 was taken between Friday and Monday from the Oakview School at 70 Skyview Terrace, Principal Charles S. Warfield, told police.

Municipal Lot Fees Increased

The Sausalito City Council has adopted an ordinance raising the parking fees in Municipal Lot No. 1 from 50 to 75 cents an hour and extending the lot closing time from 6 to 10 p.m.

It passed the ordinance Tuesday, forbidding advertising displays, including vehicles used for advertising purposes in public streets.

Californian To Pacific Panel

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— San Jose State College Professor Dr. John P. Harville has been named executive director of the Pacific Marine Fisheries Commission.

Harville, director of the National Sea Grant program at Moss Landing Marine Laboratories in Monterey County, was picked Monday from 23 candidates.

He succeeds Leo Verhoeven. Harville begins his duties in Portland, Ore., early in July.

More Study Is Asked In Housing Agency Plan

Directors of the Marin County Housing Authority have asked for further study of a proposal to centralize administration of the authority, executive director Wallace K. Shepherd reported yesterday.

He said the board declined to act on the proposal he presented at its Tuesday meeting and asked him to present a more complete plan for review at its May 19 meeting.

The proposal by Shepherd would involve combining some administrative positions and moving all authority records and clerical personnel to the main office at 429 Drake Avenue in Marin City.

The leased housing office would remain in San Rafael under the new plan, he said, but much of the leased housing paperwork would be taken care of in Marin City and the director of the program would report to the main office each day, then go to San Rafael to handle lease negotiations and contract work.

The authority currently has a full-time manager for the county's four senior citizens's housing projects (Novato, Homestead Valley, Northgate and Santa Venetia), according to Shepherd.

If his plan is adopted, Shepherd said the housing manager would become a roving trouble shooter for all public housing in the county, checking records and collections and handling problems.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Way In Which Teeth Appear Is Example Of Nature's Harmony

GROWTH, a complex phenomenon, consists of a number of processes that must work in harmony to produce a normal creature. The various parts of the body seldom grow at the same rate or at the same time. Some organs complete their development before others have begun to do so. The thymus gland, for example, attains its maximum size in early childhood, whereas the sex organs do not stir until puberty. The way in which teeth appear is an excellent example of nature's harmony. Teeth erupt, at the precise moment the jaw has room for them.

ALL SPECIES of life begin as a single cell be it man, mouse, elephant or whale. Thereafter, the rate of growth varies considerably and at birth, some animals are more developed than others. Following birth, milk is the natural food for all mammals. The quantity ingested determines the rate of early growth and each type of milk meets the genetic growth requirements of the particular animal. The ultimate size of a species depends upon heredity and the pituitary gland.

MUCH HAS BEEN written on how nutrition affects growth. Since most research is done on laboratory animals, we are not always sure that the findings are applicable to man. The diet may be adequate but for a number of good reasons is not completely absorbed. Many facets of nutrition seldom are considered.

DURING INFANCY, for example, nutrition contributes to the growth and development of the child. Food is a source of energy and if the room temperature is far below normal, some of the edibles used to maintain body temperature are not devoted to growth. This is a small point but demonstrates the complex facets of nutrition.

THE EFFECT of undernutrition of growth varies with the stage of development the body has reached when the diet is inadequate. It is here that growth harmony is disturbed because certain organs have very high priorities for the available nutrients at different periods of life.

HEART DISEASE, PREGNANCY

D.O.P writes: Can a woman with a rapid pulse due to rheumatic fever safely bear a child?

REPLY

A specific reply to a question of this type cannot be made without a thoro examination. Most women with this kind of heart trouble can go thru pregnancy safely. Those without symptoms do better than women who are short of breath or dropsical.

SORE SHOULDER

REPLY

"Dry socket" is not a mdeical term but if you refer to stiffness or "frozen" shoulder joint, you may be helped by the usual remedies for arthritis or bursitis, such as hydrocortisone or prednisolone. Manipulation of the shoulder, (while anesthetized) and physical therapy may be needed.

IMMUNITY TO VIRUS

D.K. wirtes: Does one attack of infectious hepatitis leave you immune for life?

REPLY

Yes, provided the liver infection is viral hepatitis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this condition.

$3.25 Million In Additional Air Crash Suits

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two more suits have been filed in superior court asking a total of $3.25 million for the deaths of two Air Force personnel killed in a plane crash in the Sears Point area of Sonoma County.

A suit for $3 million was filed Tuesday for the wife and child of T/Sgt. Julius Ryland of Los Angeles. A $250,000 suit was filed for the father of Capt. Ralph Knowles of Norton, Mass. They were filed against Convair division of General Dynamics Corp. of Delaware.

This brings to 12 the suits filed for a total of $23.4 million against General Dynamics Corp. as a result of the plane crash last May when 13 of the 14 persons on board were killed.

The plane crashed minutes after taking off from Hamilton Air Force Base bound for Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash.

Reed School Trustees Get Outlines For Salary Increases

Salary increases of 8.8 per cent for teachers and 8.5 per cent for non-teaching personnel have been submitted to the Reed School District board.

Trustees took the requests under consideration, Tuesday night, according to Supt. Ralph Giovanniello, and will begin negotiating with representatives of both groups soon.

The superintendent said board members hope to arrive at a contract agreement with non-teachers personnel before July 1. No target date for agreement with teachers was mentioned, he said.

Teachers based their salary request on the median of five school districts in Marin: Kentfield, Mill Valley, Ross, San Rafael and Sausaltio.

The total teacher salary budget for next year would go up 8.8 per cent over this year if the teachers' proposal were accepted, although individual teachers may receive more or less than that amount.

Giovanniello said teachers also asked that health care and dental plans, which now cover only the employee himself, be extended to include his dependents.

In addition, teachers asked that three additional steps be added to the salary schedule for those teaching more than 15 years in the district.

The teachers said they hope for a contract settlement before September and that in the event of a late settlement — such as occurred this year, when agreement was reached April 6 — the district should pay interest on retroactive salary increases.

Non-teaching employees submitted two proposed salary schedules to trustees, one calling for 3.5 per cent raises and the other for an added 5 per cent cost-of-living increase which would bring salaries to 8.5 per cent above this year.

The two proposals were presented to trustees last night under a new provision of the state Education Code, which stipulates that contract and salary proposals must be presented to the board in open session before closed negotiations can begin.

The Reed School District board also:

PERSONNEL — Accepted resignation of Arlene Thomas, teacher aide at Reed School, and hired Donna Ferris to replace her. Miss Ferris will be paid $2.41 per hour.

GIFT — Accepted a cress ceramic kiln for Del Mar School from Mrs. Henry Edar of Belvedere.

GRANTS — Hired Donald G. Perry to conduct a one-day audit of three foundation grants to determine if any improper credit card expenditures were made. Perry will charge $17 per hour.

POLICIES — Accepted a list of policies under which disagreements between teachers and the board will be settled.

LIMIT — Set a $500 limit on how much Giovannielo may spend without seeking board approval.

LEASE — Authorized leasing of a car for Giovanniello for no more than $86 per month.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Denied that it would not hold summer school this year because of lack of interest.

San Marin High Concert Set Sunday

Five soloists and five ensembles, rated superior at a recent festival, will perform at San Marin High School's third annual spring concert at the school gymnasium at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The concert band will perform a special arrangement of "House of the Rising Sun" by Holcomb and a concert version of the "Henderson Festival March" by Williams.

Soloists will be Richard Tuck, flutist; John Henderson, bass vocalits; Candie Yardas, clarinetist; John Briggs, French horn, and Steve Salgo, trumpet.

The concert choir will sing "Windmills of Your Mind" by Bergmann and the spiritual 'In's That Mornin," by Ehert.

Ensembles performing will include the saxophone quartet of Beverly Hamman, Shawn Cole, Gerald Fountain and John Klater; the clarinet trio of Candie Yardas, Tim Hesla and Pete Sorensen; the vocal octette of Valerie Knowles, Jennifer Womack, Joyce Beedle, Lorrie Trevino, Marguertie Smith, Kevin Karkalla, Ralph Purtill and John Henderson; the flute quartet of Richard Tuck, Paula White, Melinda Kelley and Jan Trevino, and the trumpet trio of Steve Salgo, Paul Hesla and Mark O'Connell.

IF YOU'RE GOING TO SPEND AROUND $3000 FOR A CAR THIS YEAR WHY NOT SPEND AN EXTRA $30 AND GET A BUICK.

On an average, that's where Buick Skylark stands with 7 leading comparable medium-priced cars.

In some cases, Skylark is a little more than $30. In others, it doesn't even cost as much.

In fact, the 1971 Buick Skylark costs about the same as any medium-priced car.

But there's nothing medium-priced about its style. Or qualitv.

With standard equipment like an advanced ventilation system: A semi-closed cooling system that should never overheat. And Buick's magic-mirror finish that never needs waxing.

So, before you put upwards of $3000 into a medium-priced car, look into Buick's Skylark at your local Bay Area Buick/Opel Dealers.

They've been in the Bay Area long enough for you to feel secure when it comes to guaranteeing and servicing a new car.

They also have a lot of new Skylarks. Right now.

Bids On Slide Repair Sought

Bids to repair a slide caused by storm damage on Shoreline Highway south of Panoramic Highway near Stinson Beach have been called for by the California Division of Highways.

The division has $66,000 earmarked for the project. Bids will be opened June 2 in Sacramento.

Bids will also be opened at the same time on installing electronic vehicle detectors on Highway 37 in Marin County just inside the Sonoma County line and on Highway 101 at the Lucas Valley Road undercrossing north of San Rafael.

Speed Limit On Shoreline Reduced

The speed limit for a section of Shoreline Highway just north of Bodega Bay in Sonoma County has been reduced from 65 to 35 miles an hour by the state Division of Highways.

The new reduced speed zone starts 2,000 feet north of Doran State Park entrance to 2,000 feet south of Kent Avenue where it joins the present 25 miles per hour speed zone north from that point through the town. The speed reduction was requested in the Bodega Bay Master Plan Committee.

Juan Marichal Winning Again But He's Not Satisfied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Juan Marichal is winning again but he isn't satisfied.

Wednesday he stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates on three hits for his fourth victory of the year compared to two losses as the Giants scored a 2-1 victory to stay comfortably atop the National League West.

"I didn't have good control at the start," said Marichal. "I missed too many pitches and I walked too many men."

Marichal walked three batters in all, which for him is some sort of tragedy. The Marichal of old—before the 1970 collapse—hardly ever walked a batter, let alone three in one game. For example, he walked only 54 batters in 300 innings in 1969. Over his big league career of nearly 3,000 innings before this season, the high-kicking righthander walked a total of 551 men, which figures out roughly to one pass every six innings.

"All my pitches were working in this game," Marichal said, "but my best pitch was my fastball."

Still, it was a fastball which "got away" that Bob Robertson hit for a long home run in the second inning for the only run Marichal gave up.

"That was a bad pitch," Juan said. "I never should have made it."

A single by Willie Stargell and a double by Bob Oliver in the sixth were the only other hits Marichal gave up. Over the last three innings, he faced only 10 men and in the eighth and ninth the Pirates failed to get the ball out of the infield.

While most N.L. pitchers dislike working in Candlestick Park with its tricky winds and cold drafts, Marichal, a native of the Dominican Republic, feels right at home.

"It's my No. 1 park," he said. "I like pitching in Candlestick better than in any other park I know of. You get used to the wind and I prefer the cool weather to heat."

His victory over the Pirates snapped a personal two-game losing streak. Marichal lost at home to the Cardinals on April 20 after winning his first three starts and then dropped a 6-2 decision to the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Ken Henderson gave Marichal all the help he needed Wednesday. His fifth inning single drove in San Francisco's first run for a 1-1 tie and his infield out in the seventh scored what proved to be the winning run.

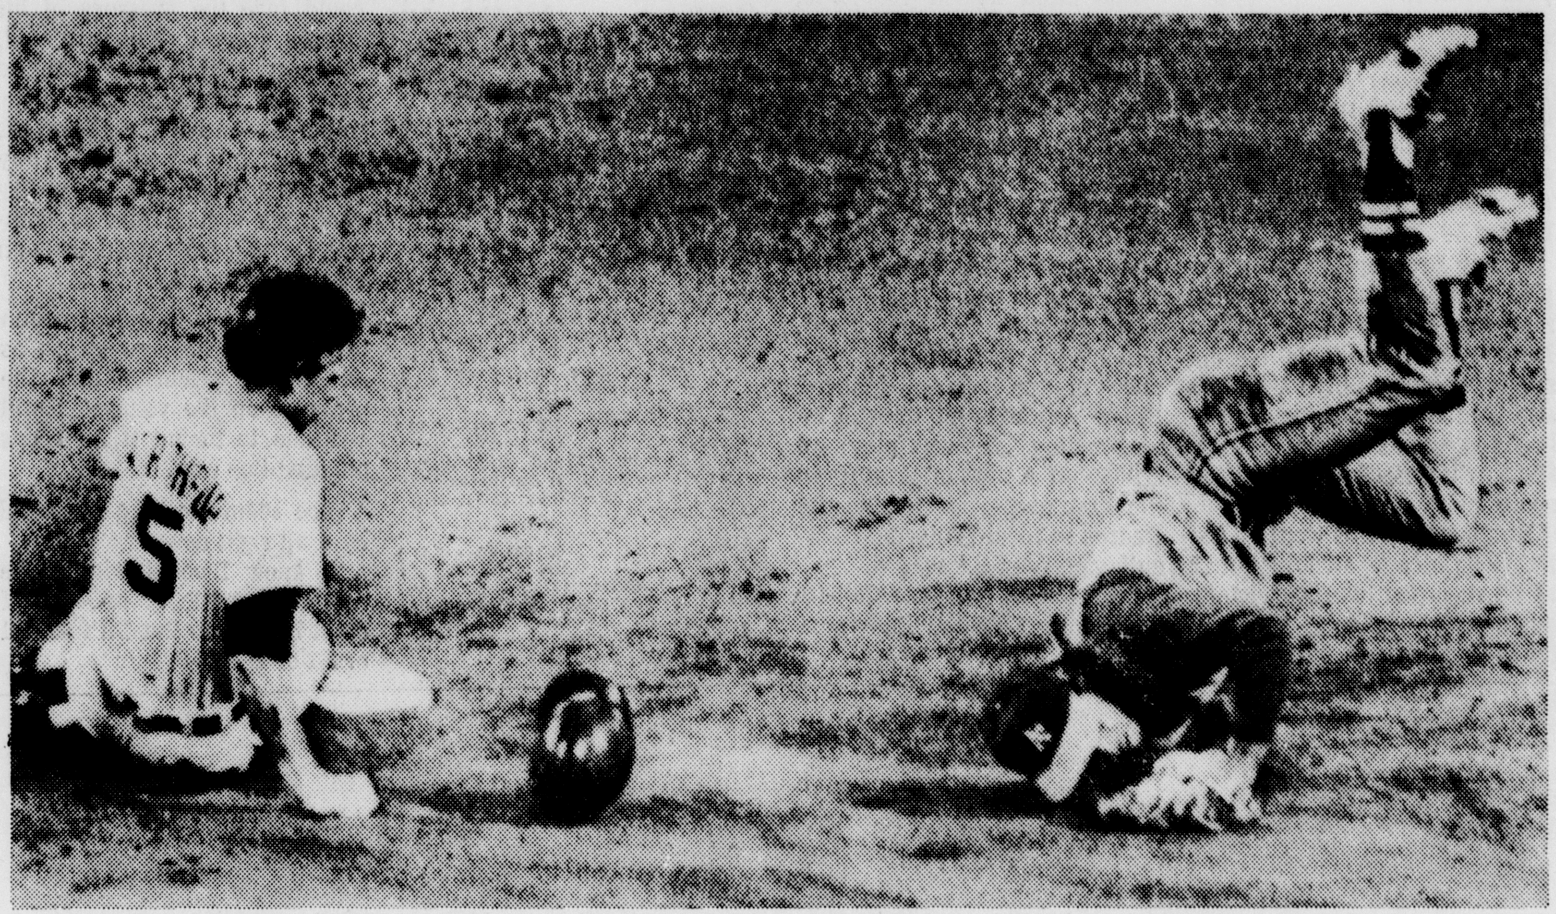
"It's about time I help a little," said Henderson, another modest fellow who now has 11 rbi's on the season. Henderson is still hurting and at times is unable to grip the bat the way he'd like. It all goes back last month to when he injured his right thumb sliding into third. Even though the thumb throbs at times, Henderson is playing.

"The way we are going," he says, "it's no time to sit down."

Today is an off day in the schedule and all the Giants sit down to dinner with about 850 other folks to help teammate Willie Mays celebrate his 40th birthday.

The San Francisco-Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America is sponsoring the party at a Nob Hill hotel. Proceeds from the party—with each person in attendance paying $24 for the privilege—will go to a boys club in San Francisco in keeping with Mays' wishes.

Fantastic Vida Stymies Tigers



PUT OUT THE HARD WAY — Oakland A's second baseman Dick Green sprawled in the dirt after tagging Tigers' sliding Jim Northrup in the fourth inning last night in Detroit. Northrup tried to stretch a single into a double, but Rick Monday made a perfect throw to Green for the out. Oakland won, 5-0.

Sparkling 7-1 Record For Blue

DETROIT (UPI) —Super southpaw Vida Blue of the Oakland Athletics has levelled with inflation.

He knows today that the lucky 20 cents he's keeping in his trousers is now worth 13 cents. He keeps the two dimes as a constant reminder he wants 20 victories this season.

Blue registered his seventh straight victory by shutting out Detroit 5-0 on four hits Wednesday night to reduce value of the two dimes to 13 cents. Since losing the season's opener to Washington, the 21year-old flame-throwing pitcher has been unbeatable.

But Blue isn't pushing his luck. At least he's not admitting it outwardly.

"I can't believe it," he said. "I knew I could pitch in the majors but 7-1...? I'll take 8-1, 8-2 or even 8-8."

Vida, who has not allowed more than six hits in a game since the opener, started off slowly. He threw 84 pitches in the first four innings but settled down to tossing 54 in the last five and retiring 13 of the final 14 batters.

Blue fanned 11 batters to run his major-league leading strikeout total to 70.

On the night before, the A's dropped a one-run decision to the Tigers when rightfielder Reggie Jackson erred in the bottom of the ninth. But Jackson showed he was made of sterner stuff Wednesday night.

He singled off starter and loser Dean Chance, now 0-5, in the fourth inning, stole second and tallied the A's first run on a single by Sal Bando.

That run would have been enough for Blue. But Oakland came back with four more runs in the fifth inning to route Chance and ice the victory.

Don Mincher surprised the Tigers by scoring Jackson from third on a suicide squeeze bunt to cap the outburst.

Dick Green opened the inning when he was hit by a pitch. Green was sacrificed to second by Blue and scored on singles by Bert Campaneris and Joe Rudi. Jackson beat out an infield hit and continued to third when the third baseman fired the ball past first base.

The A's have an off day today before opening a three-game weekend series in Baltimore Friday night.

DONOHUE ZIPS

High Speed Indy Testing

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Mark Donohue apparently has scrapped his high-speed testing and started to work on his plans for the 500-mile auto race itself.

But some of the drivers would like to have the extra miles per hour the Media, Pa., speedster is registering even with a full load of fuel.

Donohue toured the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2 1-2mile track Wednesday for 20 laps unofficially over 170 miles per hour. Eighteen were over 172 m.p.h.—faster than the official one and four-lap average set by Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., in a turbocar in 1968. Donohue later said he was checking car handling with a full fuel load.

Donohue, who paced to an unofficial 174.757 m.p.h. on Monday, was caught at 174.622 for his quickest circuit Wednesday.

Two more drivers joined the 170 m.p.h. category in practice. Denis Hulme of New Zealand, driving a McLaren racer identical to the one of Donohue, registered a 172.944 unofficially on the electric eye. Leonard roared to a 170.1 speed.

Hulme's teammate, Peter Revson of New York City, and 1968 "500" champ Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., registered 170.4 Tuesday.

A.J. Foyt Jr., Houston, Tex., made his first appearance on the track this year in his newly designed rear-engine Ford. But the runs only were for shakedowns.

Rain interrupted practice twice Wednesday. The second yellow light kept the track closed the last three hours. The course also was shut down two hours at noon.

Two speedway "rookies" completed their drivers tests. They were Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., and Sam Posey, Sharon, Conn. Al Loquastro, Eaton, Pa., passed the first two phases of his test before the rains came.

Officials report 52 cars were in "gasoline alley" late Wednesday and exactly half had passed the USAC technical inspection. Twenty one of those approved had been on the track by Wednesday afternoon.

Physical examinations had been approved for 43 drivers.

MATTER OF MONEY

Pro Basketball Merger Possible

NEW YORK (UPI)—Merger committees of the National and American Basketball Associations met separately today to discuss the feasibility of an immediate amalgamation that could end the escalating money war for college players.

An NBA committee headed by Abe Pollin, president of the Baltimore Bullets, and its ABA counterpart, chaired by Wendell Cherry, Kentucky Colonels' owner, have been meeting for the last four weeks in an effort to secure peace in the pros and present a united front that would bid for congressional approval of a merger.

It was reported several weeks ago that all but two of the NBA owners were gung-ho for a merger. Their pocket books were emptying because of the telephone number contracts being signed and they are all aware of the uproar that will be created when fans hear mention of ticket price increases to make up the deficit in the club treasuries.

Sam Schulman, owner of the Seattle SuperSonics and a member of the NBA merger committee, has been predicting all along that a merger was forthcoming, now and not in the distant future.

All the ABA owners are for the consolidation that, if effected, would create a 28-team league — 17 from the NBA and 11 from the ABA.

"Frankly, we're not far apart from what I hear, said an ABA spokesman.

The one huge roadblock that must be circumvented is the players' feelings that a merger would cut into their chances for fat salaries. The NBA Players Association contends a merger would be an anti-trust violation and injurious to their livlihood.

For a time, the Boards of Governors of both leagues were fearful Congress would be sympathetic to the players' charge and if the situation were presented before the legislature it would not grant basketball the immunity from anti-trust laws that pro football and baseball enjoy.

Apparently, the owners are prepared to risk congressional disapproval since it may be their only chance for many of them to emerge from the red. Only a few of the NBA clubs are said to be making money, including the New York Knicks and Milwaukee Bucks who played before sellout crowds all season. The ABA is hurting, too, at the gate and trying desperately to recover through the signing of big name collegians.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph refused to portray a positive viewpoint today over a possible merger. He did say, "I have always felt that a consolidation of the NBA and ABA was inevitable and I anticipate a move in that direction in the near future."

An indication that merger committees are working overtime toward a common solution was emphasized by Ben Kerner, owner of the old St. Louis Hawks, who said he had an opportunity to buy into one of the top attendance-drawing NBA teams but shelved a decision because, "if a merger comes about, I may not want any part of it."

"If I owned a franchise, I'd vote against the merger," Kerner said. "I just can't see a 28-team league."

In addition to paying big prices for college players, both leagues have been hurt by player jumpings. Zelmo Beaty gave the Utah Stars a boost toward the ABA title when he jumped from the Atlanta Hawks. Rick Barry, a former NBA scoring champion, hurt San Francisco's title hopes when he signed an ABA contract. Joe Caldwell put spark into the Carolina Cougars when he slipped away from the Hawks.

Conversely, Connie Hawkins made Phoenix an NBA contender when he jumped from the ABA.

Marin '9' Loses 3rd Straight

The College of Marin Tars are staggering through the final week of the Camino Norte Conference baseball season. Yesterday they dropped to fourth place by suffering their third straight loss, 7-5 to Solano J.C. in Vacaville.

With just two games left on the schedule, today against Santa Rosa and Saturday against Canada of Redwood City, the Tars trail those teams plus West Valley of Campbell in the CNC standings. Marin's record is 11-8.

Yesterday's loss went to Chris Rowland, a superb relief pitcher who was forced into a starting assignment when coach Vic Petreshene ran through his normal starters early in the week. Rowland got relief from Stu Kneeland in the seventh, but by that time Solano had all their runs. The Tars betrayed both pitchers with seven errors along the way.

Marin's Larry Brazda, the leading hitter in the league, improved his average to nearly .450 with two hits in four trips, including a double. Second baseman Mike Parnow also had a single and double, liefting his average toward .325.

Group Bids $6 Million For Indians

CLEVELAND (UPI) —A group of businessmen here has offered $6.5 million for the Cleveland Indians.

David Brunswick, owner of Brunswick & Son Florists here, revealed Wednesday he and a small group of other businessmen had asked club owner Vernon Stouffer for a letter of intent to sell the team.

Jim Stouffer, vice president of the Indians, said late Wednesday he had no comment on the offer. He said he had been out of town and not seen it.

Most of the businessmen are Clevelanders, Brunswick said, and they plan to keep the franchise here with "one of the most famous pitchers in history" as manager.

Brunswick said the same group had made an offer for the team in 1969, but that Stouffer had not considered it.

Stouffer said last week he was not actively seeking to sell the team but that he would consider a $9 million offer.

Brunswick said his group arrived at the $6 1-2 million offer after hearing reports that shipping magnate George Steinbrunner was offering Stouffer about $6 million for the franchise.

Steinbrunner said he has made no such offer.

Watch Out For Schroeder In Byron Nelson Golf Play

DALLAS (UPI) — John Schroeder ranks 87th among touring golf's money winners, but he must—at least for the moment—rank as one of the gallery favorites in the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic starting its 72-hole run today.

The 24-year-old Schroeder, who is—but would like to make people forget it—the son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder, has earned but $9,500 on the golf trail this season.

Schroeder owns, however, the lowest scoring average of any of the 147 players lashing out at Preston Trail Golf Club's 7,031yard, par 35-35—70 layout.

He has played Preston Trail in an average of 68.75 strokes per round compared with a 69.13 average for Jack Nicklaus, 69.50 for Arnold Palmer and Dan Sikes, 69.88 for Dave Stockton and even par 70 for Lee Trevino—all of them in the field here.

It must be taken into consideration that Schroeder has played only one tournament here, while Nicklaus and Stockton have played it twice and Palmer and Trevino all three times the Nelson has called the course home.

But, Schroeder's performance earned the respect of the galleries and his pro contemporaries because of the circumstances.

He was the "third man" in last year's memorable 36-hole final day head-to-head duel between Nicklaus and Palmer in which the two greats wound up tied for the lead with Nicklaus winning on the first extra hole.

Despite the tremendous gallery storming along with the day's final threesome, Schroeder refused to buckle under the pressures. He outshot both Nicklaus and Palmer with a 6967—136 finish that earned him $5,900 in a tie for third with Trevino.

That drew such comments as "John kept coming at us" and "John kept his cool when he might have lost it" from Nicklaus and Palmer.

Schroeder went on to earn $32,000 in his rookie year.

That isn't much when you consider both Nicklaus and Palmer have each already pocketed more than $100,000 this year.

But, Schroeder hadn't done well up to this point a year ago. Now, here he is again and he feels last year's experience here will help him over the hump.

"I certainly think it will help," he said. "I definitely have some positive thoughts about it. I know I can play this course."

'A Goal Tenders' Series

CHICAGO (UPI)—The rival coaches, Billy Reay of the Chicago Black Hawks and Al MacNeil of the Montreal Canadiens, declared "it's a goal tenders' series," so the Hawks should be favored to continue their winning way in the final series for hockey's prized Stanley Cup.

The Hawks hold a one-game lead going into tonight's second game of the best-of-seven series, as much by virtue of the goal tending of Tony Esposito as the game-winning goal Tuesday night by Jim Pappin in the 2-1 Hawks' overtime victory.

But while Esposito kept the Hawks alive, Ken Dryden did almost as well for the Canadiens. Esposito faced only 37 Montreal shots and saved 36 of them, while Dryden was the target for 58 Chicago shots and two slipped by.

ABA PLAYOFFS

Utah Stars Take 2-0 Lead

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah coach Bill Sharman glanced at the sheet of statistics and said, "We've got to slow Dan Issel down."

You might think those the words of a loser. However, Sharman and his Utah Stars will be carrying a 2-0 advantage in the best-of-seven championship series for the American Basketball Association title back to Louisville, Ky., Friday night and Saturday afternoon against the Kentucky Colonels.

Utah's Zelmo Beaty ran like a gazelle and scored 40 points to propel the Stars to a 138-125 win over the Colonels before a sellout home crowd of 13,208 at the Salt Palace Wednesday night.

What bothered Sharman was the 40 points scored by Issel which nearly helped Kentucky pull out the second game.

Issel, a 6-9 rookie forward, combined with Darel Carrier and Walt Simon in a torrid second period that saw the Colonels leading 40-39 about nine minutes before the half. The score changed hands seven times and was tied four times in the final four minutes of the second period before the Stars pulled away to a 65-62 halftime bulge. The Stars tightened their defense in the second half and pulled away from the Colonels.

Beaty got lots of help from forward Willie Wise in the second half. Wise hauled down 24 rebounds and scored 26 points.

A Near Sellout For Mays' Party

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Willie Mays' 40th birthday party, to be held Thursday at a mid-town hotel, is a near sellout.

A crowd of about 900 is expected for the party, sponsored by the San Francisco-Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. All proceeds from the party will be donated to an underprivileged boys club in San Francisco.

A spokesman for the writers' chapter said Wednesday some tickets remain and can be purchased at the door.

The party gets underway at 7 p.m. at the Fairmont Hotel with tickets selling for $24.00 each

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

A Little Lineup Juggling Pays Off For Cincy Reds

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Cincinnati Reds have finally gotten a taste of last season.

The Reds, who ran away with the National League West and stormed to the NL pennant last season, have had their problems this year. After winning only nine of their first 23 games and being lodged in fifth place, the Reds needed a change.

Manager Sparky Anderson took care of that Wednesday night with a little lineup juggling and it paid off handsomely. Anderson moved Tony Perez into the No. 4 slot and Perez delivered a tiebreaking three-run homer in the seventh inning to boost the Reds to an 8-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Perez' homer, his third of the season, came after Jimmy Stewart led off with a pinch-hit double and Ty Cline walked. Lee May added a solo homer in the seventh to complete the Cincinnati scoring.

"This is sort of what it was like last year," said Anderson. "I moved Perez to the fourth spot last year and dropped Johnny Bench to third when we ran into a bad streak and it paid off then."

In other NL games, San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 2-1, Chicago niped New York 5-4, St. Louis ripped Philadelphia 5-1, Montreal downed Houston 5-1 and Atlanta beat San Diego 3-1 after losing the doubleheader opener 3-1.

Danny Breeden's two-run singled capped a four-run fifth inning that carried the Cubs past New York. Breeden's two-out single scored Billy Williams and Ron Santo with the tiebreaking runs after Santo's two-run single had tied the score at 3-3.

Ferguson Jenkins went all the way for Chicago, striking out 12 as he recorded his fifth victory against two defeats. He was touched for three runs in the first inning, two on Ed Kranepool's homer, before allowing only five hits over the last seven innings. Rookie Charlie Williams took the loss.

Lou Brock and Jose Cardenal hit eighth-inning home runs to break open a tie game and lead the Cardinals over Philadelphia. Brock opened the inning with his homer off Joe Hoerner and Cardenal hit his after Matty Alou doubled and Ted Sizemore walked.

Ron Hunt lashed four hits, including his first homer of the season in the first inning, to lift Montreal past the Astros. Bill Stoneman allowed only six hits to gain his third victory in four decisions.

Winning pitcher Jim Nash and Gil Garrido each singled in a run in the sixth inning of the second game to lead the Braves past San Diego. Al Severinsen, making his 16th relief appearance of the season, induced Henry Aaron to hit into an inning-ending double play to choke off a Braves' rally in the first game and enable the Padres to record only their seventh victory of the season.

Ollie Brown and Nate Colbert had homers for the Padres in the first game.

Giants To Sign Two Japanese

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants announced Wednesday they will sign a pair of Japanese pitchers Thursday upon their arrival in town.

The pitchers, both of whom played for Japanese teams last year, will be signed to contracts with the Giants' Pacific Coast League Phoenix farm club.

Basketball

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Baltimore Bullets forward Gus Johnson had lateral cartilage removed from both knees Wednesday at Kernan Childrens' Hospital in Baltimore.

Team physician, Dr. Kenneth Spence, said the surgery was successful and said Johnson, 32, was in satisfactory condition after the 90-minute operation.

Golf

DALLAS (UPI)—Houston golfer Homero Blancas whipped around the par-72 Preston Trail Golf Course in 65 Wednesday to win the pro-am division of the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Blancas, a former star at the University of Houston, will receive $500 for having the low round for the professionals.

Football

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel has cast his lot with the Los Angeles Rams for at least the next four years and possibly as long as he remains in the National Football League.

The star quarterback's decision to accept a four-year contract with the Rams instead of playing out his option was announced Wednesday by assistant general manager Johnny Sanders.

There had been fears in some quarters that Gabriel might play out his option and join the exodus of performers who followed deposed coach George Allen to the Washington Redskins.

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Chicago Bears owner George S. Halas said he gave a federal grand jury investigating the National Football League "a lot of information and some laughs" during his two hours of testimony.

Halas, 75, one of the founders of the NFL, testified Wednesday afternoon before the federal panel, which has been investigating possible anti-trust violations by the NFL since last November.

He said he is sure the NFL has done nothing illegl, because, if it had "I would have been the first to raise questions about it."

Horse Racing

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Good Behaving, an impressive winner in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Aqueduct, has been withdrawn from the Preakness.

Trainer John Campo, who also trains Jim French, the runnerup in this year's Kentucky Derby, said he decided to withdraw Good Behaving because "he doesn't run so good when shipped out of town."

Tennis

ROME (UPI)—Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe, both of whom struggled past lesser second round competition, led a four-man United States contingent into today's third round of the $50,000 Italian tennis championships.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Will Success Spoil Vida?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Will success spoil Vida Blue?

That's the only worry Oakland A's Manager Dick Williams has these days as Blue, a 21-year-old left-hander, continues to be the pitching sensation of the young baseball season.

"I'd like to keep him in a glass cage and just send him out when it's his turn," Williams smiled Wednesday night after Blue won his seventh straight to boost his record to 7-1 on a four-hitter as the A's downed Detroit 5-0.

When he was asked if Blue could face the pressure of his sudden success, Williams said, "I don't think he's going to have any problems. He's very intelligent and he's assumed his responsibilities without any problems. He's got a pretty good guy around him in Tommy Davis, who's been through all this himself."

But Blue has only just begun to cope with his new status as an instant celebrity and the pressure on the youngster will continue to mount if he keeps pitching this way.

"I knew I could win in the majors, but 7-1...?" he said. "I can't believe it. But I'll take 8-1 or 8-2 or even 8-8."

He added, "it's great to be compared to a Koufax or a McDowell but I just try to be Vida Blue."

Williams was asked how many games Blue will win and he said, "somebody just asked me that and I said how many starts does he have. I just hope he stays healthy and can pitch when it's his turn." Williams has been alternating Blue with three and four days rest.

Blue's statistics are somewhat staggering. He was knocked out on opening day in Washington but he's pitched seven straight complete games since including four shutouts. He leads the league with 69 strikeouts in 62 innings pitched and with a 1.02 ERA.

In the other games, Minnesota beat New York 5-3, Milwaukee edged Washington 43 and Kansas City topped Cleveland 4-2. The California at Baltimore and Boston at Chicago games were rained out.

Leo Cardenas drove in all five Minnesota runs—three with his first homer in the second inning—as the Twins beat New York. Jim Perry, 5-2, went 7 2-3 innings to get the victory and Stan Bahnsen lasted two innings while suffering the defeat.

A bases-loaded pinch single by Andy Kosco highlighted a rhubarb-filled seventh inning as Milwaukee edged Washington. The rhubarb started when Andy Kosco went to the at bat circle and Washington Manager Ted Williams switched pitchers. Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol then aruged he never actually sent Kosco in as a pinch-hitter and tried to put starter Johnny Briggs back into the game. Bristol was thrown out and Kosco made it all academic by driving in two runs to win the game.

Amos Otis hit a two-run homer in the four-run sixth inning as Kansas City beat slumping Cleveland. Dick Drago, 4-1, went 8 1-3 innings to get the victory and Steve Dunning took the loss.

20-Game Winner

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Bob Gibson, the 1970 National League Cy Young Award winner, has won 20 games five times during his career with the St. Louis Cardinals. Gibson's first try in professional sports was a tour with the Harlem Globetrotter Basketball Team.

Tar Stars Lead Loop Statistics

College of Marin baseball players lead the Camino Norte Conference in six of eight offensive catagories, according to statistics released yesterday.

Four of the top marks belong to the Tars' power hitting first baseman, Rafael Gallardo, while outfielder Larry Brazda leads the league in hitting with a .434 average. He, second baseman Mike Parnow and Brazda are all hitting above .300.

Gallardo's credentials include league leading figures in runs scored, 16; triples, 3; home runs, 4; and runs batted in, 16. He is hitting at a .314 clip.

Brazda all but has the hitting title sewed up as he leads the next best batter by .42 points. He also holds the top mark in total hits with 23, but teammate Parnow is close on his heels in that department. Parnow has 21 safeties in a league-leading 64 at bats, for a .328 average.

The only catagories where Marin players do not lead are doubles and stolen bases.

The Tars also have the league's two top pitchers, from the point of innings worked. Dennis Bueler has pitched 55 innings, and Gerry Goodrick 53 and one third. Bueler has the seventh best earned run average, 2.62.

MARIN-SONOMA GOLF

12 Area Players In Norcal Tourney

Last week's Division A record for entries in the Northern California Golf Association four ball stroke play tournament has been shattered by Division B, in which 216 two-man teams will compete today through Saturday at Spyglass Hill in Pebble Beach.

Twelve Marin and Sonoma County golfers are entered in the tourney, which drew 190 teams including 23 players from Marin for its A Division competition last week. Half the local players entered in the B Division event are from Marin Country Club in Novato: Richard Hunter, Frank King, Kelly Gearety, Emil Renati, Alex Kazakoff and Elwood Frink. Also entered are Terry Jarcik, Graham Young and Dallas Pack of Rohnert Park, Albert Hahn and Victor Regalia of Meadow Club in Fairfax, and Keeler Nash of Mill Valley.

In spring handicap finals, Mrs. William McVickers defeated Mrs. Rowe Waller for the Indian Valley crown, and Mrs. Fred Greenland shot a three-round net total of 189 to win the Mill Valley crown.

Decker Mowing 'Em Down

Former Marin County high school baseball stars now playing in the minor leagues are off to so-so starts this year, but Joe Decker, one time pitching wonder for Petaluma High in Sonoma County, is mowing them down in the Pacific Coast League.

John Dolinsek of Novato, the only ex-Marin player in AAA ball, is hitting .233 after two weeks with Oklahoma City of the American Association. Three of his 10 hits are home runs, however, and three more are doubles, which should please the Houston Astros, parent club of Oklahoma City.

Decker, now in Tacoma after spending much of last year with the Chicago Cubs, is leading the PCL with a 1.45 earned run average. For 31 innings of work he has a 2-0 record, with 33 strikeouts.

Early season reports on other Marin players in the minors; Tom Corder of Novato, playing for the Dodgers' class A Bakersfield farm team, went two for four in his first game of the season, one of his hits was a double. Another class A player, Dewey Forrey of Terra Linda, is off to a horrible start with the Dodgers' Daytona Beach, Fla, club. He has only two hits in 20 at bats.

On the AA level, Ken Johnson, former Redwood star, was hitting .286, with four hits in 14 trips.

Can an $18 tire REALLY be as good as a $30 tire?

GOODSTONE
TRIPLE 'S' TIRES
$30.00
$18.00

At TRIPLE 'S' it can!

We buy all our tires in rail car lots directly from the big tire factories. Go out and unload the cars ourselves. Eliminates a bundle of overhead expenses.

If you've ever been in a TRIPLE 'S' store, you know it's clean. The people are friendly. BUT . . . it's not fancy and there aren't any big expensive fixtures for YOU to pay for.

So, quite honestly, at TRIPLE 'S', we CAN sell the same tire for $18 that you'd buy somewhere else for $30.

The tire we're featuring this week for $18 is a double belted premium quality tire made by one of the oldest tire manufacturers in the United States. It's a dual white-wall of the latest design. It's NOT a second. If you bought it with the manufacturer's name on it you'd have to pay $30. But our tire is called a Harvard . . . not a Goodyear or Firestone.

You've probably never heard of a Harvard tire. Quite frankly, neither had we until a couple of months ago. But, you'll know the manufacturer when we tell you who it is.

The Harvard tire is every bit as good as the tire that carries the manufacturer's name. But much less expensive. After all, you can't put costly TV advertising on your car. What you want is safety and, the most miles per dollar. That's exactly what we sell.

When you come and buy this tire for $18, we GUARANTEE it'll go 30,000 miles. We'll give you a written guarantee telling you exactly what we will do. And what we won't do. Give us a try.

Why spend $30 for an $18 tire?

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

A Vote For Mid-Season All-Star Game

By DAVID EINSTEIN

This year two post season all-star baseball games will be played involving Marin County high school students, which brings up a good question. Why, when the major leagues stage their all-star game as a celebration of the season's halfway point, must high school wait until the season is over, including the shouting, to hold theirs?

The answer can be found in the archaic and hypocritical reasoning of the California Interscholastic Federation, which like Avery Brundage and the IOC means well but as often as not screws things up. In the area of all-star competition, the CIF demands that games be limited to the post season, during which time, because of an NCAA rule, only graduating seniors are eligible to play.

There is little doubt that, say, a mid season all-star game between the northern and southern teams of the Marin County Athletic League would pack Albert Park with more than 2,000 fans. And there would be tremendous advantages to such a game, for players, fans and the general public.

In the first place, it would give players who are doing well at mid year, including underclassmen (the only restriction on them is that they cannot play after the school year is over), a chance for all-star recognition. Those who continue to play well the rest of the way would also get the customary all-league nod at season's end.

Secondly, such a game would generate fan interest, an expecially important factor if one team is running away with the championship. And lastly, money raised from ticket sales could go to charity.

But there are grave objections by the authorities to all-star games. Phil Hempler, commissioner of the North Coast Section (NCS), says, "Neither the CIF nor the NCAA approve of all-star competition for which there would be no control whatsoever. There's so much all-star competition that could be set up around the country which would bring all-stars together during the school year."

Presumably, that refers to hypothetical situations such as Ford or some other large company sponsoring an All-American all-star game, in the same mold as the punt, pass and kick competition. That line of Quixotic thought seems more than a trifle absurd when you consider that your Little League son has the name of a town merchant on the back of his uniform. If that isn't promotion, what is?

The rules against underclassmen playing in post season games are just as specious. As a matter of fact, they are based on the same logic. As Hempler says, "It would be the type of thing that would be so completely open, thse outstanding boys would be used in promotions which the amateur rules just do not approve of.

To use Little League as the heavy once more, how can you restrict high school boys on the one hand, while allowing a Little League World Series on the other? Granted, the NCAA has nothing to do with the latter, but shouldn't the ethics involved be the same at all levels?

The fact is, most people — coaches, players and fans — would love to see an all-star game during the mid season lull. The problem is that so much red tape is involved in trying to get the rules changed, that by the time you reach the CIF, you forgot what you came for.

A major problem seems to be that the officers of the CIF, composed mostly of old-guard types, don't communicate well with coaches, who think of going up against them as something akin to talking to a wall. Al Endriss, Redwood's coach who was instrumental in organizing the upcoming MCAL vs. North Bay League all-star game, says, "I guess the CIF does a good job, but I really believe that they're always looking at the negative end of things. They think somebody's always going to use the kids for monetary reasons."

Endriss, who traditionally gives his team a break at mid season even though there is no game, cites as an example of the CIF's rigidity a situation that came up regarding the Marin-Sonoma contest. The original date for the game happened to be before San Rafael High's graduation ceremony, and because of that, the CIF said no dice. After a protracted and fruitless argument, Endriss moved the game back a week.

Marin Catholic coach Gary Hughes, who was responsible in large part for the first MCAL all-star game last year, says, "I would be for anything that would promote baseball, and I think an all-star game would. I'd like to see anything to get the people out to watch baseball, because baseball in this county is great."

Hughes also offers another innovation post season playoffs, which might go hand in hand with an all-star game.

"I think if you could get a mid season all-star game, then you should come back with a playoff system at the end," he says. Such a system would possibly involve the top four teams in the league, and would last a week or so.

The CIF, fortunately, has nothing against playoffs, but, once again, red tape has kept any proposals from getting off the ground. Like all-star games, playoffs have never gotten beyond the idea stage.

In place of an all-star game, here is my selection of MCAL all-stars, based on first half performances only: Pitchers — Mike Lamb, Novato; John Morezco, Redwood; Tom Olson, Marin Catholic. Catchers — Dennis Stanley, Novato; Bill Rudolph, Tamalpais. First Basemen — Larry Kerr, Terra Linda; Steve Pond, Novato. Second Basemen — Vince Bormolini, Marin Catholic; Tom Collins, Tamalpais. Shortstops — Alan Curtiss, Drake; Dave Urquhart, San Rafael. Third Basemen — Randy Jackson, Novato; Jim Thorne, San Rafael. Outfielders — Dirk Gansloser, San Rafael; Bill Busher, Novato; Holt Greene, San Rafael; Bill Sherbert, Terra Linda.

Most Host Gets 13th Career Win

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)— Seven-year-old Most Host went to the outside and passed favored Dizzy Babe entering the stretch Wednesday to win the $12,000 Sirs Purse by a length and a half at Golden Gate Fields.

It was the 13th victory for the gray gelding to run his lifetime earnings to $281,598. During his lengthy career, the son of My Host started 88 races and finished second 28 times and third six times.

Ridden by 56-year-old Mel Lewis, Most Host ranged up on the outside of Dizzy Babe at the head of the stretch and then drew out to pass Dizzy Babe.

Most Host covered the mile in 1.36 1-5 and paid $6.40, $2.80 and $2.40. Dizzy Babe returned $2.80 and $2.20 while Shakazu, the third-place finisher, paid $2.60.

Sky Hunter was fourth in the field of six for the allowance test.

Hunting Threatened

KENTVILLE, N.S. (UPI)— Illegal moose slaughter has reached such proportions it could adversely affect the future of moose hunting in Nova Scotia, says Arthur Patton of the provincial Department of Lands and Forests. Patton said the legal kill last season was 308, compared with 318 the previous season but the illegal kill was much higher.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Key Canadian Oil Firm Has Appeal

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am thinking of investing in Pacific Petroleum for my children who will need the money in 6-10 years for college. Would appreciate your opinion. — H.H.

A. Pacific Petroleums, 48 per cent owned by Phillips Petroleum, is an attractive means of participating in one of Canada's most important industries. Company boasts an impressive record of past performance combined with the potential for above-average future gains. Pacific Pete's sales and earnings have continued to grow uninterrupted since 1961, moving up a total of 397 per cent and 1,043 per cent respectively.

Although the firm is involved in every phase of the petroleum business, its key area is natural gas. In fact, Pacific Pete's gas reserves exceed those of any other Canadian controlled concern.

Aggressive exploratory activity, rapid development of known productive areas, plus the spiraling demand for energy in the U.S. and Canada augur well for continued progress. Shares have long-term growth appeal.

Q. I own shares of Teledyne bought at about $53. What is your advice? — S.M.

A. Teledyne is a leading conglomerate (fiscal '70 sales of $1.2 billion) possessing a strong fundamental picture. Operations are largely electronics-oriented, but recent acquisitions, its majority interest in Continental Motors plus entry into insurance, has broadened the industrial base.

Sales declined 6.1 per cent in fiscal 1970. However, fully diluted earnings advanced 1.5 per cent to $1.91 per share. A generally rising earnings pattern, anticipated for the balance of 1971, plus renewed investor interest in conglomerate issues should aid further recovery. Hold.

Q. I bought 500 shares of EG&G at $25. Should I buy, hold or stand pat? — J.W.

A. In view of the massive government cutbacks experienced by EG&G, the company managed to turn in a creditable performance in 1970, earning 22 cents a share (versus a 33 cent deficit in fiscal 1969) on sales of $112 million.

The improved earnings, coupled with an attractive technical position as well as the realization that EG&G is successfully entering commercial markets has buoyed up the stock substantially in the past few weeks. Shares have speculative appeal; hold, but do not add to.

Pacific Far East Cuts Its Dividend

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., declared a 15-cent second quarter dividend Tuesday on its $5 common stock, a drop of 45 cents from the previous quarter.

President Leo. C. Ross said the decrease was necessary to conserve cash and improve cash flow.

NOW A THREE-BUILDING COMPLEX

A third building in Margarita Plaza at Northgate Industrial Park will be completed in August and expand this office complex to 30,000 square feet. Some of the present tenants will use the extra space to enlarge their offices. Leases are now being taken on the remainder of the 10,000 square foot addition. Dohemann and Co. is the developer.

U.S. Steel Hikes Prices On Sheet, Strip Steel

NEW YORK (UPI) —U.S. Steel Corp. Wednesday increased its prices for large volume steel sheet and strip products by $8.50 to $13 a ton, effective with shipments June 16 and July 1.

The increases, which U.S. Steel said averaged 6 1-4 per cent, affects products used by the auto, appliance and other industries.

The boosts generally had been expected because the steel industry has been boosting prices on most of its products this year as fast as the 12month price freeze guarantees attached to the 1970 price hike round expired.

In Washington, a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the price increases were "not particularly surprising" and the steel industry "apparently considers this their annual increase.'' He said a much greater worry to econmic planners is the possibility of further increases this year to offset higher wage costs.

The price boosts on flat rolled products are close to the level which the Nixon administration apparently found acceptable when construction steel products went up last March. One producer had posted increases of $16 to $17 per ton on construction steels, but later substituted increases of $9 to $12 per ton after U.S. Steel came in at that level.

The price freeze guarantee on most flat rolled steel products was due to expire June 1, but major producers extended it for 15 days, reportedly at the request of the auto makers to give them more time to lay in stocks at the old price.

Athough the steel industry is preparing to negotiate new wage pacts with the United Steelworkers of America to replace a contract expiring Aug. 1, steel industry officials have emphasized that the price boosts posted so far are a "catching-up" operation and are not designed to compensate for any additional wage cost increases they may incur.

Industry sources also have indicated that a second rouund of price boosts is possible in the second half of this year to compensate for any wage hike.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer, has calculated that, should the USW win a settlement like the three-year, 30 per cent-plus pact won from the can makers in March, it would have to boost its steel prices across the board by eight per cent a year for three years "just to stay even."

The price boosts posted by Big Steel Wednesday, which other producers are expected to follow include:

—A $9 a ton increase on hot rolled sheet and strip, effective June 16.

—An $8.50 a ton increase on hot rolled bands, effective June 16,

—$13 a ton increases on galvanized sheet, aluminum coated and long terne sheets, also effective June 16.

—A $13 a ton increase on cold rolled sheet, effective July 1.

U.S. Steel said the products affected account for about a third of all steel industry shipments.

Steel producers this year already have increased prices for railroad steel products, steels used by the construction, shipbuilding and oil and gas industries, bar, rod and wire products.

Lockheed Dividend: Sixth Straight Cut

BURBANK, (BW) — The board of directors of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have voted to omit the dividend on common stock for the first quarter of 1971.

This is the sixth consecutive quarter in which no dividend has been issued.

Trading At Active Pace On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were mixed in fairly active trading through the first two hours today.

Although a normal amount of caution guided investors who had an eye on world monetary disturbances, it appeared to be more than matched by the general optimism about longterm prospects for both the stock market and the nation's economy.

In addition, one analyst noted that institutional traders still have funds to invest and apparently are doing so regardless of the current uncertainty.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones Industrial Average was ahead. Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index, however, was off 0.03 at 103.75. Advances and declines were running about even.

Prices also were mixed in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange of the 968 issues on the tape 374 pointed lower, while 305 advanced.

Among some early Big Board features were General Foods trading a block of 316,000 shares at 37 1-2, unchanged in a cross-transaction, and 129,700 shares traded at 25, down 1 1-4.

Less active but firm were Bausch & Lomb up 3, and Du Pont 2 1-2 higher. Up a point or more were U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, Louisville & Nashville Railroad, and IBM. Fairchild Camera gained around 2.

Motors, oils, airlines and aircrafts were fractionally mixed.

UAL'S Quarter Losses Down

OAKLAND (BW) — Universal Airlines has reported a loss of $754,000, or 38 cents per share, for the quarter ended March 31, compared to a loss of $858,000, or 44 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1970.

Total revenues for the quarter were $9,840,000, compared to $9,964,000 in the first quarter of 1970.

Commercial revenues increased 20 per cent in the first quarter over the same 1970 period reflecting increased cargo charter business.

THE THIRD BUILDING of the Margarita Plaza office complex at the entrance of Northgate Industrial Park is now under construction by Herrero Bros. and is scheduled for completion early in August.

Like the other buildings, it will have 10,000 square feet of floor space and follow the same architectural styling. Dohemann and Co. is now taking leases.

Margarita Plaza now has 12 occupants, including an office of Dohemann, the developer. Some of the firms there plan on expanding their offices after the new building is completed.

Dohemann and Co., which has been headquartered in San Francisco for the past couple of years, has extended its real estate investment and syndication operations into other areas besides Marin. In addition to Margarita Plaza the company has purchased over $15 million of income producing real estate.

Recent projects are a joint venture with the government of Cyprus to develop agricultural land, two office buildings at the San Francisco International Airport and a 1,000-acre ranch on the Napa River planted in pears and grapes and also used for cattle.

W. JACK VAN DYKE of Novato has been appointed vice president of operations for San Francisco Life Insurance Co. Active in the insurance business for 20 years, he was vice president of operations at Pacific National Assurance Co. before joining San Francisco Life.

Silvestri

Acciari

NOW CELEBRATING their 25th year as principals in Marin Products Co., Inc. are George Silvestri and Fred Acciari of San Rafael. Silvestri is presently recuperating at home from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile recently.

Plans are being made to expand the 200,000-cubic foot frozen food plant at Ignacio, both as a modernization move and to provide increased capacity.

WALTER PATRICK SMITH of San Rafael, general manager of the Northgate Mall, will attend the annual convention of the International Council of Shopping Centers in New York May 16-19.

ADVERTISING: Richard R. Rojas of Marinwood will serve as account executive and Stanford Raymond of Mill Valley will be creative director of the Topps and Trowsers retail chain account recently acquired by Ronald Wren Advertising, Inc. of San Francisco.

Road and Track Magazine (May 1968) says:

"The BMW 1600 and 2002 are the best sedan buys in the world."

Next to BMW owners themselves, professional critics are the most enthusiastic endorsers of BMW performance. You'll understand why five minutes after you're behind a BMW wheel. Come in for a test drive today.

Northrup Buys Olson For Antismog Work

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Northrup Corporation announced Wednesday that it had acquired controlling interest in Olson Laboratories of Dearborn, Mich., for a total investment of $1 million.

A Northrup spokesman said that Olson will be working with Northrup's electro-mechanical division in Anaheim to study the feasibility and benefits of a vehicle emission inspection program as a means of reducing air pollution.

What Is It That Youth Has To Say?

Over and over again, we are told that youth has something to say, and adulthood must listen.

Wherever the youth revolution, generation gap, or whatever you wish to call it is discussed, this advice pops up: Listen to what youth has to tell you! Often it is accompanied by the assurance that "you'd be surprised" at the excellent ideas of youth.

This same theme has occurred repeatedly in letters to the Independent-Journal's "rap session" contest. But almost without exception, it has been in letters from those over 30 — the generations that, according to the Tom Haydens of the youth revolution, are not to be trusted.

FEW OF THE YOUNG people under 21 have even submitted letters. And those letters received have suggested "establishment-type" approaches to bridging the so-called generation gap: Community "rap sessions," publicity for youth activities, including young people in decision-making bodies.

These are scarcely new ideas. Getting together to "rap" has certainly been tried repeatedly. Newspapers, radio stations and other media have been going out of their way to publicize youth activities for as long as we can remember. Putting young people on decision-making bodies is a newer approach, but so far has not appeared to make a lot of difference.

It may be, of course, that the I-J's "rap letter contest" is not a fair gauge. It may be that few under 21 have written their ideas to the contest because few under 21 read the I-J. Various surveys have indicated that few under 21 read any newspaper.

However, during the same period we have heard from high school students in the dispute over disqualification of a Redwood High School track team member, which escalated into resignations of a couple of the track coaches. On matters that closely concern them, it seems, young people write letters to the editor and state their feelings quite plainly.

WE ARE LEFT wondering how much truth there is to the often-heard admonition that we must listen to youth to receive its pearls of wisdom.

Does youth really have something to say — something, that is, beyond shouted generalities such as "Nixon is a hawk," "the war is immoral," or "do your own thing"?

We know that a lot of people do have something to say, for we've heard them say it. But generally it has turned out to be not so very different from what their elders are saying, or at least thinking.

COULD IT BE that the generation gap, like some other things, really is an invention of spotlight-hungry people who find satisfaction to their egos by setting up a din for any "cause" that appears likely to attract a following?

Maybe further letters in the "rap" contest — which runs until May 24 — will prove otherwise. Maybe the youth revolution really has more substance than sound.

We're listening.

Sharp Increase In Abortions Spurs Attempt To Change Law

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Since Nov. 8, 1967, there have been approximately 90,000 murders in California. Wilfull, premeditated murders. But no one was indicted. No one stands convicted. The murders were legal.

Furthermore, it is predicted that during 1971 there will be another 116,000 murders. These, too, will be legal. The law says they are.

They are not called murder. They are called abortions. The purposeful, clinical termination of a pregnancy. Termination of a life. What one cannot do with a gun, or a switch blade or a club, the law allows with a suction tube or a 10-inch currette.

ALL OF THIS CAME with the passage of the California Therapeutic Abortion Act.

Under certain situations — such as rape, or incest, or when the life of the woman might be lost if pregnancy went the full term — in these cases, there is a strong argument for abortion.

But liberalized abortion laws which permit abortions on request? This mocks the sanctity of human life.

Perhaps it's all a part of liberating women. Liberating them from the responsibilities of their deeds — or, misdeeds. Now you can have the sizzle. Without the steak.

AT THE TIME the bill was being debated, proponents argued it would not result in any great increase in abortions. It's main purpose, they claimed, was to permit those who were then seeking illegal abortions to have abortions in medically approved and sterile conditions.

Here is the record, so far: 1968 — 5,000 legal abortions; 1969 — 15,000; 1970 — 70,000; 1971 — (est.) 116,000.

For 1970 the State Department of Public Health reported that 99 per cent were for reason of rape or incest or because full-term pregnancy would gravely impair the physical health of the woman.

In 98 per cent of the cases, the reason for the abortion was listed as "mental health." There are those who feel that it is too easy to get away with the "mental health" bit; that "mental health" is to abortions as "mental cruelty" is to divorce — a quick and easy way out of a mistake. And so a life is taken. Legally.

There were more abortions than births in the age group 15 to 19. And, more than one-third of all abortions were paid for by the taxpayer — through Medi-Cal.

AN INCREASING number of Californians are upset about all of this.

One of these is Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach. Burke recently introduced a series of bills which would tighten provisions of the 1967 law.

Among other things, Burke's bill would:

— prohibit abortions after the 10th week of pregnancy

— allow mental health as a bonafide reason only if the woman had been receiving psychiatric treatment prior to her pregnancy.

He also has introduced a resolution calling for a study of abortion practices since the 1967 law went into effect.

Already Burke has been treated to a storm of virulent and organized opposition. Which is not so strange in this strange day and age.

TODAY ONLY NATURAL law protects the unborn child. And in a society where legalese is often a substitute for morality, natural law is lost in a haze of permissiveness, irresponsibility and mixed-up values.

Ecology. That's the big thing today. Save the trees and fish, the birds and bees. For future generations.

And, those future generations? Those who would inherit the earth — with the trees and birds and bees. They are disposable. In the bottom of a surgical bucket.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Council Will Cut Its Salary — Naturally

When the Fairfax City Council voted themselves a salary a few years ago, the rationale was that they deserved it was they had to take over the duties of the departed city administrator.

Now that we have a new administrator, the council will naturally vote to forego this money. That is, they will if they have any political sense at all for this will be a beautiful campaign issue next time if they don't.

Remembering Youth Includes No 'Gap'

After reading Edgar N. Jacobs ("Readers Say," April 29) I feel that I should speak my piece. Fifty years ago I came to America. I could not speak the American language. My mother and father never learned to talk very good but we had a Swedish newspaper and the Minneapolis Tribune, which of course was American, in the house. We had one language outside of our home and that was English, and no special law to teach the land from where we came.

We got by somehow, dad carried cement blocks for 10 hours for $1.75 per day, too tired to raise hell and so we got by till dad got a better job. I sold papers for two cents and was happy. Never went to college, learned to break windows without going to college, but when I did dad made it hard for me to sit down. Dad was not a person to lie, never said it hurt him more than me and he could sit down.

How we have changed! In 1916 I took my sister's hand to cross the street in Kenmare, North Dakota, after being away for some years in Canada and Alaska. There was no traffic, but wouldn't you take your sister's hand to cross the street? She was only 14 years old.

Perhaps us old guys are stupid but . . . I wonder how long since Mr. Jacobs took his sister's hand and helped her across the street?

Official Report Bears Out No Arson

Time is supposed to heal all wounds, but judging from the Independent-Journal headline "Arson Suspected in UCSC Blaze" on April 8, I think we can expect at the very least a long-lived scar.

Actually, there was no arson involved in the fire, a fact verified in the official fire investigation report just released. It details the findings of the state fire marshal's office, as well as the exhaustive detection work involved . . .

In view of the alarming nature of the original fire stories, we would greatly appreciate an editorial comment on the final outcome of the investigation.

The initial report from Santa Cruz said arson was suspected. Result of the investigation was reported in the Independent-Journal of April 13 under the headline, "No Arson in UC Santa Cruz Blaze." — Editor.)

Some Things More Important Than Trial

To many of us here in Mill Valley, a new fire station and sewers are a lot more important than the Davis trial. Isn't there some way that this Davis can have a more economic day in court?

It might make for an interesting editorial to show the actual dollar costs for a person owning a $30,000 home in Marin County to conduct this trial and for the additional security requirements.

Welfare Destroying American Society

Public welfare is the greatest failure of modern liberalism. Welfare has become a cancer that is slowly eating away the foundations of our American way of life. The greed of those who receive welfare is destroying their will to work. The productive, who provide the money for welfare, are being drowned in a sea of debt engendered by inflation and high taxes. The liberal apologists, who created welfare, are being liquidated along with the rest in compliance with a secret death wish to atone for some imagined guilt that lies buried in the depths of their subconscious minds.

Unless we stem the flow of this torrential flood the greatest experiment in human liberty and self-government in the history of man will cease to exist. To be constructive any program must recognize that the purpose of welfare is to eliminate welfare. It must revive the will to work among the economically disabled. It must build their characters as well as feed their bodies. This means that the state must provide a job for all the ablebodied people who receive welfare benefits.

If freedom lives, this will encourage them to seek a job they choose to do rather than to accept a job they are forced to do. Job opportunities are always available to anyone who is willing to persevere in their search to find them. You must never forget that America is the land of the "second chance." If you fail you don't give up, you start all over again. If you win you don't stop trying, you start all over again. This is the rythmn of America. If it is ever broken, the heart of America will cease to beat.

Objections To Plan For School Properties

Your editorial of April 28 (Reed District Eyes An Old Revenue Plan) requires some clarification. The proposal for constructing condominiums on unused school property may have some merit as a concept. However, if you are proposing this for the Reed District, the taxpayers of the district deserve an explanation of the problems involved which you passed over as "some objections."

The properties are zoned by the City of Tiburon for single-family, one-acre sites. The possibility of the planning commission and the city council approving a rezoning request for condominiums defies my imagination.

Although there is no immediate requirement for schools at these sites, it is shortsighted to commit them to another use. The current population of the district is approximately half of its potential and additional schools will be necessary in the future. Appropriate sites were difficult to find at the time these were purchased. Even if acceptable alternate sites are available in the future, the cost of same is certain to exceed the profit from this proposal . . .

The North Central site is also an important part of the Tiburon Open Sapce Plan. Considerable effort is being expended to preserve the Tiburon Ridge, and a condominium project would do much to negate these efforts.

Mr. Noble is to be commended for his interest in reducing the tax burden. However, I feel that this proposal is neither feasible nor in the best interest of the community.

Party-Goers Should Disqualify Selves

As a former member of the Fairfax Planning Commission, I was distressed to read (I-J, May 1) of the promotional party staged by Kaiser-Aetna to tout its interesting in developing the Town and Country Club property, prior to submission of any plans to the Fairfax Planning Commission.

It would appear that any future decision rendered by those city officials in attendance at the party would be subject to question. And further, those city fathers who have accepted campaign assistance from the owner of the property Kaiser-Aetna is considering developing, would be doubly suspect.

Should this project eventually come before any of these gentlemen for consideration, I would hope that they have the integrity to disqualify themselves from voting on that issue.

Fellow Citizens Real Targets Of Dissidents

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Constitution guarantees my right to dissent from the policies of the U. S. government.

It does not give me the right to inflict hardship or inconvenience on you in order to dramatize my discontent.

This important distinction was overlooked or ignored by the people (let's stop calling them "kids" — the term is wildly inappropriate) who made an abortive attempt this week to shut down the machinery of the federal government.

THESE PEOPLE believe that the war in Indochina is a wicked waste of human life. That is a perfectly legitimate point of view. It is shared, according to the latest public opinion polls, by a clear majority of Americans.

They also feel—with reason— that President Nixon has been unresponsive, and even openly contemptuous, of peaceful demonstrations of opposition to the war.

So, they say, the time has come to resort to direct action to disrupt the functioning of the government and compel it to halt the war.

It is this third step in their logic which calls for careful consideration.

THERE CERTAINLY may be circumstances in which moral duty may drive a person to take hostile action against his government. Our forefathers felt that such circumstances existed in 1776, and most of us would be highly sympathetic with any Russian, Czech, Pole or mainland Chinese who felt that such circumstances exist in his country today.

But let us be very clear on the point: any deliberate attempt to disrupt the functioning of a government, for whatever motive, is by definition an act of revolution. To argue that the U. S. government should be disrupted is exactly tantamount to saying that its authority is illegitimate and should be overthrown. Undoubtedly, many of the disruptionists who assembled in Washington this week are prepared to make just that argument. But when they do, they part company with the vast majority of Americans who are opposed to the Vietnam war.

THE WAR IN VIETNAM may be a disastrous mistake, but it would be a far greater disaster to undermine, paralyze or overthrow a system of government which, for all its defects, remains the best guarantor of social order and human freedom man ever has been ablt to devise.

Of course, there was never any real danger that this raggledy-taggledy band of bluejeaned protesters would overthrow or seriously disrupt the U.S. government. The one thing they could and did accomplish was to inflict a lot of harassment, inconvenience and some real hardship on individuals who live in Washington and have to go on getting to work and making a living even when the streets are filled with trash cans and tear gas.

So their real target, in the end, was not the war, or the government, or the Nixon administration, but their fellow citizens —many of whom disapprove of the war as strongly as they.

It seems a poor way to make your point.

'Two Chinas' Policy Doomed While Chiang And Mao Live

By ARNOLD DIBBLE

HONG KONG (UPI)—There is one thing that the Republic of China (Taipei) and the Peoples Republic of China (Peking) agree upon 100 per cent—Taiwan is an integral part of China.

Also Tibet and areas under dispute with the Soviet Union.

But which China? The China of President Chiang Kai-shek of the Republic of China or the China of Chairman Mao Tsetung of the Peoples Republic of China?

There's the rub.

IT IS CLEAR that the United States is moving closer to some accommodation with the Communist regime now ruling the 700-million people on the mainland of China.

The Henry Cabot Lodge commission has recommended the admission of Red China to the United Nations and the State Department has suggested that the question of Taiwan might be settled by negotiating between Chiang's government and the Communist Peoples Republic of China.

At the same time, the United States has said time and again it has no intention of reneging on its treaty commitments to defend Chiang's government against "aggression" nor its support of the Taiwan regime.

SO LONG AS Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tse-tung are alive, the two-China policy stands almost no chance, Both leaders have said they will not join or remain in the United Nations so long as the other is recognized.

If anything, Red China is more intransigent than Chiang's Republic of China where winds of change are whispering through the membership of the ruling Kuomingtang Party and the halls of the various Yuans which form the legislative branch of the Taiwan government.

Up to now, Taiwan has broken diplomatic relations and sent its ambassadors packing by the first available plane as soon as any nation recognized Red China, although the Nationalists have left a trade mission in Italy.

But recently, according to advices from Taiwan, a growing number of Kuomingtang Party members are agitating for more flexibility. There is no indication that the 84-year-old Chiang is bending before this agitation.

WITH THE DEATHS of Chiang and Mao there are bound to be changes. There have been recurrent reports — always emphatically denied — that Chaing's son and heir apparent, Chiang Ching-Kuo, is more receptive to negotiations than his father.

One thing is certain, the new generation of mainland Chinese and Taiwanese on Taiwan want more than anything else to be left alone.

The ultimate settlement may well be an independent Taiwan backed by big-power guarantees. But it won't come tomorrow.

Just Break The News To Mother: There's No New Car This Year

Down with Mother's Day — or at least the commercial rape of it!

Gone are the days when a bouquet of daisies or a pan of homemade fudge would put a sparkle in mother's eye. No more does a "Let me help you, mother," mean anything.

Instead, money-hungry promoters spouting, "Tell Mother you love her with . . . " (choose one: flowers, candy, lingerie, a trip to Hawaii, dinner out, clothing, a new car, a fur coat, ad infinitum), urge children of all ages to express love for mother in terms of dollars and cents. However, since the majority of people love more than they can afford, it can be a most frustrating experience.

BUT WORSE than that. This corruption has spread to mother herself! That formerly sweet angel-on-a-pedestal has come to expect — yes, expect —such lavish treatment.

Mother would never be so crass as to look at, or even guess, the price tag of a present, but how can she feel pleased with your selection when her own sister announces dramatically, "The kids are giving me a new car — one of those cute little foreign models — for Mother's Day."? Guaranteed to make your gift (you saved for weeks to buy her a friendly pedigree poodle) dwindle in stature.

Advertisements and store displays, gently nudging you to "remember mother," hit you between the eyes almost before the multi-colored plastic Easter eggs are packed away.

ONE OF THE LARGEST promoters is the greeting card industry, which has available Mother's Day cards for fathers, husbands, expectant women, grandmothers, aunts, wives, sisters, nieces, daughters, granddaughters, friends and, of all things, mothers!

So, aside from selecting that just-right gift once every 12 months, a perfect card also must be chosen. And Mother's Day cards can be funny, sentimental, loving, sweet, romantic, friendly, across-the-miles or plain and simple.

Depending on what you call her, cards can be purchased to mom, ma, mother, mommy, mummy, mum and momma. Really. With such a wide choice, it's difficult to select "the" right card. (Actually panic sets in when you can't quite remember just what you do call her.)

CHILDREN, EAGER to make mother happy, strive for perfection — even if it's a simple breakfast-in-bed. Mother, of course, must eat all of everything: even though the eggs are not cooked, the bacon is burnt, the toast is cold, the juice is warm, and coffee is boiled.

And, facing her in the kitchen is a monumental mess that will keep her busy the rest of "Her Day."

But it's the thought that counts, so mother grins and bears it.

Why should so many people suffer so much when a simple hug and a kiss with a whispered, "I love you," will do the trick?

Know what I'm tucking inside my mother's card Sunday? You guessed it. This column.

Innocent Plea To Stolen Money Clip

A 19-yaar-old Petaluma youth has pleaded innocent in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to a charge of possessing a money clip that had been stolen in a residential burglary.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon set a June 17 jury trial for Andres M. Sandoval of 102 Sixth Street. Sandoval was arrested April 19 in Petaluma.

ART BUCHWALD

Anyway, The Press Tried To Help The Administration

WASHINGTON— No matter how hard we try, the press can't do anything right as far as the Nixon administration is concerned.

I am happy to report that the attacks of President Nixon, Spiro Agnew and John Mitchell have not fallen on deaf ears. A sincere group of journalists and TV commentators have formed an Ad Hoc Committee to Make the News More Palatable to the Administration.

The first meeting was held last week in the Georgetown basement of a famous cartoonist.

"GENTLEMEN," a syndicated columinst said, "The administration is fed up with the way the nation's media are reporting the news. It is our duty as Americans to change our ways."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

"Are there any suggestions?"

"How about coming out for Judge Carswell?" someone said.

"It's too late unless there is a new opening on the Supreme Court," an editorial writer replied.

"What about refusing to report the unemployment figures in the United States?"

"That would please the administration," a White House corrrespondent said.

"HOW ABOUT PULLING all our correspondents out of Indochina and accepting only the word of the Pentagon briefers?"

"It's a step in the right direction," a TV correspondent agreed.

"It isn't enough," a columnist said. "This administration deserves more than a few bones."

"I've got it," suggested a reporter. "Suppose we agree every week to turn over all our notebooks and films and radio tapes to the Justice Department?"

An editor said, "John Mitchell would like that."

"And suppose we make an agreement not to report any news from Red China without clearing it with Spiro Agnew?"

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

A WOMAN REPORTER said, "What about putting an embargo on all news about anti-Vietnam demonstrations?"

"Or demonstrations of any kind?" someone else said.

"We could do it if we put our hearts in it," the cartoonist said.

"These are all good suggestions," the editorial writer said. "But we owe this administration more than just suppressing bad news. We have to print the good news about what President Nixon is doing."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone cried.

"Let's hear a few suggestions."

THERE WAS DEAD silence in the room.

The woman reporter finally said, "Nixon's marrying off his daughter to a very nice young man."

"He kept Henry Kissinger from being kidnapped," someone else added.

"He got Congress to vote on the SST."

"He made Spiro Agnew into a household word."

"He brought Martha Mitchell to Washington."

"He made everything perfectly clear."

"THAT'S ENOUGH to start with," the syndicated columnist said. "We're all agreed then that we're going to lay off the Nixon administration until after the election."

"Huzzah! Huzzah! everyone cried.

Unfortunately, at that moment 100 federal marshals, who had been tipped off by an FBI informer, crashed into the basement and arrested everyone for conspiring to overthrow the United States government.

"That does it," said an editor as he was put into a paddy wagon. "No more Mister Good Guy!"

Quake Fault's End Found In Gulf

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — Discovery that the San Andreas Fault and its related branches apparently end in the northern portion of the Gulf of California was reported today by University of Southern California scientists.

The find sheds new light on the ultimate causes of California's killer earthquakes, according to James L. Bischoff and Thomas L. Henyey, who recently completed the most detailed scientific study of the gulf's northern area ever undertaken.

The USC researchers say they pinpointed the end of this system of faults in the gulf floor under relatively shallow water about 60 miles southeast of the mouth of the Colorado River. Before this discovery, location of the San Andreas' southern end and its relation to the Gulf of California were mysteries.

Analyses of data gathered on a month-long cruise in northern gulf waters indicate that the fault's end is butted up against a formation geologists call a "spreading center."

Bischoff explained that a spreading center is a point at which new crust is being added to the sea floor by thermal processes deep beneath the ocean floor. The energy pushes the surrounding crust horizontally from the center."

Bischoff explained that a spreading center is a point at which new crust is being added to the sea floor by thermalprocesses deep beneath the ocean floor. The energy pushes the surrounding crust horizontally from the center.

"We believe that with its relationship to the fault, the spreading center provides the ultimate input energy which causes earthquakes," Bischoff told a USC interviewer.

The USC scientists explained that the study indicates the San Andreas Fault zone, which runs the length of California in a northwesterly direction, is terminated at 90 degree angles by two such spreading centers: The one they discovered in the gulf, and another, known to exist off the Oregon coast near the California border.

The gulf spreading center is pushing the earth surface west of the fault in a northwesterly direction, and the offshore Oregon spreading center is pushing the land east of the fault zone in a southeasterly direction, the USC geologists believe.

Hence the mechanics of a major earthquake: Sudden movement caused by bursts of energy released along the San Andreas Fault. The land surface west of the fault is going north and that to the east of the fault is going south.

It has been estimated by other researchers that there has been as much as 300 miles total land displacement along the California San Andreas Fault in the last 60 million years.

"For some time, scientists have been puzzled about the continuation of the San Andreas south of the Imperial Valley. Relationships between the fault zone and underwater geological features such as the East Pacific Rise, which enters the southern portion of the Gulf of California, have been theorized, but not enough detailed information was available," Bischoff said.

Using sophisticated seismic gear aboard USC's research vessel, Velero IV, Bischoff and Henyey studied gulf bottom characteristics at hundreds of "stations" in the northern gulf.

These studies led Bischoff to speculate further that the San Andreas Fault line, now under gulf waters running south from the mouth of the Colorado River, was the river's channel thousands of years ago, during lowered sea level of the last glacial period.

The same geological spreading forces which are related to the San Andreas are believed to be implicated in the westward "drift" of the Baja California peninsula, which is continuing at the rate of a few inches per year.

Decorating Tips From The Staff of
CASA MARIN

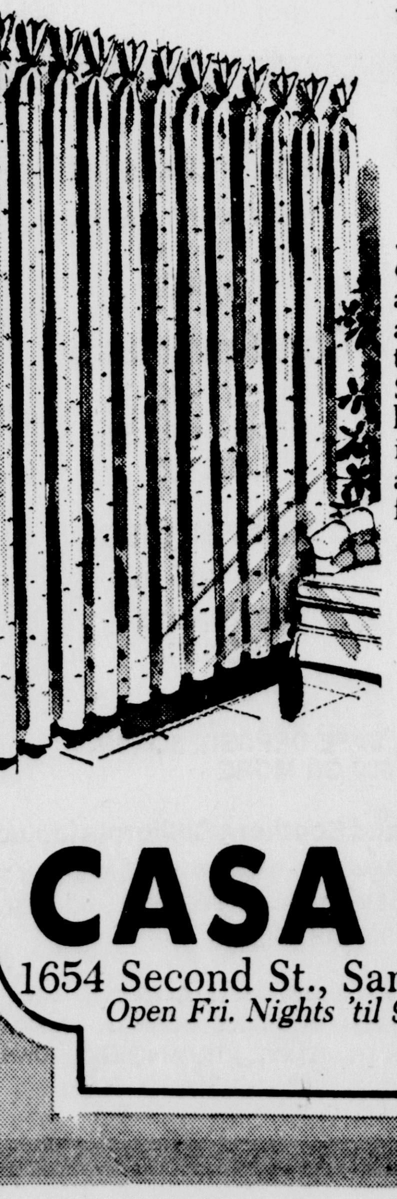
Many of today's smart architectural plans embrace great expanses of glass. This, of course, fulfills our craving for making the outdoor part of our interior design.

The treatment of glass wall and/or sliding doors often dictates the decorative scheme for the entire room. It is a wonderful springboard for color planning and affords an opportunity to give dash to any type of room.

In many instances interior designers start with window areas to set the color decorating scheme of an entire room. Properly selected colors that reflect the mood of the room and the personality of its occupants are carried out in shades and tones of wall covering and carpet, not to speak of upholstered cover selections and even the new bright colors of wood accent pieces.

Thus rooms are given a look of luxury, of serenity, or gaiety, or friendly warmth, simply through proper selections of materials and colors in custom made draperies.

Come in . . . browse at Casa Marin for ideas as well as fine home furnishings.



Your Brand New Spring Windows

. . . can be "just right" to correlate exactly with your other furnishings and colors when they are measured and made up by Casa Marin Furniture drapery experts. NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board, North Coast Region will hold a public hearing on May 11, 1971, at 1:00 p.m. in the Eureka City Council Chambers, 6th and K Streets, Eureka, California and on May 13, 1971, at 10:00 a.m. in the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors Chambers, 2555 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa, California to consider the INTERIM WATER QUALITY MANAGEMENT PLAN FOR THE NORTH COASTAL BASIN* pursuant to Section 13244 of the California Water Code.

In its basin plan, the Regional Board will consider the following waste discharge prohibitions:

A. All waste discharges to the following water bodies are prohibited:

1. Humboldt Bay, including Arcata Bay and South Bay, prior to January 1, 1976;
2. Under certain conditions, all nearshore tidal waters and tidal estuaries prior to January 1, 1976;
3. All surface freshwater impoundments and their immediate tributaries;
4. Water-contact recreation areas in fresh waters;
5. All coastal streams and natural drainage ways that flow directly to the ocean;
6. The Mad, Eel, and Russian Rivers during the period May 15 through September 30 and all other periods when the receiving stream's flow is less than 100 times greater than the waste flow; and
7. Under certain conditions, all surface fresh waters prior to January 1, 1985.

B. Individual sewage disposal systems are prohibited in the following instances:

1. On all parcels of land within 200 feet of all impoundments and within 100 feet of all surface streams or natural drainageways; and
2. Under certain conditions, all new subdivisions.

C. The discharge of vessel waste is prohibited in all fresh waters, bays, estuaries, and nearshore tidal waters.

D. The discharge of solid waste materials to waters of the state is prohibited.

The staff of the Regional Board and other interested persons will be given the opportunity to present evidence regarding this proposed plan. If possible, written comments should be sent to Dr. David C. Joseph, Executive Officer, California Regional Water Quality Control Board, North Coast Region, 2200 County Center Drive, Suite F, Santa Rosa, California 95401 prior to the hearing.

Summaries of the Interim Water Quality Management Plan are available upon request to the Regional Board. The complete Interim Plan is available for review in the Regional Board office during normal working hours.

*For purposes of this plan, the North Coastal Basin includes all tidal waters and coastal streams draining to the Pacific Ocean from the Humboldt-Del Norte County line in the north to the watersheds draining to Stemple Creek and the Estero de San Antonio in Marin and Sonoma Counties.

Parents Back Kentfield Teacher

By WAT TAKESHITA

A dozen parents and teachers rose yesterday to the defense of a guitar-strumming Kentfield schoolteacher, who faces dismissal just before completing her third year at Wolfe Grade School.

Joanne Pocta, first grade teacher since Sept. 1, 1968, would win tenure if she worked next school year, but she was given notice on March 12.

Miss Pocta and her attorney, Jerome Berg of San Francisco, are fighting the dismissal at a hearing at Marin Civic Center before Paul A. Winton, a hearing officer from the state Office of Administrative Procedure in San Francisco.

Berg contends that Miss Pocta is being ousted because her "informal" classroom methods, which, he said, are loved by children and parents alike, are frowned on by the new principal, Roy L. Smith, who was transferred from Greenbrae School to Wolfe Grade School last fall.

Berg declared that Smith and Supt. Anthony C. Bacich are trying to clamp down on the informal teaching methods of teachers like Miss Pocta and impose a traditional authoritarian approach.

"It's a difference in philosophy, between the rigid, structured approach and the human approach," said Berg.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, representing the Kentfield School District, denied that the difference is between teaching philosophies. He pointed out that Basil Scalabrini, a bearded, long-haired third-grade teacher is even more informal than Miss Pocta but is highly regarded at Wolfe Grade School.

Scalabrini, who is also a member of the San Anselmo School District Board, testified in defense of Miss Pocta yesterday.

Miss Pocta is accused of inability to control her classes and lack of proper organization.

Called to the witness stand by Godino, Superintendent Bacich testified he has nothing against informal classroom teaching. "But I would characterize Miss Pocta's classroom as loose rather than informal," said Bacich. He explained she does not seem to have a definite goal or plan of action for students.

Principal Smith told the hearing officer that Miss Pocta did not deal sternly enough with misbehaving pupils and allowed students to walk around at will.

Eugene Hensch, principal for two years before Smith, said he, too, was concerned with lack of proper planning in Miss Pocta's class. He acknowledged that she showed some improvement in the second year but needed more improvement to rate tenure.

But parents and other teachers disagree. They paraded to the witness stand yesterday to describe Miss Pocta as a "beautiful" teacher who worked wonders with pupils, especially the problem children and slow learners.

Mary Martis, vice president of the Wolfe Grade Parent-Teacher Association, said Miss Pocta, instead of belittling a problem child, would quietly point to good behavior by other students and get better results than through scolding. Mrs. Martis said she also saw the teacher take her pupils to one corner and captivate them by strumming on her guitar and having them recite poems in tune with the music.

Margaret Drake, clinical psychologist, whose child was in Miss Pocta's class, testified that the teacher motivates children and makes them enthusiastic.

Under questioning by Berg, Mrs. Drake described how Miss Pocta dealt with a boy who spilled a glass of juice at a party. "A tense, authoritarian teacher might have scolded him in front of everyone. But she just asked him quietly to pick it up. It never became a problem, and no one became tense."

"She doesn't handle such a situation as a discipline matter," said Mrs. Drake. "She handles it as a learning situation."

Every teacher and parent who took the stand heaped similar praise on Miss Pocta for being an effective teacher with control over her classes at all times.

Attorney Berg said more than 30 parents and teachers, including almost every teacher in Wolfe Grade School, volunteered to speak up for Miss Pocta. With the third day of the hearing completed yesterday, Berg said he still has 10 or 15 more witnesses to call.

Hearing officer Winton continued the hearing to 9:30 a.m. June 8 in the planning commission chambers at the Civic Center.

When the hearing is completed in June, Winton said he will write a proposed decision on Miss Pocta and submit it to the the Kentfield School District board of trustees, which has the final say on whether or not the probationary teacher will be rehired for the coming school year.

Bicycle Rider Hurt In Crash

Police said Heon's westbound bicycle collided with a southbound car driven by Gary Leonard Miller, 16, of 18 Kristin Lane, Novato, at 8 a.m.

Heon was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

WHAT TWA DID FOR COACH...

There's the new Twin Seat. If the plane's not crowded, it can be three across, two across or even a couch.

You'll find a choice of three international meals. With wines, champagnes and liqueurs from around the world.[1]

You'll find new carpets, new colors, new fabrics, new hostess uniforms, new everything.

The only problem was, first class started to look dull by comparison, so...

TWA NOW DOES FOR 1ST CLASS.

...we took out those old overstuffed first class seats. And put in all new overstuffed first class seats.

We put in a choice of five meals, the best you'll find on any airline, anywhere.

After dinner, settle back, and we present a choice of two movies on every movie flight. One for general audiences, one for mature.

And on top of this (and below it and all around it) you'll find new colors, new carpets, new fabrics, new everything.

Next time you're flying across the United States take a TWA Ambassador Flight from San Francisco or Oakland[2] International Airport.

Coach or first class, nobody else gives you anything like it.

1. Movies and alcoholic beverages available at nominal cost in coach. Movies by Inflight Motion Pictures, Inc. 2. Ambassador Service from Oakland to Chicago.

TWA's NEW AMBASSADOR SERVICE.
